Stopping Is Dangerous.
All Flying News, Good.
Large Sums, Useful.
Turks and Americans.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

UNLESS CERTAIN that you have provided for everything, old age included, keep going. It is very hard to be sure, and dangerous to stop.

In New York Dr. E. M. Weil thought he had enough, retired, found at the age of 60 that he must work again, and tried to rebuild his abandoned practice. The attempt failed, and yesterday a friend found Dr. Weil and his little dog both dead. The doctor knew the dog could not make a living and gave it strychnine before taking the poison himself.

The moral is, keep on working. Idleness is dull and it is dangerous, since the bottom can drop out of anything.

THE FLYING news is all good news. Gen. Balbo, with his air squadron of 24 seaplanes, flying in military air formation, landed yesterday at Cartwright, Labrador, after the longest single hop on the way to Chicago, 1,500 miles.

Chicago is preparing a fine reception for that great fleet of the air when it lands on Lake Michigan.

Jimmie Mattern, who survived in freezing Siberia in spite of severe burns and a broken ankle, promises soon to resume and finish the first trip ever made around the world through the air alone.

Col. Lindbergh and his wife, in their leisurely ramble mapping a northern route to Europe, flew yesterday from Halifax, Nova Scotia, waving goodbye and saying they were "northward bound, for no particular place."

Col. Lindbergh strolls through the air eight or ten thousand feet up as you would stroll around your garden.

SOME BELIEVE it is a mistake to let anybody make a great deal of money. They may prove to be right, ten thousand years hence. But at present it is sometimes useful to let considerable money accumulate in one pocket.

For instance, the beauty of the magnificent Palisades, along the Hudson River, was threatened by enterprising gentlemen that wanted to knock down the huge cliffs to crush and sell the stone.

Suddenly, their knocking down stopped. Now it is shown that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., through various corporations, bought the whole length of the Palisades, starting below the George Washington Bridge and extending thirteen miles north.

Yesterday he gave the thirteen-mile strip of land, worth about $5,000,000, to the state. He couldn't have done this unless he had the $5,000,000. The fact that he had it means that the Palisades will be preserved.

UNDER THE rule of the sultan and his pashas in Turkey, citizens were careful to hide their wealth and look poor. What the pashas saw they took. Americans know how these Turks felt. Whatever government, national, state or local, sees, it takes in part.

New York needs money, and proposes through the Board of Aldermen to tax hairdressers, hat check ladies, sodawater salesmen, motion picture machine operators, candy makers, and "cosmetologists" who work in beauty parlors.

Thus far, nobody has suggested taxing the baby's rattle, but that may come.

JOHN J. O'CONNELL, Jr., the young man of Albany, N. Y., was expected to be released by kidnapers momentarily. The ransom demand was $250,000.

Racketeers that, according to Senator Copeland, plan to specialize in kidnaping when prohibition's repeal ends bootlegging profits, will learn from statistics that kidnaping is not a safe profession.

In 18 kidnaping cases, 43 have been put in jail, nearly all for life, 3 were killed, 10 to await trial.

IN ADDITION, the United States government proposes a kidnaping law to cover the whole country. That would interfere seriously with kidnaping enterprises, in which local officials sometimes co-operate, as in a recent case when a policeman arrested the kidnaped man and turned him over to the professional kidnapers.

If the government's Secret Service takes kidnaping as seriously as it does counterfeiting it will be bad for kidnapers.

A WELL-KNOWN New York banker, seeking through his lawyer to establish a state of mind that would free him from certain responsibilities, is said by the lawyer "to be still living in the boom days of 1929." If all those still living, mentally, "in 1929" were incompetent mentally, the asylums would be full.

Fortunate is he who realizes that this is 1933, that yesterdays do not come back, and that there are enough problems ahead to make anybody forget 1929, however reluctantly.

IN RUSSIA a good many cooks have been spoiling the food of the proletariats, and yesterday five of them that cooked in workers' restaurants were sentenced to death as "enemies of the Soviet state." Six others were sent to prison.

These cooks, for their own particular reasons, had been putting nails, glass and wire in food prepared for the workers, and deliberately reducing the size of the portions; a strange way to oppose Soviet doctrines.

GANG FREES FACTOR FOR $50,000

Tortured by Kidnapers 12 Days, Victim Collapses

Associated Press.

Two of three recent kidnap victims remained in the power of their abductors today.

John (Jake the Barber) Factor, of Chicago, released last night in La Grange, Ill., a few miles south of the spot from which he was kidnaped July 1, admitted today that $50,000 had been paid the kidnapers for his release. He also related a story of 12 days of horror and torture.

John J. O'Connell, Jr., of Albany, abducted July 7 from near his home, and August Luer, aged banker of Alton, Ill., who was taken from his home July 10, are still missing.

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—John Factor disclosed today that $50,000 was paid in $5 and $10 bills to his kidnapers as the price of his freedom.

He said:

"I suffered unbelievable tortures, which it is impossible for me to describe or for you to believe."

Awakening from a 12-hoursleep, after 12 days a prisoner of a kidnaping band, he refreshed himself and shaved off the long growth of beard that gave evidence of his captivity.

Factor asserted there must have been 20 men in the gang that seized him the morning of July 1 as he motored home from a night club. He said he was struck in the face, bound, threatened with machine guns and driven near hysteria by the brutality and threats of his captors.

He declared:

"There were so many men in the gang, and because my eyes were taped tightly from the start, that I would not be able to identify the kidnapers."

"Their voices were those of intelligent men. All I could see

GOV. PINCHOT REPORTS JOB GAIN

Tells Roosevelt of 4 Pct. Employment Pickup in State

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—Preparations for harboring more industries and business under the Industrial Recovery law had Washington humming today while President Roosevelt kept tab on production and employment developments.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, took a personal report to the White House on unemployment, which has decreased 4 per cent in Pennsylvania since the shift of trend.

Between numerous conferences, Hugh S. Johnson—the industrial administrator—said the "fair competition" code to govern the steel industry definitely would be submitted by nightfall.

MINIMUM WAGES

Like many others being or to be formulated, it will propose minimum wages and maximum hours for the industry—the aim being to spread work and increase purchasing power to help the country all around.

Meanwhile, fearful lest increased production get out of bounds of the ability of people to buy and constitute a threat to business progress, the administration is considering what, if anything, can be done on that problem.

LEONARD URBAN, 26 . . . THINKING IT OVER IN A JAIL CELL

Mr. Urban, the South Sider who thinks there's nothing like marriage, slammed three times before officers interfered and pulled away Miss Lillian Davis, McKeesport, one of three girls he bewilderingly wooed in the past week. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

BROTHER OF SENATOR, TOM O'MALLEY ALSO ON LIST

State Senator James J. Coyne, his brother, Tom Coyne; Assemblyman Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks; Attorneys B. Robert Averbach and John J. McGrath; Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Thomas Saunders, police chief of Stowe Township; Paul N. Franks, Justice of the Peace of Scott Township, and Tom O'Malley, brother of Pat O'Malley, were among 39 persons indicted by the federal grand jury today.

Dr. Steedle, besides being indicted on a conspiracy charge, also was indicted on a perjury charge for his testimony before the grand jury.

Indicted with Senator Coyne were the same eight political leaders who were indicted June 28 on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws.

But today's indictment supersedes the first and was handed down to include three new defendants—Tom Coyne, Walter Butler and Harry Fink, a private detective. Tom Coyne is under indictment in Criminal Court as a proprietor of the Monaca Club.

Today's indictment ended the work of the federal jury, which has been investigating Congressman M. J. Muldowney's victory over Mrs. Anne E. Felix and the efforts of ex-Congressman Edmund Erk's friends to wipe out the winning lead of Congressman Twing Brooks.

Others named in the indictment were:

John J. Verona, Hill alderman and political boss; Pat O'Malley, Strip political leader; John Fugassi, mercantile appraiser, former head of the county road maintenance department; Louis J. Conley, assistant fire chief, chairman of the Ninth Ward; Frank O'Halloran, clerk for the Board of Mercantile Appraisers, chairman of the Ninth District, Ninth Ward; Patrick J. Maloney, member of the State Legislature; George W. Savage, city assessor; Martin Mullen, inheritance tax appraiser.

ELECTION BOARDS

The members of three election boards also were indicted.

Seven indictments were handed down today. Named on one were:

Dr. Steedle, Justice Westwood, Burton J. McKee, John J. McGrath, Robert S. S. Haus, Thomas Saunders, Frank Miller, William Schwartz, August Weisser, Attorney Averbach, who is counsel for the Sheriff's office; Paul Franks and Wallace Ray, all accused of falsifying records.

The election boards indicted:

Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward—Clement Wessell, Mary Burns, Martin F. McTighe, John Stanton, Mark Stanton.

Twelfth District, Fourth Ward—John P. Walsh, judge; Al Sherun, inspector; Earl M. McDermott, inspector; Ben C. Tatum, clerk; A. C. Calhoon, clerk. They were charged with making a certified election return of 247 votes for Davis, 272 for Muldowney.

COUNTY RAIDING DOWNTOWN

District Attorney Andrew T. Park swept aside an announced agreement with the city administration today as he ordered county detectives to begin a cleanup of the downtown.

Under direction of Park, Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren detailed Detectives Michael Ford, Peter A. Connors and Philip Goldberg to raid places against which numerous complaints had been received.

The sleuths first visited an alleged speakeasy opposite the Young Women's Christian Association, at 70-72 Chatham street, arrested the reputed proprietor, Andy Bruno, charged with violating the Snyder act, and confiscated 15 gallons of alcohol, coloring and flavoring materials. Detectives reported Bruno concocted all kinds of fancy drinks. He was held for court in $2,500 bail by Alderman T. A. Flanigan.

At 1502 Center avenue the detectives arrested Edward Comer on a charge of maintaining a lottery and violation of the beverage act, in selling beer without a license. Lottery books were confiscated and a test of the beer was ordered.

When Harmar D. Denny, Jr., was sworn in as Public Safety Director, he and Park reached an agreement that the county forces were not to raid within city limits. Park apparently interpreted this not to include places reputed to be persistent violators.

MISSING CO-ED ON WAY HOME

CORBIN, Ky., July 13.—(INS.)—A two-week hitch-hiking lark that landed in a waitress' job at a cafe here ended today for 18-year-old Marian Buckley when her father came and took her back to Ohio.

They left by automobile for Wilmington, O., where Miss Buckley will be a sophomore at Wilmington College this fall if she decides to return to school.

H. M. Buckley, the co'ed's father, who is assistant superintendent of schools at Cleveland, made a hurried trip by automobile here when he learned police had located his missing daughter.

Miss Buckley, none the worse for her adventure, smiling entered the motor car with her father, eager to be going home. Although she said she was delighted with her experience, she admitted she was glad to get away from the waitress' job because it was "too hard."

BALBO ARMADA NEARS CANADA

Associated Press.

Italy's great armada of 24 flying boats headed for Chicago swished over the waters at Cartwright, Labrador, and took off today for the 800-mile flight to Shediac, New Brunswick.

The first group of ships led by Gen. Italo Balbo, who calls his fliers "men of flesh with hearts of steel," rose from the water at 9:20 o'clock (Pittsburgh time), and the entire fleet was in the air 30 minutes later, say reports received in New York by the Mackay Radio Company.

Spurring them on in the mass flight which already has taken them across the Atlantic ocean, is a telegram from Premier Mussolini of Italy. Il Duce telegraphed to Balbo and his men his most profound satisfaction in the brilliant success of their flight across the most difficult stage of the journey to the Century of Progress in America.

'Jim' Ferguson Pledged for Repeal

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—Former Gov. "Jim" Ferguson, of Texas, after a conference with President Roosevelt, said today the Chief Executive was hopeful the Lone Star state would vote prohibition repeal and that he had assured him "we'll put it over."

2 Escape Injury In Crash of Plane

CLEARFIELD, Pa., July 13—(AP.)—Two persons escaped injury today in the crash of an airplane, two miles west of Clearfield. The plane was piloted by Eugene Martin, of McKean, the owner, with H. Cloyd, of Erie, as a passenger.

Assemblyman Saves Man From Drowning

INDIANA, Pa., July 13.—(AP.)—Gilbert T. McCrea, an 80-year-old farmer, was saved from drowning today by Assemblyman Earl Hewitt, of Indiana, who dragged the aged man from a creek after he had fallen and his shoulders had become wedged between two rocks.

Hal Smith Opposes Braves Here Today

FORBES FIELD, July 13.—Ladies' Day at Forbes Field today brought more guests of the management than cash customers, but the setting was a merry one for the third clash of the Boston-Braves and Pirates. The series was even as the third scrap got under way.

Hal Smith, winner of two starts against the Phillies, was all set to face the Boston boys, whose fighting spirit has tended to make the present series an extraordinary set of games. The Braves scored eight runs in the ninth to deadlock the Buccos yesterday, but Arky Vaughan's bat beat them in the tenth. Fred Frankhouse and Ben Cantwell were both ready to oppose Smith.

'Sistie' and 'Buzzie' Dall Guarded by Sleuths

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—Secret service operatives have been stationed to guard three of President Roosevelt's grandchildren, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, daughter and son of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and Sarah, daughter of James Roosevelt and his wife.

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" are on vacation at their mother's summer home in Little Boar's Head, N. H.; Sarah is staying at the home of James and Mrs. Roosevelt at Rye Beach, N. H., three miles away.

The action was taken as a result of the wave of kidnapings throughout the country. No threats have been received.

PARIS, July 13.—(INS.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the American President, today set out to "do" Paris in tourist fashion with the three companions who accompanied him from the United States.

FORMER WOOER 'COUNTED OUT'

Leonard Urban, the prolific check writer who thinks that marriage is the finest institution in the world, was nursing a bruised jaw today—a jaw that was bruised by the girl he left behind.

Leonard was socked on the jaw not once nor twice but three times by Miss Lillian Davis, 26, when he was arraigned before Alderman Lang in McKeesport.

The third sock sent Leonard down, whereupon constables halted the bout and declared Miss Davis winner by a knockout.

Carnegie Girl Trampled To Death by Horse

She is Mary A. McCraley, 25, of 2 Christy avenue, Carnegie, daughter of William G. McCraley, official of several building and loan associations of Carnegie.

The young woman and her brother, Robert, 18, were given mounts they had never ridden before, late yesterday at a riding club on the Forsythe farm, near Carnegie, according to the Coroner's reports.

They had gone half of their mile and a half ride over a bridle path, Robert related, when both animals, becoming frightened at something along the road, bolted.

Mary was jostled from her saddle and fell beneath the horse's feet. Robert leaped from his galloping horse and hurried to his sister's side. She was internally injured and died this morning.

She was a graduate of Mt. Mercy Academy, class of 1926. Besides her parents she leaves five sisters and four brothers.

'Lifer' for Pint Freed From Pen

LANSING, Mich., July 13.—(AP.)—Fred Palm, of Lansing, originally sentenced to life imprisonment under Michigan's fourth offender law, because he illegally possessed a pint of liquor, was given an immediate parole by Gov. William A. Comstock today.

NO CHILD LABOR EVILS FOUND BY PROBERS

Dress Firm Employes Refute Testimony Of Co-Worker

Business establishments today compiled employment statistics designed to refute testimony given before the Gallagher Commission which closed its hearings yesterday into employment conditions among women and children in the Pittsburgh district.

It was brought out at the hearing that there was no instance of violation of the child labor laws and little testimony of violation of the present hours law.

The Otto Milk Company submitted a statement in connection with the testimony of a representative of the Milk Ice Cream Salesmen, Drivers and Dairy Employes' Union that women replaced men in the company's plant.

DENIES CHARGES

The Otto Company said that failure of the commission to hold an afternoon session yesterday prevented it from presenting the facts orally before the commission. The statement said:

"We employ seven girls at $84 per week in place of three men at $75 per week in our bottle-washing, filling and capping department, which gives us a desirable, flexible working organization and which practice is followed by some of our country's largest milk plants. The work is ideal for female employment and their working conditions are excellent."

The company said all girls employed are helping to support families and most of them have been with the firm several years. It added:

"Their actual employment time is five days a week, or between 28 and 29 hours, and they receive $12 pay. They get 8½ days vacation per year with pay and are not docked if absent on account of ordinary illness and are permitted to drink milk when they desire.

"The company pays the entire premium for special health and accident insurance in addition to its regular employes' compensation coverage."

REFUTE TESTIMONY

In refutation of a former apprentice's testimony that she got only $5.05 for working five weeks for the Elite Dress Company, 923 Penn avenue, M. J. Gerstein, president, H. S. Gerstein, vice president of the company, forwarded to the Gallagher Commission a statement signed by 74 of 100 of their employes present Wednesday.

The officials said the average length of service of those signing the statement is five and one-half years. M. J. Gerstein testified yesterday the apprentice was in training for the first four weeks and was not to have received any pay for that time. The statement said:

"We the undersigned employes of the Elite Dress Company, resent and take exception to the unfavorable publicity which appeared against our firm in local newspapers and hereby testify that our working conditions and general treatment has been very satisfactory and that our rates of pay have been reasonable and compare favorably with wages paid by other local employers for similar work.

"This statement was originally suggested by a few of the older employes and is being indorsed of our own free will and accord."

BAKERS PLEDGE FAIR PRICE

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace and the president of the American Bakers Association are in agreement that the bread buyer shall not be unduly penalized because of the tax levied on wheat processing in the crop reduction program.

Henry Stude, the baker, in a letter to Wallace renewed his promise that "the baker will pass on to the consumer only so much as he is compelled to pay—and no more."

The invitation issued by the government to mayors of American cities asking aid in suppressing food profiteering was awaited today by Mayor John S. Herron. City officials here are willing to co-operate in preventing unwarranted retail price increases, the Mayor said.

EATON NAMED IN BANK PROBE

CLEVELAND, July 13.—(INS.)—The names of Cyrus S. Eaton, financier and industrialist, and O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, Cleveland railroad magnates, today were drawn into the investigation of the defunct Guardian Trust Company, Cleveland, which is being conducted by a committee of the Ohio State Senate.

Van Sweringen and Eaton interests, it was testified at a hearing before the committee, were indebted to the institution for loans totaling more than $8,000,000 before it collapsed during the national bank holiday.

Testimony presented by Edward J. Falkenstein, a special investigator of the bank, charged that Eaton and Van Sweringen were the heaviest borrowers of the bank in 1932.

It was further testified that the Van Sweringens now owe the Guardian $2,500,000 on which the bank finally stopped figuring interest a year ago, considering it a "bad" loan.

BANK QUIZ ENDS ON FORD PLEA

DETROIT, July 13.—(AP.)—A sudden adjournment of Detroit's bank jury, coupled with the unexpected announcement that "a solution to the banking situation here is pending in Washington," today brought into the limelight the figure of Edsel Ford as a possible arbitrator in difficulties that have kept two national banks here closed since Michigan's bank holiday, February 14.

Judge Harry B. Keidan, who for nearly five weeks has been conducting public hearings into the closing of the banks, announced the adjournment a few minutes after he had conferred with Ford, Clifford B. Longley, Ford attorney and former president of the Union Guardian Trust Company, and Emory Clark, active in banking affairs. Ford said:

"We thought it would be better to hold things as they are for the time being.

"Negotiations are in progress in Washington, and we do not desire that anything be done locally which would endanger them."

COAL CODE DUE ON TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—Southern and northern bituminous coal producers, representing a large part of the nation's total tonnage, are expected to hand their code of fair competition to the industrial recovery administration next Tuesday.

They plan to meet in New York Monday to attempt to agree on wage differentials between North and South and between different sections of their respective fields.

If unable to reach such an agreement, however, they expect to submit separate codes and leave the wage question to be settled at a hearing on the codes.

Most of the operators to be represented are from non-union fields.

Such interests as the operators in Appalachian Coals, Inc., in the South, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company in the North were expected to attend the conference.

DRYS IN OHIO FIGHT DECISION

COLUMBUS, O., July 13.—(INS.)—Fighting to the last ditch, the Ohio Anti-Saloon League today threatened to go to the United States Supreme Court against a decree yesterday by the State Supreme Court that Ohio must vote November 7 on the question of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

Wets throughout Ohio celebrated the decision as their greatest of many recent victories, but drys refused to abandon hope. The state court, by a vote of six to one, held that the Mosier law, providing for election of delegates to a state convention on liquor repeal, is not subject to the referendum demanded by organized dry forces.

Unless the ruling is thrown out by a higher court, Ohio will elect its delegates at the November 7 election for a repeal convention to be held December 5.

"We're not licked yet!" declared S. P. McNaught, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and called a meeting of the Ohio Prohibition Council to discuss the possibility of carrying the fight to the highest court in the nation.

HOME LOAN UNIT HERE DELAYED

Action on the opening of the Pittsburgh Branch of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, being formed to save home owners from the loss of their properties, probably will be delayed until next week.

Jacob H. Mays, state administrator for the Home Relief Board, has declared that he intends to visit Pittsburgh Monday. He is in Washington today and will be in Philadelphia tomorrow.

Mays stated that no appointments of the personnel of the organization will be announced until next week.

Co-operation of members of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association in the administration of the Home Owners' Loan Act was offered to Mays yesterday.

Philip N. Arnold, president of the association, in a letter to Mays, placed the facilities at the manager's disposal and told him members all over the state had expressed their pleasure that immediate action has been promised in establishing loan offices.

INDUSTRY CODES NEEDED HERE, QUIZ FINDS

Seminar Ends 3-Day Study of Conditions In Pittsburgh

Their three-day study of Pittsburgh industrialism completed, the traveling seminar of the National Religion and Labor Foundation left this morning for Detroit.

Conviction of the necessity of the industrial codes ordered in the National Recovery Act was, they reiterated, the chief outcome of their observations in this largely open-shop city.

The group spent yesterday morning visiting the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation's plant at Aliquippa. They were much impressed to hear from officials that workers had not been dropped because of the depression and that even where it was impossible to "stagger" jobs the company had carried all its old men over.

The seminar inspected the workers' home section and were pleased with plant safety provisions. They expressed the opinion that Jones & Laughlin was "far above the average steel plant."

In the afternoon a different picture was presented to them in a two-hour conferenc with labor and unemployed leaders. The labor men charged Jones & Laughlin was "notorious" for suppression of other than company unions and intimidation of its men.

Three members of the seminar spoke in the evening before a student inquiry group at the Y. W. C. A. Prophesying the dawn of a new epoch, Francis A. Henson, executive secretary of the foundation, said:

The present age of "economic plenty," in opposition to all former ages of "economic want," the interdependence of nations, the rise of class consciousness, increasing racial antagonism, and desire for stability, Henson cited as factors in the coming era.

Selden Rodman, associate editor of Common Sense, discussed his magazine and a new labor party. W. F. Kinsey explained the socialization of the Columbia Conserve Company, of which he is an officer.

U.S. DELEGATION ASKS WORLD WAGE BOOST

Work Hour Reduction Also Proposed At Parley

LONDON, July 13.—(INS.)—The American delegation to the World Economic Conference today proposed a reduction of working hours for labor and a proportionate increase in wages as a means of relief from the unemployment troubles affecting every country in the world.

The American proposal was in the form of a resolution placed before the economic committee of the conference, and immediately won wide attention and serious consideration from the representatives of all nations.

No specific figures were mentioned, but the delegates recognized the plan at once as closely akin to the measures which President Roosevelt has advocated for the American unemployment problem, and which already have brought improvement in the United States.

Pittman Renews Fight To Rehabilitate Silver

LONDON, July 13.—(AP.)—Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, renewed his campaign for the rehabilitation of silver through international agreement today, introducing a substitute proposal for his original resolution before the World Economic Conference.

The new measure specifies no proportion of silver which may be used for central bank currency coverage, thus differing from the original suggestion which called for optional use of one-fifth of currency cover in the white metal.

Important features of the new plan are designed to prevent dumping of silver on the world markets and debasement of silver coinage.

British Empire Torn By Currency Fight

LONDON, July 13.—(AP.)—A dramatic struggle over the currency question has developed within the British empire camp as the World Economic Conference nears its close.

The Dominions are insistent that the British government must unhitch the pound from the French franc and other gold currencies and reduce it in value along with the American dollar. In financial quarters the Dominions were described as pushing a vigorous drive in what may be the closing fortnight of the parley.

Much significance was seen in the meeting today of J. H. Thomas, British minister for colonies, with Stanley M. Bruce, Australian high commissioner at London; Gen. Christian Smuts, of South Africa; Sir Henry Stakosch, of India, and J. M. Keynes, English economist, who is urging revaluation of currencies.

Canada was not represented at this meeting but well-informed persons said that the government of that country was also urging that the pound should follow American currency.

The British government is extremely hesitant about unhitching the pound from the franc for fear of adverse effects on the continent, where Great Britain sells approximately one-half her manufactured goods.

ROOSEVELT AIR TALK JULY 25

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt will address the governors' conference at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco from the White House at 11 P. M., E. S. T., Tuesday, July 25.

The Executive's address, which will be of half an hour's duration, will take advantage of the opportunity to ask the governors for the fullest sort of co-operation from the American people in the carrying out of his recovery program.

He had planned to make a speech of this kind during the present week, but decided to await the opportunity presented by a gathering of the governors of the 48 states.

Gov. John Pollard, of Virginia, who will attend the conference, will speak after the President. His address will be sent out over a national hookup also.

Coyne, Steedle, Averbach Named In Indictments

Floyd Kawka, clerk; Stanley Carlowske. They were charged with making a certified return of 362 votes for Muldowney, 362 for Davis.

The jurors, recessing exactly one month after convening, were thanked by Judge Nelson McVicar and advised to be ready for recall, if necessary.

With today's batch, 108 persons have been indicted, most of them members of election boards in the Third and Fourth Wards.

All were charged with conspiracy.

The grand jury admitted inability to identify persons who changed ballots in the Thirtieth Congressional District and suggested further investigation.

The jury agreed the frauds were due to carelessness on the part of "the constituted authorities" and criticized the care given ballot boxes.

"Large numbers of fictitious voters" were reported on the registration books, particularly in the Second, Third and Fourth wards, the grand jury reported. It added:

"But we were advised that illegal registration was not a matter over which federal courts have jurisdiction."

The jurors agreed that much of the illegal changing of ballots was possible because of the Pennsylvania election laws which permit the cross mark to be added to the name of a candidate on a straight-party ballot.

Finally the jury reported that on certain election boards the members spoke in foreign languages. The jury suggested English should be required.

COYNE SCHEME HITS SNAG

The attempt of the Coyne political machine to divide the First District, Second Ward, into two voting districts and suggest the election officials therefor, ran into a snag today.

After hearing the petition filed by Attorney A. M. Oliver in Common Pleas Court, Judge William H. McNaugher said:

"If I decide to divide the district, I'm not going to appoint anyone who has the slightest suspicion against him."

The petition suggested Patsy Colango for judge of elections and Frank De Bassi for inspector.

Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, who opposed the division, said Colango served a two-year term for violating the Federal narcotics act and De Bassi forfeited bail in a lottery case.

Oliver said Colango had been withdrawn as a candidate and suggested James J. Alterno, unemployed former grocery clerk, for elections judge.

The Twenty-seventh District of the Fourteenth Ward was divided, creating a new Twenty-eighth District. The polling place of the Twenty-seventh will remain in the Wendover apartments in Hobart street.

The polls for the new Twenty-eighth will be in Davis School, Phillips avenue.

STRIKES SPREAD IN PENNA.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 13.—(AP.)—Arrests and scattered disorders continue to mark the numerous strikes afflicting Pennsylvania industries and the labor trouble detracts from growing reports of improved industrial conditions.

The hosiery strike at Reading, with more than 10,000 employes idle, dominates the picture. In progress for 27 days, developments in this movement are looked for as a result of completion of the manufacturers' code of fair competition, announced from New York last night.

Last night labor held an impressive demonstration in Reading, thousands of strikers from the local hosiery mills, augmented by workers from Lansdale, Pottstown and nearby communities, marching through the center of the city for an hour and a half.

Meanwhile, the strike spirit has spread to laundries, pretzel factories, textile trades, an electrical manufacturing concern and even a taxi company, located in scattered sections of the state, and having a variety of causes.

COUNTY BALKS AT FINANCING HALL FIGHT

Woodside Request for $20,000 to Combat Suit Tabled

County Controller Robert G. Woodside today asked County Commissioners to appropriate $20,000 to conduct hearings on the validity of the Town Hall site sale. His request was tabled.

He made the request shortly after representatives of the Schenley Farms Company made formal demand for the $1,100,000 purchase price of the Town Hall property in Schenley Farms.

Woodside, announcing hearings would begin August 29, asked for the money to finance them, including mileage for witnesses and other expenses.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern objected to the appropriation, asserting it seemed the money was mostly for attorneys. He told Woodside:

"If the County Law Department can't take care of it, it should retire. We have eight attorneys, you have one. The less lawyers we have, the better off we are."

Woodside told him:

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield agreed with McGovern.

Pinchot Sees Difficulty In Placing Miners

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—Tremendous difficulties would face the administration's plan to place unemployed miners in agricultural work, Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, admitted here today.

Earlier it was revealed that even under the recovery program approximately a third of the coal miners now idle will remain unemployed and that the administration was seeking some other work for which the miners might be suited.

Pinchot, after a talk with President Roosevelt, bluntly indicated that the business of finding some work other than mining for the unemployed miners would be a great problem. He pointed out most of the miners have done nothing but mining work all their lives.

Pinchot spent most of time with the President discussing public works as they will be carried forward under the recovery program, and announced he also expected to see Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace before returning to Harrisburg late today.

He said he had asked for no definite amount for road work in his state under the recovery program, but revealed he thought approximately $400,000,000 could be economically used for road and sewer work throughout his state.

reports excellent financial conditions. Portugal is "in the black." Her prosperous colonies, Cape Verde, Portuguese Guinea, Mozambique and Goa, also have their bills paid with surpluses to show.

One-half the countries do not know how the other half live. Uncle Sam will be surprised to hear that the total cost of running Portugal, everything included, is $97,000,000.

That, according to Senator Copeland, is less than one-tenth of what this country pays its racketeers annually.

CRUTCHES, NOT GANG, AIDED ESCAPE

Crutch, Not Gang, Aided Flight From Hospital

A pair of crutches and not a gang helped Peter Cebulski, 25, alias Pete Morrison, of 127 Glen Caladh street, Hazelwood, to escape from Homeopathic Hospital last month, Cebulski said today.

The police didn't believe him. They weren't guarding him, because he had a 35-pound weight attached to his leg and were assured he couldn't escape, they said.

Re-arrested today, Cebulski was returned to the hospital for further treatment of a bullet wound inflicted by police April 15. He was shot by Patrolman James O'Connor, who said Cebulski ran when the officer sought to question him in connection with robberies.

Cebulski said he told a friend to notify detectives he was ready to give up, because the injured leg was growing worse. He was arrested at the home of a sister at 125 Furley street, Elliott.

The fugitive scoffed at the assertion that he had help in his escape. He said:

"I walked to another bed and took a pair of crutches. I walked to the window and got on the fire escape. I fell twice while I was getting out. A cab passed and I hailed it. He took me to my brother-in-law's home in Elliott."

Cebulski said he fled because the police were going to pin a job on me. Following his rearrest he was charged with robbery, felonious assault and battery and entering a building with intent to commit a felony.

'Super-Cabinet' Chief Dodges Limelight

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—A man engaged to coordinate the administration's vast program for restoring prosperity should avoid the limelight and the newspaper headlines, Frank C. Walker, of New York, secretary of the new "super-cabinet," declared today.

He added:

"But don't quote me. I prefer not to do any talking."

Walker, summoned hastily from New York, moved into quarters at the Treasury Building, next to the offices occupied by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

Friends of this versatile lawyer hailed his entry to the growing ranks of new-deal specialists drafted by President Roosevelt as aides in the recovery program.

Moley Loudly Silent On Return Home

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Prof. Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, returned from the London Economic Conference today and reserved whatever he had to say for the ears of the President.

Accompanying him on the liner Manhattan were Herbert Bayard Swope, his personal adviser; Oliver S. W. Sprague, economic adviser to the American delegation, and Edmund Day, technical adviser.

After the liner reached Quarantine, Prof. Moley shut himself up in his cabin and typed out a 50-word statement for publication, which he distributed.

His stenographic efforts were captioned, "Statement of Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, July 13, 1933," and said:

"I have been on the water for a week, together with my associate, Herbert Bayard Swope, who accompanied me at the President's request, and our knowledge of the recent developments in London is less than yours here.

"Concerning my stay in London, where I was for just a week, I shall report with Mr. Swope at Washington to the State Department and, of course, to the President."

Following that the professor parried all questions with, "I wouldn't want to answer that," "I have no opinion on that," "You know as much about it as I do," or "I can't say anything about that."

KAHN'S DIVORCED WIFE JILTS COLUMBO FOR DEMPSEY

HANNAH TO WED EX-CHAMP AT RENO

International News Service.

RENO, Nev., July 13.—Russ Columbo, "Romeo of song," must know by now why Reno "changes people so."

Reports from Fort Worth, Tex., that Jack Dempsey and Hannah Williams Kahn, Broadway's "cheerful little earful," plan to marry as soon as they arrive here reminded Renoites today how the former heavyweight champion "muscled in" on Columbo's romance with the diminutive singer and former wife of Roger Wolfe Kahn, bandmaster.

Columbo and Mrs. Kahn were linked in a romance here during her divorce residence, and Jack McCoy, Columbo's manager, issued a statement indicating the two would marry after her divorce.

Columbo had come to Reno, he said, to see "why Reno claimed the only girl I ever loved and why it changes people so."

Friends of the couple said today, however, it was William Harrison Dempsey, and not Reno, that "changed Hannah so."

In a two-day visit in Reno, en route East from the Young Corbett-Jackie Fields fight in San Francisco, Dempsey spent most of his time in the company of Mrs. Kahn.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Kahn issued a statement in which she said she and Columbo "are just good friends" and denied they would be married.

SYNTHETIC BABY TALE AMAZES HOUSEMAID

Divorcee Knew Father All Along, Declares 'Little Country Girl'

International News Service.

DETROIT, July 13.—Just how "synthetic" were the "synthetic babies" of Mrs. Mate Hommel, of Los Angeles, remained a mystery today after a former maid in Mrs. Hommel's Detroit home, when she was Mrs. James Gardner Shelley, denied there was any "scientific experiment" involved in their birth.

Mrs. Hommel startled a Los Angeles courtroom by testifying that her three attractive daughters were "laboratory babies," whose father she did not see until after the third one was born in 1919.

The "synthetic births" were engineered, she said, by Dr. John Franklin Dunwoody, of Detroit, with the knowledge and consent of Shelley. Later she fell in love with the "scientific father," whom she named as Raphael Corcoran, of Detroit, and she was divorced from Shelley. But instead of marrying Corcoran, she was wed to Dr. Hommel, of Los Angeles.

STORY CORROBORATED

This amazing story, which most physicians agreed was scientifically possible, was corroborated by Dr. L. P. Breitenbach, one of Detroit's best known physicians, Dr. Dunwoody, who died in 1919, performed the operation which resulted in the "synthetic births" while a member of Dr. Breitenbach's staff, the physican said.

However, Catholic church records were found here showing that the three children of Mate Atwood (Mrs. Hommel's maiden name) and Raphael Corcoran were baptized at Detroit churches with the surname of Corcoran. And the records showed that the first child was brought to the church by Corcoran and Mate Atwood in 1917, shortly after its birth.

The parish records also indicated that the baptism of the first infant, who is now an attractive girl of 16, was a "complete baptism"—that is, the parents had satisfied the church authorities of their proper marriage. Shelley was not mentioned on the baptismal certificates, although birth certificates for the girls named him as the father.

MAID 'TELLS ALL'

Last night International News Service located a woman who, under promise of anonymity, admitted she had been a maid in the Shelley home in 1918. She said:

"I came to work for Mrs. Shelley just after Christmas, 1918. I was a little country girl, right off the farm. At first I thought Mr. Corcoran was Mrs. Shelley's husband. Little Jane, we called her Mary then (the first "laboratory baby") was only six months old. I had been there some time when I learned that Mr. Shelley was coming home.

"When he arrived he was furious about the baby.

"Later he went away on a business trip and while he was away, as I remember it, the second baby was born.

"When I heard about this 'scientific baby' stuff I was dumbfounded. I knew that Mrs. Shelley had known Corcoran some time before I went to work for her."

ALCOHOL KILLS SIX, ANOTHER NEAR DEATH

Source of Poisoned Draughts Sought By Sleuths

Five men are dead and another is reported seriously ill in Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, today from drinking denatured alcohol. A sixth was reported from the Elizabeth district.

A county detective and deputy coroners are seeking the source of the poison to determine whether it was sold as a beverage. County detectives were told it was alcohol used for automobile radiators.

William Rose, 45, died this morning in the hospital. The others died last night. Three of them were identified as Chetster Sneebold, 28, of Greenwich street, Natrona; Jack Dougherty, 55, Diamond street, Kittanning, and Joseph Ross, 55, address unknown. The name of the other was said to be Powell.

Sneebold died in Tarentum borough hall a short time after he had been found unconscious in Tarentum Memorial Park. The other three died in the hospital.

Dougherty was found near the Penn Iron and Steel Company plant in East Deer Township. The man believed to be Powell was found at Peterson stop of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Ross in Bull Creek road.

From the two in the hospital police were unable to learn where the alcohol had been obtained.

The sixth death attributed to poison alcohol was reported to the Coroner's office after the body of Ira Berger, 43, was found in a shack this morning along a road near Elizabeth.

ACTOR ASTAIRE WEDS DIVORCEE

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Assured of the custody of her 4-year-old invalid son, for all but one month in each year, Mrs. Phylis Livingstone Potter, society divorcee, gave romance its turn by marrying Fred Astaire, musical comedy star and dancer, late yesterday.

The marriage came as a surprise in its suddenness following an agreement out of court giving her custody of her son for 11 months of each year and her first husband, Eliphalet Nott Potter, custody of the boy for the twelfth month.

During court proceedings, in which she sought modification of the agreement by which she and Potter shared custody of their son equally, Mrs. Potter said that until she was assured of the boy's welfare, "a very prominent New York gentleman" would have to wait. As, it happened, the wait was not long. The honeymoon will be in Hollywood.

Astaire is a brother of Adele Astaire, his former dancing partner, who married into the British peerage last year.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure is centered over Northern Minnesota, and a trough extends southward to another over Northern Texas, thence eastward over the southern states to a center off the South Carolina Coast. Pressure is high over New England and over the far Northwest. This distribution of pressure is causing some cloudiness over the plains states and southern states, with generous showers in some localities. Heavy rains occurred at Tampa Fla., and Charleston, S. C. The temperature continues near the seasonal normal over the states east of the Mississippi River, while over the West unusually high temperatures prevail. Temperatures of 90 degrees or higher occurred nearly everywhere over the West and 100 degrees and higher over Southern Kansas and southward. The highest reported in that section is 106 degrees at Abilene, Tex.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 0.5 foot. Lock No. 7 (Monongahela), 11.4; Pittsburgh 10.0; Dam No. 4, 9.4; No. 6, 7.6; No. 10, 8.6, and No. 12, 7.0. The dams are up.

PROBE ATTACK ON DOCTORS

ST. PAUL, July 13.—(AP.)—A belief that one member of a gang which attacked two St. Paul doctors was familiar with the practice of medicine today heightened mystery surrounding the case as police sought a motive for the crime.

The two victims, Dr. E. J. Engberg, prominent physician, and Dr. W. H. Hedberg, president of the Minnesota Chiropractors' Association, were recovering in a hospital.

Although it was established that Dr. Engberg was kidnaped in an attempt to force him to mutilate Dr. Hedberg, police said Dr. Hedberg continued to insist he had no idea who perpetrated the attack, or what inspired it.

However, Dr. Joel C. Hultkrans and Dr. Robert Earl, treating Dr. Engberg, said they were of the opinion that a hypodermic and anesthetic given their patient were administered by a man more or less familiar with the practice of medicine.

Both Dr. Engberg and Dr. Hedberg told police they had been summoned from their homes Tuesday night to make calls which proved to be tricks.

CHURCH LOOTED, POLICE SCORED

For the third time in two months St. John the Baptist Catholic Church at Liberty avenue and Thirty-sixth street was robbed early—a robbery that brought criticism of the Police Department from the pastor, Father A. J. Wigley. He said:

"We have no police protection day or night. It's outrageous."

WALES' PLANE FORCED DOWN

LONDON, July 13.—(INS.)—The Prince of Wales made a forced landing at Swanage, Dorsetshire, today while en route to Weymouth in his private plane from Windsor to officiate at ceremonies in connection with opening of a new waterworks.

The plane encountered a blinding rainstorm and the pilot decided further flying was too risky. The Prince continued the trip by motor car.

arrived in Cartwright 14½ hours after leaving Revkjavik, Iceland, 1,500 miles away.

The Italians felicitated themselves on their elapsed time since leaving their base at Orbettello, Italy, July 1. They had covered, on reaching Cartwright, 3,930 miles of their 6,100-mile cruise in 30 hours and 20 minutes of flying time, an average of a little less than 130 miles an hour.

SPECTACULAR RECEPTION

A spectacular reception is planned in Chicago to honor Balbo and his men upon their arrival at their journey's end—a Century of Progress International Exposition—possibly Saturday.

Officials of the World's Fair say they intend to make it one of the greatest welcomes ever staged in America. It is anticipated that the airmen will be greeted by a crowd of half a million.

The armada will be met at Michigan City, Ind., by a squadron of United States Army planes and escorted to a mooring near Navy pier.

Balbo Describes Perils Of Labrador Flight

CARTWRIGHT, Labrador, July 13.—(INS.)—The great hazards of a flight through blinding fog banks and over ice-filled seas, were best told by Gen. Balbo himself in a message to Premier Mussolini in Rome, which said:

"We left Revkjavik with great difficulty on account of the direction of the wind, which obliged us to have the planes towed.

"The first two hours of the flight were very difficult. There was no visibility. The sky was dark, and there were low clouds over the sea. We were obliged to fly almost touching the water, and the flying often was blind.

"From the third to the fifth hour the flight was a nightmare. We flew in fog so dense it was almost impossible to distinguish the tips of our wings. To avoid the danger of ice forming on the wings, we held ourselves to an altitude of scarcely 100 meters to avoid the low temperature.

"On account of the take-off and the flight in the fog, the formation was greatly disrupted, but all squadrons arrived in Cartwright in perfect formation of three's."

WEATHER BALKS LINDY START

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, July 13.—(AP.)—Unfavorable flying weather along the Newfoundland coast prevented Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh from leaving here for Cartwright, Labrador, today on their aerial mapping expedition.

It was cold, wet and foggy when the Colonel arose and he said he would not take off until the weather cleared.

The famous flying couple had looked forward to meeting the Italian air fleet at Cartwright, but Gen. Italo Balbo led his 24 seaplanes southward from that port today for Shediac, N. B.

ard all around. He was held for court on six charges of false pretense and forgery, all due to his matrimonial inclinations.

Leonard is the convincing young man who convinced several young ladies that as soon as each married him he would come into a handsome bequest set up in the will of his late and beloved grandmother, if not his aunt.

There was one young lady who outsmarted Leonard. She was Miss Mary Canski, an attractive brunet who serves as waitress in a Homestead restaurant.

Leonard wooed Miss Canski swiftly. Last Sunday he dropped into the restaurant, ordered two eggs, left a $1 tip and told Miss Mary about a $250 monthly income. But when suspicious Mary suggested that Leonard show some proof of this income "down at the 'squire's," Leonard departed.

The case of Miss Davis, a McKeesport waitress, was different. Leonard took Miss Davis on a spending spree. He bought furniture, a car, a radio and paid off—more than $4,000—in bouncing checks.

The next day he was to meet Miss Davis in a hotel and drive to Cumberland to be married.

But while Miss Davis was waiting impatiently for Leonard, he suddenly appeared before the Rev. C. J. Whitlatch, pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church in Uniontown, with another conquest—Miss Betty Kerston, 24, of McKeesport.

They wanted to be married, but Dr. Whitlatch, having read of Leonard's check-writing proclivities in the Sun-Telegraph, called the police.

Three years ago Leonard was more successful. He was actually married then to Ruth Locy, of Homestead Park, but when he failed to produce his marriage inheritance Ruth had the marriage annulled.

Leonard says he thinks there's nothing like marriage. Oh, true enough, he didn't have any inheritance, but he says his intentions were good—all he wanted to do was show these young ladies a good time.

MRS. LONG GETS SECOND THREAT

Mrs. Rocco di Pippa, wife of Roxie Long, received the second letter in a week today threatening her with death unless she deserts her husband.

Roxie turned state's evidence in a liquor conspiracy trial for conviction in which he is now serving time with others in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

This letter demanded an answer, objected to her telling the police about the first warned her:

"Now don't turn this one over to them if you do we'll get you right away. We mean that would be your death if any one comes with you they will be popped off to. This is the last warning."

Mrs. de Pippa's answer:

"I'm not afraid of your machine guns or anything. I'm going to stick by my husband. If you are up to anything, come ahead."

JOSEPH VOLPE OUT OF JAIL

Joseph Volpe, brother of the three gangsters slain in a Wylie avenue coffee shop last summer, was released from jail today on parole signed by two judges.

He had been sentenced on charges of resisting an officer and of assault and battery, the sentences running concurrently.

He was paroled by Visiting Judge O. Clair Kent, of Crawford county, on payment of $100 fine and costs amounting to almost $400 on the resistence charge. He was sentenced for threatening to run Night Capt. Thomas F. Conlin out of Wilmerding on the night of April 20 when Conlin arrested Volpe and some of his friends.

Concurring in the parole was Visiting Judge Thomas J. Bailey, who earlier had sentenced Volpe to a $25 fine and a 90-day workhouse sentence for assault and battery on Lewis Lucarelli, of 109 Kline avenue, Wilmerding.

Posse Fails in Hunt For Chicken Killer

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 13.—After an all-night search, a posse of 100 farmers failed to find the predatory animal which has killed hundreds of chickens, small farm stock and game at Mingo, near Finleyville.

Two hours after the posse abandoned the hunt at dawn, Ignatz Burcis, farmer, reported his team ran away when the animal appeared as he was en route to his fields.

Detective Stories To Aid J. P.'s Rest

YACHT BURNS, SIX RESCUED

FISHERS ISLAND, N. Y., July 13.—(AP.)—Army officers at Fort Wright reported today the rescue of Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, two other men and three women who were forced to leap into Block Island Sound yesterday when the Guggenheim yacht was swept by flames.

The six persons, one of them burned seriously, were kept afloat by life preservers tossed to them from an Army plane, and were taken aboard an Army vessel just as their yacht was shattered by an explosion. They were: Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Guggenheim, M. Robert Guggenheim, Jr., Miss Helen Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Thomas.

Irene Fights to Save Boy's Doomed Dog

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—For the sake of "Spotty" and his 12-year-old master, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin has come to court in an attempt to force officials to surrender a dog without payment of 75 cents "ransom."

"Spotty," half fox terrier and half Boston bull, was given to the boy, Arthur Koestner by Mrs. McLaughlin, the former dancer, from among the homeless dogs she provides a haven for at her shelter, "Orphans of the Storm."

The other day the dog was picked up by the city dog catchers and the law provides that unless 75 cents is paid for its release within five days it will be turned over to a medical institution for vivisection purposes.

In her suit filed in the Superior Court of Judge Robert E. Gentzel, Mrs. McLaughlin asks that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Commissioner of Police James P. Allman be restrained from ordering destruction of "Spotty." Her suit said:

"Regardless of law or ordinance there is nothing more sacred to boyhood than companionship with a dog. The police have taken Arthur's dog from him, ruthlessly and in an unguarded moment."

That 3.2 Oil Is Gushing Now In Oklahoma

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Oklahoma struck 3.2 oil on Tuesday and Alfalfa Bill Murray called out the militia.

Back in New York we didn't have to call them out. They came out themselves as soon as they heard the good news.

So did the firemen, the marines, the sailors and the policemen. We needed them all to hold back the Boy Scouts.

Gov. Murray is using the militia to guard the breweries. That's certainly nice work if you can get it.

This is Oklahoma's first taste of legal beer. We're going to give them some advice. Don't get discouraged. Keep diving into the foam and you'll find some.

The state that bores 10,000 feet for gasoline shouldn't mind drilling the nose through six inches of foam.

WHARF PROJECT GAINS STATE SUPPORT

HARRISBURG, July 13.—(INS.)—The State Water and Power Resources Board had under consideration today a proposed $4,500,000 super highway project to surround the two water front sides of Pittsburgh's Golden Triangle.

After appearing before the board with a delegation, Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works in Pittsburgh expressed confidence that construction of the project will be approved. He said:

"I feel certain the board will grant its approval. All civic, industrial and business organizations in Pittsburgh are in favor of the proposed improvement."

Hopeful that the work can be performed under provisions of the National Recovery Act, Lang conferred with Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Highways, regarding federal and state highway funds. He said there has been no estimate made of the amount the city, state or federal government will advance toward financing the improvement.

The plan calls for the construction of the super-highway by widening Water street along the Monongahela River from the Liberty Bridge to the Point Bridge and a similar widening of Duquesne way along the Allegheny River to Tenth street.

Besides Lang, those who appeared before the board were Charles M. Reppert and Ross M. Riegel, city engineers; Fred C. Schaltz, representing the lower Downtown Businessmen's Association; J. Frank Tilley, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange; Frederick Bigger, a member of the City Planning Committee, and C. K. Robinson, vice president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

RELIEF CUT HIT IN SOMERSET

HARRISBURG, July 13.—(AP.)—Demands for a readjustment of relief distribution in Somerset County were laid before the State Emergency Relief Board today by a delegation headed by Benjamin N. Murphy, of Holsopple.

Murphy, chairman of the county unemployed council, attacked the reduction of relief expenditures on the basis of employment which he said was granted to bituminous miners at "sweatshop" rates.

The spokesman displayed pay envelopes which showed net earnings of from 28 cents to several dollars for two-week periods. These amounts, he said, represented the cash with which the "employed" miners were able to buy clothing and pay rent after their purchases at company stores had been deducted.

Among the exhibits was one envelope showing total earnings of $5.05, and a net cash payment of five cents.

N. Y. Asks Session To Meet Job Crisis

NEW YORK, July 13.—(INS.)—The Board of Estimate today passed a resolution requesting Gov. Lehman to call a special session of the State Legislature to enact emergency laws to enable the city to raise new funds to meet the unemployment relief crisis.

MEAT, POTATOES and GRAVY

MANY a meal is built around these three standbys—meat, potatoes and gravy. Invariably they are the first dishes that come to your mind as you plan your dinner.

But in spite of their hunger-satisfying and nourishing qualities, this time-honored triumvirate can become monotonous unless it is supplemented by other dishes.

However, it is often a problem to find these "side dishes" in your own head. Of course, you can quiz your neighbor, or ask the members of your family what they would like. But even this source of information is often lacking in ideas.

The thing to do is read the advertisements in your newspaper. Every day your local markets display their foodstuffs on those printed pages. You'll read of new vegetables and fruits that have "just arrived." Your appetite will be aroused by the tasty creations of national food manufacturers. With pencil and paper you can make your market list and menus before you step out of the house.

Speaking of monotony, consider this: There are 11 different cuts of beef, 9 cuts of veal, 7 of lamb, 10 of pork; there are at least 20 different breakfast cereals sold in every store, 16 different canned vegetables, 6 canned fruits, a dozen or more canned meats and fish, numberless varieties of cakes and crackers. Why should there be monotony in meals with such a variety of foods available at your store . . . and so many of them advertised in your paper?

TORTURE GANG FREES FACTOR FOR $50,000

was a section of a hardwood floor."

"I was held on the second floor of a farmhouse, which I believe was about one and one-half miles from La Grange."

La Grange is the suburb where Factor was released early today.

"A ring, which I sent to my family and friends with a piece of paper bearing my signature, was the only communication I sent out while I was held.

"The ransom was arranged in negotiations between friends of my family and friends of the kidnapers. It was paid in broad daylight outside of Chicago in five and ten dollar bills."

It was reported the $50,000 was a down payment, and that a smaller amount would be paid paid later.

GREETED BY WIFE

Factor, upon his release, was returned to Chicago in a police squad car, with his wife and son, Jerome, 19, himself a victim of kidnapers a few months ago, and his friend, Alderman Jacob Arbey, who drove to La Grange after word was flashed to them of the international speculator's freedom, following.

Mrs. Factor rushed into the La Grange Police Station, threw her arms around her husband, kissed him effusively and stood between him and photographers who had been preparing to take his picture. She said:

Later at the hotel a few pictures were taken after which all reporters were barred from the apartment.

After that it was said that it would be two or three days before Factor would be permitted to see newspapermen, and then only with the consent of the family physician. He is reported in a state of collapse.

RELEASE ENDS WIDE HUNT

Factor's release wrote finish to a search that extended almost to all corners of the United States. He was reported to have been in Oklahoma, in Texas, en route to Cuba, on the Atlantic seaboard, and on his way to Mexico. The British government charged his abduction was a hoax, arranged to prevent his extradition to England, but meanwhile local police held to a theory that members of the Roger Touhy gang, of Chicago, were responsible for his disappearance.

Capt. Gilbert, who was among investigators who theorized that the Touhy gang abducted Factor, said that he expected Mayor John Kelly to order out 200 men to search for the house where Factor was held.

'JAKE THE BARBER' TELLS OWN STORY OF KIDNAP TORTURE

By JOHN (Jake the Barber) FACTOR
International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 13.—After I was taken from my car near the Dells I was blindfolded immediately with strips of linen and adhesive tape. I was driven about for 20 or 30 minutes, in circles it seemed, right near where I was seized.

The men — I don't know how many of them there were—took me to a basement which had a concrete floor and an iron door. They didn't talk to me much, but they remarked that they were going to get $500,000 for me. They told me that I'd better get busy on the money, although they did not tell me what I was to do.

I didn't sleep at all that night, because the bed in the basement was full of vermin and I had to sit up in a chair. They kept my hands cuffed together in front of me, so that I couldn't move much either.

I thought daylight would never come, and with the tape over my eyes I wasn't sure even that I could tell when it was daylight.

The next night they took me out of the basement and put me on the floor of a car, with my face resting on the back seat. My eyes were still covered and the handcuffs were still on me.

There was another car behind the one I was in, and a third car in front of us. We drove for about an hour and finally arrived at a farmhouse. I'm sure of that because I could hear chickens, cows and farm machinery working.

The kidnapers got tough the second day. One of them said:

"You're going for a ride."

I figured everything was up. Especially when they pressed two machine guns against my neck and back and asked me:

"How does that feel?"

They wanted me to write notes to my family, but I refused to do that.

One time they held a big pair of shears close to my face and snipped them. They said they were going to cut my ears off, but when I kept on refusing to do what they wanted, they just seemed to change their minds and they never really hurt me.

Once they told me if I had any wealthy friends I wanted to put on the spot to be taken in my place, they would let me go.

I told them I didn't double-cross my friends and they gave up that kind of argument pretty quick.

Once they said my friends were talking too much. They got tough then and threatened to shoot me. But I told them I couldn't stop my friends from talking and they seemed to understand I was right.

They talked to me about my business and finances, and when I told them I couldn't meet their demands they called me a liar and threatened me.

I was in bed most of the time, but I didn't get much sleep. They offered to get me anything I wanted to eat, but I couldn't eat much either, because I was too nervous and had no appetite.

There wasn't much I could do because my eyes were covered all the time and my wrists held tight by the handcuffs. They did not give me any chance to shave or bathe either.

Sunday night they took my ring from my hand and said:

"We're going to send this to your wife so she'll know we've got you."

The last day I was with them they seemed cheerful and treated me well. There must have been an army of them around. Through a little slit in the tape I could see only the floor of the house where I was being kept, but in this way could see the men's feet. At times I realized, there were as many as 20 men in the room. They drank a good deal.

About 9:30 last night they told me they were going to take me out, and a few minutes later they pulled me to my feet and led me out of the house.

We drove about for quite a while, then one of the men opened a door of the car and told me to get out. They told me to stand still for a minute and then to take the bandage off my eyes.

They took off the handcuffs and one of them helped me out of the car.

I waited a minute until the car was driven away, then I pulled the bandage away, and started to walk. The next thing that happened I met the policeman and he took me to the station.

Now I'm going to try and sleep.

FIREARMS BAN DEMAND GROWS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—The growing congressional demand for federal regulation of the sale of firearms was indorsed today by Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, who declared it would tend to break up kidnaping gangs.

Barkley expressed concern over the far-flung activities of kidnapers in recent weeks. He pointed out that the kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, Jr., in Albany, N. Y., of August Luer in Alton, Ill., and of John Factor, in Chicago, followed closely upon similar crimes in Denver, St. Paul and Kansas City.

He declared:

"The brazen audacity of kidnaping gangs, who violate every sense of decency, as well as the law, in kidnaping people for ransom, arouses the wrath of every good citizen. The federal government, I am glad to see, is co-operating with the states to the full extent of its power to crush out these vicious bands."

MELLON SEEKS TO SETTLE SUIT

Representatives of Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, today were attempting settlement of delinquent taxes on properties near Camden, N. J., which reverted to him when purchasers were unable to satisfy claims against them.

H. A. Phillips, manager of the Mellon real estate ventures, has offered the town of Brooklawn, N. J., $15,000 in payment for a $29,900 delinquent tax claim against Mellon property there. He recently settled a $90,000 claim in the town of Belmar, N. J., for $45,000.

Phillips today said that the liens were for taxes and improvement bills unpaid by companies who purchased the land from the Mellon interests several years ago. When the companies failed recently, following the collapse of a real estate boom, the properties reverted to the Mellons with the liens against them.

RICH BOY FOILS ABDUCTION

EAST AURORA, N. Y., July 13.—(AP.)—Two men attempted to kidnap Frederic J. Persons, 16, the son of a local bank president, on July 7, East Aurora police revealed today.

Young Persons was homeward bound from a motion picture show about 11:30 at night when an automobile without lights drew up to the curb on the main street of the village. Two men in the front seat stepped out and seized the boy by the shoulders and attempted to force him into the car.

The boy, a high school football player, wrenched loose and fled.

The car sped away.

The boy is the son of Richard S. Persons, wealthy president of the Bank of East Aurora. Since the kidnap attempt, he has been under police guard.

ASSESSMENTS CUT ASKED

A 20 per cent reduction in county real estate assessments for 1934 has been asked of County Commissioners by the Taxation Committee of the Building Owners and Managers Association.

The request is made in a letter which also announces opposition to the borrowing of any more money by the county until some of its present debts have been paid. Strictest economy is urged for the rest of the year.

The committee also advises against borrowing any money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Scotland Yard for U. S. Planned by Roosevelt

By JOHN A KENNEDY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—President Roosevelt is evolving a plan for establishment of an American Scotland Yard to fight racketeering, kidnaping and other crimes.

His program calls for nation-wide organization to absorb present Federal investigating agencies and bring about a closer liaison between state and national crime detecting forces.

The President has had the proposal under consideration for some time but the present wave of kidnapings and racketeering crimes has convinced him the Federal government must expand its crime prevention forces.

Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings frankly admit the crime situation is out of control of state and local authorities.

The Roosevelt plan, patterned after England's famous Scotland Yard, was developed after conferences with high government officials.

It would call for the merging of the present bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, the famous intelligence unit of the Treasury Department which collected evidence on which the government convicted Al Capone and other gangsters, the mail fraud and train robber detective forces of the Post Office Department and possibly the Secret Service, which, in addition to guarding the President, also hunts down counterfeiting gangs.

The actual method by which the Federal government would join forces with the states is a stumbling block because of constitutional inhibitions against the Federal government's stepping over state boundaries.

MUM KIDNAPERS BALK HUNT FOR O'CONNELL

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.—(AP.)—The O'Connell brothers resigned themselves today to the grim prospect of a long wait for additional word or instruction from the daring abductors of their 24-year-old nephew, Lieut. John J. O'Connell, Jr.

State police and agents of the Department of Justice carried on their private investigations, the former law enforcement agency working in the vicinity of Greene County, and the federal authorities operating here, in New York City and in Buffalo.

Police officials of Albany and county governments, controlled for the last 10 years by the O'Connell political machine, continued their "hands off" policy.

AWAIT KIDNAPERS MOVE

By the admission of Dan O'Connell, one of the kidnaped youth's uncles, it was learned definitely that no word has been received from the kidnapers since last Monday when the O'Connell's received a telephone call and a note from the captors of O'Connell, Jr., who is being held for $250,000 ransom.

According to local reports, the O'Connells today were waiting for the kidnapers to either accept one of the 22 Albany men suggested by the brothers as intermediaries or to ask for another list.

FEAR FOR YOUTH'S SAFETY

Callers at the O'Connell summer home indicated that the political potentates, despite their dominant position in the city and county, have grown fearful for the safety of young O'Connell.

The failure of any of the 22 Albany men, who were designated to negotiate with the kidnapers, to establish any definite contacts since the young man was stolen last Friday has tended to discourage his uncles and father.

Mrs. Katherine O'Connell, the kidnaped youth's mother, is confined to her home where she is under the care of the family physician. She became ill worrying over her son's plight.

Wife Pleads for Word From Kidnaped Banker

ALTON, Ill., July 13.—(AP.)—A public appeal to the kidnapers of August Luer, wealthy 77-year-old banker and meat packer, to allow him to communicate with his wife and relieve her anxiety over his health, was made today by the two agents appointed by the Luer family to deal with the abductors.

Mrs. Luer, 75 years old, was described in the statement as "in an extremely nervous and distressed condition" because of worry over her husband's delicate health. He is a sufferer from heart disease and subject to frequent smothering attacks likely to prove fatal, physicians said, if he is roughly handled.

Luer was in captivity for 60 hours at the time the appeal was made by O. S. Catt and Lawrence Keller, Jr., employes of the Luer family in their bank and meat packing plant.

The statement said in part:

"In her deep distress and nervous condition, we fear the consequences to Mrs. Luer if word is not had immediately from her husband. She said this morning, 'Please, if I could just hear from papa'."

Catt and Keller, appointed yesterday as police agencies withdrew from the case to facilitate communication with the kidnapers, said today they had no word from Mr. Luer's abductors.

They said the family is prepared to pay a ransom, but it must not be large.

. . . The Men's Store, Main Floor . . .

Tattersal Check Ensembles, $2.50

Wear them with your Palm Beach or linen suit or sports outfit—they're a perfect match for light summer colors. Collar-attached shirt and hand-made tie of the same fabric—a soft-napped cotton—the smartest and most distinctive of the new plaid and check combinations that we have shown. In both light and dark tone effects.

. . . The Men's Store, Main Floor . . .

Sunshade Hats

A Mid-July Special

$2.95

The hotter the weather, the broader the brim, and these are the sunshade type of hats to lower July temperatures. Two models of hemp straw in white, pastel blue or pink, with organdie trimmings. And the same type in white rough straws, wreathed with bright garden flowers.

. . . Millinery Salons, Fourth Floor . . .

White

$10.75 to $16.75 Ensembles

$10

They are as fresh as white roses, and all ready to add to going-away wardrobes.

They include dressy and sports-type outfits, all-white, or white with colored trimmings and lacings; all of crepes that are assuredly washable.

There is choice of swagger or hip-length jackets, some of them sleeveless, some with novelty sleeves, and many with tricky shoulders.

Printed Smooth Crepes

$1 YARD

A similar sale a few weeks ago was a complete sell-out—proving that Pittsburgh women wanted quality silks! We quickly set out to repeat that event, and here are another 5,000 yards of the favorite summer weaves and prints . . . all Mallinson's silks, than which there are none finer. Every yard is pure-dye, which insures its laundering ability. The patterns and colors are this season's successes.

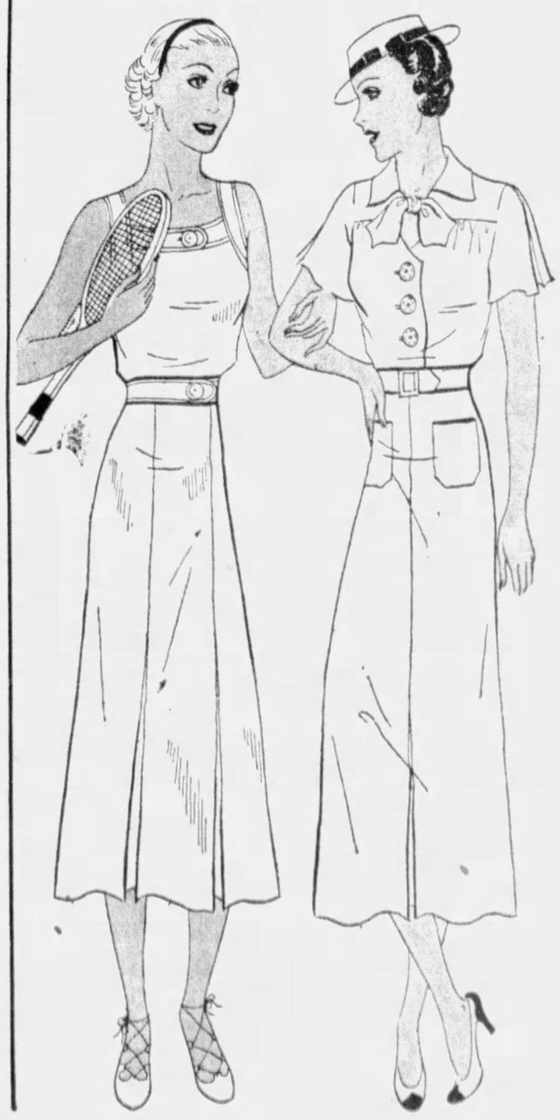
Included also is a group of Printed Lyn-A fabrics, a new silk shantung especially suitable for sports dresses.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Special! Sports Frocks

Cottons . . . Silks . . .

$5



Here is tonic for mid-summer wardrobes . . . a large group of women's and misses' silk or cotton frocks in the Sportswear Shop formerly $5.95 and $7.50.

The Cottons:

Tennis frocks of white pique, with all the popular necklines and shoulder finishes. Tennis shorts outfits of striped and cross-bar chambray. Two-piece frocks of striped and barred Sudanette.

Women's and misses' sizes.

The Silks:

White silk dresses predominate in the collection. Frocks with suntan tops for tennis, or for general sports wear when "burning" is desired, including the popular round-neck band-finished type, and models with bow shoulders. And sleeveless and short-sleeve dresses with high backs, for golf and spectator wear.

Women's and misses' sizes.

MONEY NEEDED ON FRESH AIR FARMS

The Lillian Fresh Air Home of Kingsley House, the Salvation Army Fresh Air Farm, the Volunteers of America Farm and the Improvement of the Poor Summer Home are all in need of contributions. Ten dollars will take one child for two weeks to any of these farms or homes.

This year social workers report the need is greater than ever. With camp facilities improved and enlarged in some cases, the greatest need is for money to pay current expenses—money to buy food and fresh milk which will restore rundown children and their mothers to health.

TO CURB ILLNESS

Additional money to take more children to a country camp this summer, doctors report, may prevent much serious illness and even sweeping epidemics in Pittsburgh this winter.

The hot crowded streets of the neighborhoods in which many of these children live, the poor food which is the best their families can provide, it is declared, has reduced hundreds of children to a pitiable health condition. Two weeks in the country, social workers say, would work wonders—and save lives.

Typical is Joan's case. Joan is a pale thin girl of 15, who has symptoms of tuberculosis and badly needs rest, air, and good food. She has co-operated with physicians in carrying out their recommendations, but has been unable to gain much strength or weight at home. She is eager to go to some camp where she can get fresh air and start her long climb back to health.

ALLEY DWELLER

Joan lives with her parents, three brothers and a sister in a narrow, crowded alley. Her father has been out of work five years. As he is old and ill, there is little hope that he will ever find work. Joan needs to go to camp—must, in fact, but how?

Send your contributions, any or all, to the following: Kingsley House, 220 Larimer avenue; Salvation Army, Boulevard of Allies; Volunteers of America, 724 East Diamond street; Association for Improvement of the Poor, Duquesne way.

Auto Vanishes Into Roadside Culvert

GREENSBURG Pa., July 13.—Motorists traveling on the Lincoln highway near Buttermilk Falls were shocked when they saw an auto suddenly disappear as if by the hand of a magician.

They found Cornelius Blochinger, of Carrick, sitting astonished but uninjured, at the bottom of a deep hole.

Blochinger, attempting to pass another car, had driven onto an intersecting country road and had plunged into the unprotected gulley.

CULBERTSONS' MATCH ENDS

PARIS, July 13. (AP.)—A dispute over the dealing of a hand terminated the Franco-American plafond match here last night six hands short of the arranged schedule.

The American team, captained by Ely Culbertson, was leading by 142 points at the end of the one hundred and second hand when an error in the previous hand was discovered.

A long discussion followed and at length an arrangement was agreed upon, but the French players did not wish to continue immediately and Culbertson and Mrs. Culbertson had to go to London today, so the competition was called off.

GRID STAR SUES FOR $250,000

DETROIT, Mich., July 13.—(INS.)—The $250,000 damage suit of Kenneth Strong, former New York University and all-America fullback, against a Detroit Physician, was before Federal Judge Ernest A. O'Brien, here today.

Strong charges Dr. Albert D. Laferte, of Detroit, removed the wrong bone in the second of two operations on his arm, permanently destroying his future in athletics.

Dr. Laferte, the athlete charges, performed two operations, removing the wrong bone in the second one. He has been unable to compete in any sport since.

MRS. DERN WILL CHRISTEN BOAT

A Diesel towboat, the Franklin D. Roosevelt, named in honor of the President, will be christened at the foot of Wood street Saturday morning by Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War.

Others taking part in the ceremonies include Secretary Dern, city officials and notables of Pittsburgh, and Maj. Gen. Ashburn, president of the Inland Waterways Corporation, and Mrs. Ashburn. The exercises will start at 11 a. m.

The boat, which will be put in use by the government, will be the newest and most modern in inland waterways. John Schuyler Casey, president of the Midland Barge Company, which built it, will act as host at a luncheon on the boat in honor of the Secretary of War and his wife.

Wheel 3 Years In Boy's Throat Removed

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—Five-year-old Donald (Bunny) Mills' aesophagus has surrendered a toy engine wheel, swallowed three years ago.

Recently, when Bunny's mother had him X-rayed, it was discovered that the wheel, which kept moving up and down, was causing the strange illness that had been troubling the boy.

So Bunny was taken to a doctor, whose skillful probing captured the troublesome object and removed it.

Clock Presented Retired Chief Clerk

Robert Torrence, who has resigned as chief clerk in the City Treasurer's office aftr 36 years' service with the city, was presented with a gold engraved clock late yesterday by employes of the Treasurer's and Delinquent Tax Collector offices. Mayor John S. Herron made the presentation.

STREET REPAIR SURVEY SET

Members of Council will inspect Sixteenth Ward streets requiring repair next Tuesday. A delegation of citizens from the ward, headed by E. J. Holland, told Council yesterday of the necessity of the repairs.

Streets named by the delegation were McCord, Shelly, Telescope, Concord, Stella, Mission, Stromberg, Sumner, Primrose, Sierra, Sterling and Greeley, and Oakley way.

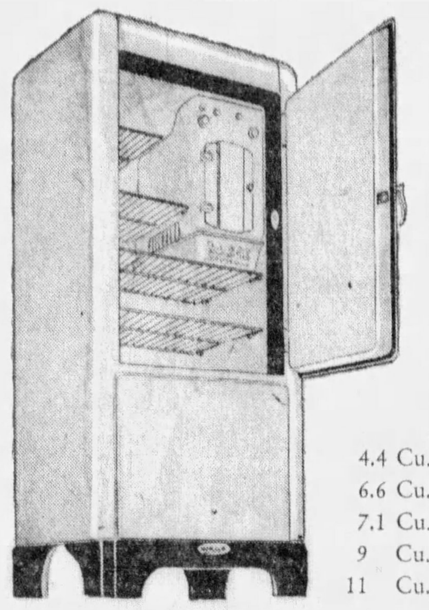
You Can Still Buy the New NORGE At Old Prices

There's been no advance in prices in the famous Rollator Refrigerator—but there has been an advance in beauty, in utility, in economy and in endurance. The New Norge will do everything you could possibly expect of an electric refrigerator—and do it economically and efficiently.

However, we cannot promise that Norge prices will remain low indefinitely, with commodity prices rising; we advise you to act upon that oft expressed wish to have an electric refrigerator, and see the Norge at Horne's tomorrow.



There's a Norge model for every home, for every pocketbook. And there is but one quality in Norge—every model, no matter how small or how large, has the exclusive Rollator mechanism that keeps down the operating cost of the Norge, that prolongs its active life.

Convenient payment arrangements may be made—you can pay for a Norge as you would pay your ice bill!

All Together!

BREATHES there a man (or a lady, either) with soul so dead that he can look at the laughing bubbles of a tall drink made with Canada Dry and not catch some of the laughter? Or see the sparkle in its depths and not feel gayer?

Certainly, there must be magic in Canada Dry. It doesn't merely mix . . . it blends!

Perhaps it's because of the pure Jamaica ginger we use . . . or again because of the charming flavor. Perhaps it's because of its purity. But the fact remains that a long, tall drink can never really be a long, tall drink unless it's made with The Champagne of Ginger Ales.

And you'd have a long search to find a beverage that's so good all by itself! And so cool and refreshing!

BIG BOTTLE 20c

(Plus 5c returnable bottle deposit)

Not just a large bottle but a BIG 28-ounce bottle making from 5 to 8 tall drinks. Canada Dry is also made-to-order by the glass at soda fountains.

CONTEST FAIR TRIPS COVER ALL COSTS

Everybody's excited about the 20 free five-day de luxe trips to the Chicago World's Fair the Sun-Telegraph is going to give away. Why not? There's certainly an unusual thrill about going to the wonderful Century of Progress exposition at the expense of somebody else.

Nearly everybody in Pittsburgh and vicinity has his mind set on getting out to Chicago before the summer is over and, of course, nearly all expect to foot the bills themselves. The Sun-Telegraph with the new "Ripley's Puzzlers" contest is going to make it a real snap for 20 readers of this newspaper. This is the number of free trips, all expenses paid, the Sun-Telegraph is going to give away as prizes in this fascination contest.

These trips include Pullmans, accommodations at a first class hotel, daily tickets to the fair grounds, tickets for the leading attractions, all meals every day and sight seeing tours in and around Chicago. That's the de luxe way of going to the World's Fair, isn't it?

It isn't too late to get in this contest and win one of these marvelous free trips. The contest is open to everyone—men and women, boys and girls. Contest picture and additional details will be found on another page of today's Sun-Telegraph.

All aboard! Let's go to Chicago.

HOME LOAN ACT FORUM -:- Ellenbogen Answers Queries in Broadcast -:- ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Grace George, Joe Penner With Rudy

Pittsburghers' queries as to "The Effects of the Home Loan Act" are answered by Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen during a dual broadcast over WJAS and KQV tonight at 8:45.

Coming from hundreds of home owners in the Pittsburgh area, the questions resulted from a previous Ellenbogen broadcast over WJAS several weeks ago. The forum tonight is slated for 15 minutes.

On WCAE at 11:15, Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, victor in the last election over Senator Thomas, speaks on "A Forward Step in International Relations."

* * *

Rudy's Show

Grace George, Cliff Edwards, Larry Adler and Joe Penner head Showman Rudy Vallee's weekly variety hour over WCAE at 8 p. m.

Mr. Penner

* * *

Chopin Life Drama

"Chopin," the English drama by Wilfred Rooke-Ley and Christopher Martin originally presented by BBC and later done over the NBC-blue net, is repeated over NBC-WCAE tonight at 10 o'clock in response to popular request.

To continue for an hour, the play reviews several episodes in the life of the composer as revealed by a beautiful Polish girl whose father forbade her marriage to Chopin.

* * *

Orchestra Moves

Ken Carrow's concert orchestra, with Tenor Edward Dunbar as soloist, popular KQV setup, moves to the WJAS waves for a half-hour program at 8 p. m.

'Mirror Mystery,' Thrilling Drama, Broadcast

Count Gerrard Daviller stood in front of his sweetheart's mirror, knotting his tie. Stealthitly, another face appeared in the mirror.

A French courtroom soon will thrill to the question, "Who Killed Count Daviller?

Today and tomorrow radio audiences will thrill to the "Mystery of the Mirror," to be broadcast over the following stations:

Today, WFBG, Altoona, 3 p. m.

Tomorrow, WSAZ, Huntington W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2 p. m.; WKBN, Youngstown, O., 4 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, O., 5 p. m., and WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.

The story of the "Mystery of the Mirror" is one of many fascinating features in next Sunday's issue of the American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

* * *

Ten a. m. on KDKA tomorrow brings the first of a new two-a-week series by the Five Leaf Clover Ensemble with excerpts from "The Student Prince" listed for the inaugural.

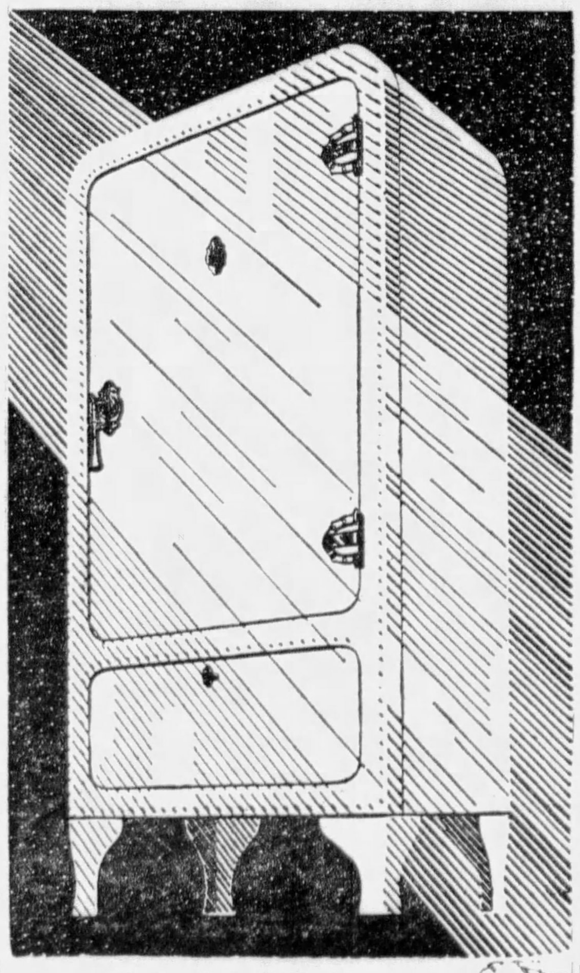
GRUNOW AT THE World's Fair
CHICAGO



The ONLY Refrigerator on Display in the Hall of Science at the Chicago World Fair

By appointment of the Commission of Scientists of the "Century of Progress," Grunow is SUPER-SAFE, because it uses the "Magic Refrigerant"

CARRENE

The signal honor of choosing the Grunow to be the only refrigerator in the Hall of Science cannot be bought, and it WAS NOT bought. Grunow was selected, because it is the ONLY household refrigerator using Carrene (non-explosive, non-inflammable, non-corrosive), because scientists know it is ten years ahead.

See It at SPEAR'S!

The careful Pittsburgher who wishes to protect food and health does not have to travel to Chicago to see how this wonderful new refrigerant CARRENE works. You can see the same thrilling demonstration right here in Pittsburgh at either Spear Store.

'Great Life' Opines King Of Jazz

By PAUL WHITEMAN
(Pinch-hitting for Aircaster)

Looking back:

Fighting a fellow-schoolmate for calling my dad a sissy, because he was the supervisor of music for the Denver Public Schools. . . . Playing hookey from a violin lesson to go out and pitch on the school baseball team. . . And then feeling so sorry about it that I played hookey from the next baseball game to catch up with my practicing on the violin.

Whiteman

Seeing an early movie in which the hero was a taxi driver and deciding that there was the life for me . . . Getting myself a job and cruising around in my hack, feeling like an awfully dashing young devil.

* * *

Getting a Job

Getting a job with the Denver Symphony Orchestra . . . Playing viola with that outfit . . . Being offered a job with one of the big eastern symphonies . . . As I was about to accept, getting a chance to join up with a 112-piece band at the Old Faithful Inn out at the San Francisco Fair . . . Jumping at the opportunity, and never regretting it . . . Meeting Art Hickman and learning of jazz . . . Which was a difficult thing in those days!!

Waking up one day to find out we were at war . . . Joining the Navy . . . Causing the Navy Department so much trouble getting me a uniform which would serve to adorn my 300 odd pounds that they decided I must be more than just a sailor . . . So they formed a 40-piece orchestra and let me direct it.

* * *

Losing Weight

Becoming ill after the armistice, and losing about 150 pounds in four months . . . Being sent to Santa Barbara to form a hotel orchestra.

Swinging the baton on Broadway for the first time . . . And watching the advent of the "Night-Club Era" . . . Being signed by Albee for the Palace.

Playing my first concert at Carnegie Hall, having the great thrill and honor to introduce to the public the talents of Ferde Grofe, my arranger . . . and playing the "Rhapsody in Blue" . . . seeing my great ambition come true—symphonic jazz, discarding its dunce-cap for a high hat which, I hope, has come to stay and claim its rightful position in American music.

* * *

Off to London

Going to London and entertaining at private parties for the British nobility . . . returning to New York, and getting my supreme thrill when I was selected and engaged by the Prince of Wales when he was visiting on Long Island.

Being asked by the National Broadcasting Company, on whose key stations I had played eight years before, to become musical director of the Chicago division . . . meeting Margaret Livingston, and losing the well-known equilibrium.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, the latest of the prominents to become globe trotters, enjoyed speaking to you.

You, no doubt, received the impression of a tremendously dynamic character. That impression would have been considerably enhanced if you could have watched her as she was relating some of the injustices to boys and girls.

That was no bombshell exploding during the broadcast; only the crash of a glass of water that was perched too precariously near the edge of the table.

* * *

Another entrant in the hollyhock contest is Mrs. Jennie Gable, Homestead, whose two plants are nine feet five inches and nine feet high.

* * *

Beaver Valley reader—It is not planned to have an office of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in each county of the state. Branches will be opened where needed. So far, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg have been named. Two more district offices are contemplated, but undoubtedly they will be located in the eastern part of the state.

Mrs. Sweeney—The Pittsburgh manager has been appointed and soon as he gets his force organized, applications will be received. The paper will keep you informed.

Anthony Jackson—Smithdale—Wrote to one of the music stores in Pittsburgh. They have, or will get you, the song you want.

* * *

William Schmidt, North Side, has a relic of other elections. It is a handsome badge bearing the legend "For Recorder," and the likeness of James C. Wynn, one time mayor of Allegheny.

10,000 ENTRIES IN $1.50 MENU CONTEST

The housewife who does not take pride in her ability to serve an appetizing dinner is an exception. Ten thousand already have indicated their interest in this important function by taking time for the preparation of their favorite dinner menus and entering them in the Sun-Telegraph Prudence Penny $100 weekly prize contest.

The Sun-Telegraph already has awarded $300 in cash prizes in these popular test for the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity and tomorrow the names of the winners in Contest No. 4 will be announced. This means another $100 to be given away.

If it has served no other purpose the Prudense Penny Dinner Menu Contest has awakened the housewives to the possibilities of saving money and serving better meals by careful shopping. These are the days when economy counts and, following the suggestions in many of the prize winning menus already printed in the Sun-Telegraph, the women have discovered that it is no hardship to serve four persons with a well-balanced appetizing dinner at a cost not to exceed $1.50.

Contest No. 5 is now on. Entries in this week's test do not have to be sumitted before Tuesday night. Housewives may submit as many entries as they wish. There is an entry blank and complete rules on another page of today's Sun-Telegraph. This is a splendid opportunity to win a cash prize for a little real effort. The first prize is $25.

Harmuth Attacks G.O.P. Legislators

An attack on the Republican organization's practices in the Legislature was made last night at a meeting of Democrats of South Fayette Township by State Representative Charles Harmuth. He said the organization bottled up bills in committee to defeat them.

The meeting was held in Eagles Hall, Sturgeon. Albert Wacker presided.

Milk Two Cents A Quart Here—Century Ago

Food prices in the nineteenth century were revealed today in an old daybook owned by the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries. The book was printed in 1829 and formerly belonged to a Pittsburgh grocer.

Back 100 years ago you could buy milk for two cents a quart, coffee for 15 cents a pound, five pounds of fish for 25 cents, three dozen eggs for 22 cents, three pounds of sugar for five cents, a loaf of bread for three cents and one pound of butter for 14 cents.

BODIES OF SLAIN TRIO FOUND

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 13.—(AP.)—The slaying of three men, whose nude bodies were recovered from the Trinity River, was precipitated, officers believe, by a dispute over division of $72,000 loot taken in a mail robbery here last February.

Bound together with meshed fence wire, the partially-submerged bodies were found under a bridge in the northeast section of Fort Worth last night. The victims were identified tentatively as Jack Sturdivant, 23, of Eula; Harry Rutherford, 28, of Abilene, and his brother, J. B. Rutherford, 30, of Dallas.

Suspicion the three had been killed was aroused Sunday night when their blood-stained and torn clothing was discovered in the river seven miles east of the city.

In their preliminary investigation officers jailed and filed murder charges for the suspected triple-slaying against O. D. Stevens, W. D. May, M. T. Howard and M. D. (Blackie) Howard.

The four slaying suspects, along with Claude Hill and Weldon Routt, were charged by federal authorities with the mail robbery.

Former Diplomat For Russia Dead

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP.)—Word of the death of Peter Botkin, Russian diplomat under the czarist regime, was received yesterday by a cousin, Miss Kate Kelsey. Botkin, who was in his 60's, died in Clarens, Switzerland.

Botkin represented Russia in the dispute between that country and the United States over seal preserves in the Bering Sea.

YOUTH KILLED BY TROLLEY

Carl Aronson, 23, of 118 Walter avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile and hurled under a Mt. Lebanon street car in West Liberty avenue, near Brookside avenue, yesterday.

Aronson died in South Side Hospital an hour later.

Aronson was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Henry R. Curry, of 2337 Bensonia avenue, when he and a companion, Bernard Abbott, 19, of 88 McClain street, jumped from the rear of a truck in which they were riding. Abbott escaped injury. Curry was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office.

NAME CHANGES UP TO COURT

Saying he changed his name when he moved from Michigan to Allegheny County 11 years ago, but not to avoid debts or taxes, Leslie Oliver Baker, 38, now of Unity, has petitioned Common Pleas Court for permission to make his legal name James Thomas Bowen. He says he married under the name of Bowen and is generally known by it. His plea will be heard September 25.

Thomas A. Dursie and his wife, Jennie, 910 Blackadore avenue, have asked legal right to change their name to Dorsey, by which they say they and their three children are known. Their hearing will be October 2.

Judge Smith to Speak At 31st Ward Rally

The Thirty-first Ward Civic and Welfare League will hold a mass meeting at Mifflin School, Lincoln Place, tomorrow night, at 8 p. m., to hear judicial candidates.

Speakers will include Judges Ralph H. Smith, Benjamin Lencher, Harry H. Rowand and Frank A. Piekarski and Attorney Alex P. Lindsay. All are candidates for election or re-election.

A. D. Brandon, former Morals Court Magistrate, a candidate for Council, will be another speaker.

Peer, Sweepstakes Promoter, Dies at 71

DUBLIN, July 13.—(AP.)—Sir James Craig, member of the Dail Eireann since 1921, promoter of Irish Hospital sweepstakes, and responsible for the first bill in the Dail which legalized these sweepstakes to raise money for hospitals, died here yesterday at the age of 71 years.

AUTO'S PLUNGE TIES UP TRAINS

Plunging down a 200-foot embankment in Stadium street, Esplen, a driverless automobile landed on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, tying up freight traffic almost two hours late yesterday.

The car, owned by John Campbell, of 319 Stadium street, struck a guy wire supporting an electric light pole, breaking one of the electric lines leading into the Scully yards of the railroad.

Residents of Stadium street said they had asked the city to erect a heavy guard rail at the top of the embankment. When election was nearing four years ago, the city erected a picket fence which was knocked down by trucks, the residents said.

Wife in Hospital, Husband Kills Self

Pittsburgher Again Head of Falcons

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—Dr. T. A. Starzynski, of Pittsburgh, yesterday was re-elected president of the Polish Falcons of America at the final session of the organization's convention. All other officers were re-elected.

No action was taken on proposals to move headquarters of the organization. New Haven, Conn., was chosen for the next triennial convention.

Movie Operators Oppose Park Films

City Council is studying a protest from motion picture operators against the showing of free films on weekdays in city parks. The Socialist party of Allegheny County has asked Council's permission to show free movies in the parks.

Prevention Is Better Than Cure

An opiate will dull periodic pain. But isn't it better to prevent the pain? Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets three or four days before the expected discomfort and notice the difference. If yours is a stubborn case, you may need to take these tablets regularly for a few months. Persistent use brings permanent relief. Clinical tests prove it.

No narcotics. No dizziness. No unpleasant after effects. Just little chocolate coated tablets that bring results. New size package—50¢ at all druggists.

MDIVANIS WON'T FIGHT DIVORCES

PARIS, July 13.—(AP.)—Prince Serge Mdivani said today that neither he nor his brother, Prince David, intends to contest suits for separation brought by their wives, Mary McCormic, the opera singer, and Mae Murray, film actress.

Both husbands, he added, retain for the wives "friendliness and a feeling of admiration."

The princes, members of Georgian nobility, will leave for the United States on the liner Europa Saturday to resume their oil business. Prince Serge denied they had had any difficulties in getting visas.

Mae Murray, film actress, is suing Prince David for divorce, and Mary McCormic, the opera singer, seeks separate maintenance from her husband, Prince Serge.

The two women as stockholders met recently at Los Angeles to oust the princes as directors and officers of the oil companies.

JAIL FARMER IN SHOOTING

INDIANA, Pa., July 13.—(AP.)—Charged with shooting Francis Walter, 19, during a quarrel over ownership of a wheat field, A. L. Yarnal, 56, a farmer, was in jail today.

The youth, with a shotgun wound in his back, is in a serious condition in an Indiana hospital.

Police say Walter and his father, Luther Walter, were fired upon by Yarnal yesterday while cutting wheat in the field.

They quote the prisoner as saying he shot into the woods after having been stoned by members of the Walter family. He admitted, the officer said, that the Walters planted the field.

OPERATION WINS YOUTH $3,250

HART, Mich., July 13.—(AP.)—A farm youth who submitted to a sterilization operation after he was accused of having contributed to the delinquency of a minor girl, was awarded $3,250 damages in Circuit Court here today.

The youth, William Wells, had sued for $30,000 on the ground that he had been coerced and was not fully aware of the nature of the operation.

He was awarded $1,750 from Henry I. Palmiter, former probate judge; $1,000 from Francis Hacket, former register of probate, and $500 from Guy Walker, former sheriff of Oceana County.

Council Head Denies Sharpsburg Deficit

Council President Alfred Pontello, of Sharpsburg, denied today that the borough is facing a $46,840 deficit, as charged by Councilman L. A. Bragg at last night's council meeting. Pontello disagreed sharply with Bragg's figures and stated that taxes soon due would take care of the deficit and that it would be wiped out entirely if percentage of tax collections and delinquent electric and water bills is increased.

W. VA. GUSHER AFIRE; 13 HURT

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 13—(AP.)—Five hours after it was brought in, a 3,700,000-foot gas well caught fire last night causing injuries to at least 13 persons.

Three workmen on the well suffered serious burns. They were C. H. Stickler and Dale Hager, 18, both of Hamlin, and Raymond Johnson, 28, of Huntington.

The well, located on a hill near Eighteenth street, was shot at 5:30 o'clock. At 8:45 o'clock, while a large crowd was gathered about, it burst into flames. The workmen and others near the giant well were burned before they could step back to safety.

MURDER 'LOAN' LAID TO WIFE

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 13.—(AP)—Testimony that Mrs. Ida May Shaw pledged $20,000 of her husband's property for a $150 loan was offered yesterday in her trial on a charge of slaying Arthur A. Shaw.

Prosecutor E. B. Pennybacker in his opening statement said the state will prove Mrs. Shaw borrowed the money to aid in obtaining a pardon for Eddie Crouch, convicted hold-up man.

Crouch was indicted as an accessory.

C. C. Dutton, representative of a Parkersburg loan company, testified Mrs. Shaw borrowed the money several weeks ago, before Shaw's death, and offered as security her husband's property which she described as worth $30,000.

The state charges a plot against Shaw, who was killed the night of June 20 as he stood in front of his garage. Harley Lemon, ex-convict and cousin of the 33-year-old widow, also is charged with murder. The state said he fired the shot that killed Shaw. Mrs. Myrtle Delaney was indicted as an accessory.

Mother Returns Boy to Guardian

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.—(AP)—Ten year old Robert Hackel was returned today to the Loudenville home of his legal guardian, Henry G. Adams, from which he was removed by his mother several days ago.

In a note to a newspaper, Mrs. Hackel said she and the boy had been visiting in Binghamton, and that permission to take him away for a visit had been granted her by Mrs. Adams.

C. E. MAPS WAR ON ATHEISM

MILWAUKEE, July 13.—(AP)—Seeking to combat what they described as a growth of radical atheism in Southern Europe, leaders of the World's Christian Endeavor Union today went forward with plans for holding the society's quadrennial convention in Budapest, Hungary, August 3-8, 1934.

Announcement of the choice was made at last night's session of the biennial convention of the International Society of Christian Endeavor. Dr. James Kelly, of Glasgow, Scotland, president of the European union, said the meeting would be a "little league of nations of Christian youth."

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of New York, president of the international society, and all other officers were re-elected.

MAX WINS POINT IN BALM SUIT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 13.—(AP)—Max Baer, heavyweight pugilist, won a decision in court yesterday when Judge Peter J. Shields sustained his demurrer in the $250,000 breach of promise suit filed against Baer by Miss Olive Beck, Livermore waitress.

The court held Miss Beck's complaint for damages is improper, not sufficiently stating facts sustaining her action. The court also held Miss Beck's allegation that Baer induced her to submit to an operation was not properly prepared. Her attorneys indicated they would file an amended complaint.

The original suit, filed last January, asserted Baer was engaged to Miss Beck but jilted her to marry Mrs. Dorothy Dunbar Wells de Corcon in Reno. Baer's wife has a divorce suit pending.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A CHAMPION FENCER!

● LEFT—GEORGE SANTELLI, who says: "I can enjoy as many Camels as I want and still know that my nerves are fit."

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
—that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.

● WHEN THE THRILL of a brilliant saber bout brings the crowd to its feet, and you know that you are excited, tense—light up a Camel and learn for yourself how true it is that Camels are the cigarette for steady smoking.

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

"A man can't fence his best unless his nerves are healthy," says George Santelli. "Fencing is one of the fastest sports there is—you've got to keep your reflexes and nerves in perfect condition. As a coach, I have fencing appointments from seven-thirty in the morning until ten or eleven at night. I can enjoy as many Camels as I want and still know that my nerves are ready and fit when fast action is needed."

° ° °

Camels, with their costlier tobaccos, give a pleasure that never fades. Steady smokers find them always mild...cool...pleasing. They do not fray the nerves or leave a "cigaretty" aftertaste. Start smoking Camels today—for the new enjoyment you will find in a milder cigarette—for the sake of your nerves.

DRIVE TO ASSIST GERMAN JEWS MAPPED HERE

The disposition of funds collected in Pittsburgh's campaign for relief of Jews in Germany was explained today by Leo Lehman, chairman of the Pittsburgh workers.

The money will be used to enable German Jews who wish to remain in Germany to do so. In this class of work is included temporary aid to intellectuals, professional men and women, commercial men, employees and workingmen.

Provisions will be made for emigration so that in event of an exodus from Germany, Jews may be directed into sound channels.

Aid will be given in the unavoidable process of repatriating Eastern Jewish residents of Germany, 40,000 to 50,000 of whom will be obliged to find their way out of Germany soon; as well as to welfare, philanthropic and caritable Jewish institutions.

The drive, which will include Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and parts of Nothern Ohio, will begin with a regional conference at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Concordia Club, and with a dinner that evening. Representatives of 40 communities will attend the conference when Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of New York, will recount his recent experiences in Germany.

HITLER WIDENS JEWISH BAN

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP.)—Jews were virtually barred from almost all retail and mercantile fields by a new decree, announced today, ordering employes throughout the reich to submit immediately a declaration that they are of non-Jewish extraction.

The order is predicated upon the employes being forced to become members in a huge government labor organization.

It goes beyond a previous decree and describes Aryans as those having parents and grandparents not of Jewish extraction and does not fix the degree of Jewish ancestry as previous orders did.

In the future it will be hard to find a job without a membership card in the government's organization.

Moonshine Seized In Downtown Raids

Moonshine was reported confiscated by Lieut. Albert Jones in raids on three alleged speakeasies in the downtown last night. Those arrested were Joseph Pamuchak, 425 Water street; Andy Avedir, 101 Grant street, and Goldie Buston, 213 First avenue, police said. They were charged with keeping disorderly houses. Four visitors were arrested in Pamuchak's place and three in Avedir's.

Paper Waits Nazi Reply on Hitler Descent

VIENNA, July 13.—(INS.)—The Tagblatt, Vienna newspaper, today looked to the German Nazis to issue "a very definite reply" to published allegations that Chancellor Adolf Hitler is of Jewish descent.

The paper referred in particular to a three-page story published in the Heimwehr organ, Oesterreichische Abendblatt, purporting to show that Hitler, who has removed Jews from all public offices in Germany, himself is directly descended on his mother's side from a Czechoslovakian Jewish family.

Reich to Withdraw Church Appointees

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP.)—All church commissioners appointed by federal or state governments, including Ludwig Mueller as commissary head of the Evangelical Church Union, will be withdrawn tomorrow, one of the closest confidants of Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, bishop of the Reich, said today.

By this withdrawal the first of three demands by the non-Nazi Protestants would be fulfilled and they could turn their energies toward the realization of the other two, freedom of the press and the use of radio by others than the Nazi German-Christians.

PITT STUDENTS TO MAKE TOUR

In an auto caravan, summer session students of the University of Pittsburgh will visit scenes of the Whisky Rebellion tomorrow and Saturday. The trip is sponsored jointly by the university and the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania.

Woodville, site of the home of Gen. George Neville, and the seat of the rebellion, and "Friendship Hill," the Fayette County home of Albert Gallatin, Secretary of the treasury under Jefferson, will be among the scenes visited. The party will stop overnight at Washington, and will eat lunch Saturday in Waynesburg, where the students will be addressed by Dr. Paul R. Stewart, president of Waynesburg College.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Responding to the Takeout Double

Some very good Bridge players, in responding to a Takeout Double or an Overcall in opponents' suit, always follow the rule of showing the best suit they hold, regardless of whether this is a major or minor. As a matter of fact, this procedure is incorrect and losing. Whenever possible, spades should be bid in preference to any other suit when the Opening bid has been either hearts, diamonds or clubs. When the responding player can find a heart response to partner's Takeout Double of an Opening spade bid, it should be made unless some other suit is so much longer and stronger that it conclusively settles the question.

West, dealer.

Mr. L. S. Ackerman
♠ A 8 5
♡ A K Q J 10
◇ K Q 6 2
♣ 9

Mr. Samuel Fry
♠ K 9 4 3 2
♡ 9 3
◇ 9 5 4 3
♣ 7 6

Mr. Lee Langdon
♠ Q J 10 7
♡ 4
◇ A J 10 7
♣ Q 10 4 2

Mr. Walter Malowan
♠ 6
♡ 8 7 6 5 2
◇ 8
♣ A K J 8 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	6 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

North's bid of two spades was, of course, the equivalent of a very strong Takeout Double. It showed a hand of greater honor strength than would a mere Double for a Takeout, although in view of the fact that North and South were vulnerable, the Double for a Takeout in this situation would show much more than a minimum Double in the hand. It is, of course, apparent, in looking at the cards, that West's Opening bid was a bluff, pure and simple. This bluff his partner tried to back up to the best of his ability.

If Mr. Malowan had responded to North's bid with a bid of four clubs, it is highly questionable whether he and Mr. Ackerman would have reached the Slam. However, South, on the basis of the Immediate Overcall in the opponents' bid suit, placed North with strength and probably length as well in hearts. Mr. Malowan himself held not only length in clubs, but top cards in the suit. Therefore North's Forcing Overcall must have as a basis strength in hearts and diamonds, and in view of the fact that this bid requires that the bidding continue until game is reached, North must have a tremendous hand.

Mr. Ackerman made the correct response. He reasoned that South, in view of the fact that he had bid freely when he could have passed, must have either the diamond Ace or the club ace, and the opposing bid of spades, which had been supported, suggested strongly that there could be no losers in spades for North and South. Reasoning thus, he correctly raised his partner's bid to a slam, which, of course, was made without the slightest difficulty.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	1 ♤	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

You, West, hold:
♠ J 8 6 3 ♡ J 5 3 ◇ 5 4 ♣ Q J 9 2

What do you lead?

Answer: Heart 3. With no particularly good suit of your own and an entryless hand, it is not even close that you should open your partner's suit. The correct lead is low from three to an honor, even though the honor is only the Knave. Declarer may hold something like four to the Queen-Ten, and if you lead the Knave, he will have two stops. By leading low you are preventing him from making more than 1 trick in the suit. Declarer may even hold Ace-King-Ten, in which case leading the Knave will give him 3 tricks in the suit, while leading low will hold him to 2.

RADIO TO OTHER PLANETS SEEN

Communication with other planets within the lifetime of the present generation was predicted today by Dr. Jerome Davis, author and Yale sociology professor.

A leader of the seminar of the National Religion and Labor Foundation now on its way to Detroit, Dr. Davis said he believed perfection of certain types of experimental short radio waves might lead to the establishment of interplanetary connection.

He also discussed the possibility of obtaining pictures of other planets by earth radio waves.

Dr. Davis said the wildest dreams of radio development would one day seem as ordinary as a Saturday night program. But he balked at the suggestion of interplanetary commerce, laughingly suggesting tariff difficulties.

Typhus Epidemic Denied by Soviet

MOSCOW, July 13.—(AP.)—The presence of "some" typhus in Moscow and vicinity was acknowledged today by A. Zaluski, member of the collegium of the Commissariat of Health, who denied, however, that the disease was epidemic.

A Hague dispatch of July 11 said that reports from Moscow told of a typhus epidemic there of alarming proportions, with hospitals crowded with victims of the disease.

Radio Announcer Fails to Get 9th Wife

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(Universal.)—Don Meaney, radio announcer, and Dorothy Brown (who was scheduled to become the ninth Mrs. Meaney yesterday at a ceremony at the 233 club) did not get married.

They did not get married because Miss Brown received a telegram from Walter Nillson, theatrical performer and her first husband, informing her that she was still his wife.

Miss Brown explained that she and Nillson were married six years ago in Paris and that after two days of marriage, they separated. She said she understood that a week after their separation, Nillson had obtained a French annulment, and it was not until yesterday that she found out that she was still married.

Fugitive Vanishes In Artist Colony

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—A prisoner awaiting trial on a charge of counterfeiting escaped from the Federal House of Detention today and, although police squad cars roared through the district a few minutes later, he disappeared in crowded Greenwich Village.

The prisoner, William Clune, 35, slipped through an unscreened second floor window of the detention house, lowered himself to a ledge five feet below, hung to this by his hands for a moment, police said, and then dropped 15 feet to the sidewalk.

PITTSBURGHERS IN SHIP CRASH

BALTIMORE, July 13.—(INS.)—The 50 passengers of the City of Baltimore, taken from the vessel yesterday after it collided with the oil tanker Beacon, in Chesapeake Bay, were being transferred today to the Baltimore Mail Line's City of Newport News, which sails for Havre tonight. Meanwhile, four tugs had brought the damaged liner from Gibson Island, where she grounded after the Beacon had torn a gaping hole in her prow, and tied her to her pier.

Divers are at work in the hold of the City of Baltimore to learn the extent of the damage and to assist in a twofold investigation of the accident for owners of the vessel and for United States Steamship officials.

Jack McFadden, of Mt. Washington, and now a student at Loyola College, Baltimore, was on the ship. He left Pittsburgh last week to make the crossing as an able seaman.

Named among the passengers was Mrs. Margaret Lyon, of Friendship avenue, Pittsburgh.

SANDS' DEATH LAID TO POTION

An overdose of sleeping medicine and not injuries caused the death of George V. Sands, Pittsburgh advertising man, according to an Associated Press dispatch telling of the coroner's jury action in Nassau yesterday.

Sands was found dead on a yacht Saturday morning. A letter received here yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Nanna Evans Sands, from a brother-in-law in Nassau, said injuries from a fall aboard the pitching yacht was the cause of death.

HENRY OUT FOR MAYOR ON DEMOCRATIC TICKET

POLITICS

Special Session During Summer Not Likely

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Prospects of a special session of the Legislature this summer now are so negligible as to be almost beyond consideration or probability.

Mr. Shields.

The only thing which would have authorized such a session was a sufficiency of pledges to guarantee the discharge of the committee considering old age pension legislation, bringing the question to a vote on the floor of the Legislature. When that issue was up in the Senate during the regular session the vote was 27 to 20 against discharging the committee.

Now groups and individuals interested in old age pensions profess an optimism because of questionnaires they have sent to Senators asking how they stand on the question at this date. The replies evidence an overwhelming sentiment for old age pensions, but not for discharging a recalcitrant committee, Senators continuing to fall back on the old fetish of Senatorial courtesy.

* * *

Coyne Would Vote For Age Pensions

As an example, Senator James J. Coyne would vote for old age pensions should the question come to the floor. He will not vote to discharge the committee. Other Senators take the same position, and analysis shows that practically no progress has been made in altering the situation which existed last May.

Gov. Pinchot offered to call a session if Republican State Chairman Martin would pledge the required votes. That Gen. Martin has not done, and only this week, when he departed for encampment at Mt. Gretna, he announced that politics for him was adjourned for two weeks.

It is also reliably understood that the Governor has received assurance from labor groups that the votes are not at hand to promote the old age pension issue to a place where it might be put on the ballot next November.

* * *

Special Session Next Winter More Likely

A special session next winter, antedating the statewide primary is more of a probability. And in that session the proponents of old age pensions will endeavor to cut through constitutional inhibitions and introduce a bill flatly providing old age pensions.

This plan was tried once before and held unconstitutional.

But it now is argued that, as the constitution is interpreted, old age pensions are no more unconstitutional than mothers' assistance, and if the Supreme Court should frown on one it would be compelled to frown on the other. This might be an embarrassing question to place before the court, and might impel it to some lattitude in parsing the constitution.

Furthermore, it is argued that the Supreme Court decision upholding the Talbot act for direct relief to the unemployed has set a new precedent changing the opinion laid down formerly in the old age pension case, and that if the state could give a gratuity to the unemployed it could do so to the aged.

* * *

Voting Against Bill Might Be Embarrassing

Voting against such a bill might be embarrassing to members of the Legislature, especially just before a primary, when many will be candidates for re-election. It is known that some senators who voted against old-age pensions find themselves now in difficulty, and three or four of the most reliable of the organization dependables see defeat looming for them unless there is some opportunity afforded them to clear away the onus of their last vote.

Down in Philadelphia Gov. Pinchot is reported to be attempting a fusion with the old Penrose-McNichol element against William S. Vare. The vehicle is the judicial election. In a lawyers' referendum two recent judicial appointees of the Governor were turned down, together with Judges Charles L. Brown and Eugene C. Bonniwell.

Brown was close to Penrose, but has been a Vare target. Bonniwell is a wet Democrat, who supported Pinchot in 1930.

* * *

Rough Going Likely for Pinchot Appointees

The probabilities are that the Pinchot appointments will find the going hard. Mr. Pinchot made them to the displeasure of some of his closest friends, who were amazed and disconcerted when the names were announced.

They are known to have felt that, had he attempted an overture to John McGarvey in at least one of the appointments he might have done better, and could have avoided some of the difficulty which now faces him and his nominees.

Pinchot affiliates in Philadelphia say the Bar Association has lent itself to the Vare influence, and the upshot will be a bitter fight which may have a bearing on the next state campaign.

Intrusion Mars Foreign Star's Triumph

PREMIERE

By Robert Terry Shannon

CHAPTER I.

The radio announcer stood beside his microphone with a fox-smile on his face and a sleek dinner coat on his back. Great drumshaped searchlights poured floods of glaring illumination into the forecourt of the theater giving everyone a look of waxen artificiality.

Here in the balmy open air, amid Babylonian columns with the starry sky overhead and marble mosaics underfoot, mingled the most beautiful women and the best-fed men on earth. The rabble—too far back to smell the expensive perfumes—was held in check by ropes and policemen who wore white gloves for the unusual occasion.

Whenever a polished motor car brought up another star, or even an established featured player, the multitudes on the sidewalk cheered and clapped hands. The announcer's excited voice began to fall over itself.

"'Just a minute folks! Here comes Sybil Hall, the screen star! She's wearing a—ha! ha!—good evening, Miss Hall. Miss Hall—Miss Hall—ha! ha!—would you say a few words in the microphone, please, to the folks out there on the air . . ."

Miss Hall consented in a voice warm and living. A silvery evening dress glistened on her body. The announcer's eyes worshipped her loveliness, for a moment before he turned to worship the next glittering arrival.

Before the evening was over the whole galaxy of Hollywood passed before the microphone and said approximately the same thing. All confessed themselves to be in a high state of excited anticipation and professed the keenest affection for the absent Leni Luneska.

The announcer, who was not going to see the picture at all, declared repeatedly that motion picture history was being made tonight and his words grew increasingly electrical.

At home, his wife listened in a shuddering fear that his tongue would slip and he would say what he really thought about the whole affair. It had never happened, but Mrs. Announcer lived in terror until all was safely over.

GAMBLER GREETED

A stocky gentleman arrived and spoke a few words into the ether. He was the mayor of the city.

A domestic-looking man in a gray suit—Tom Mulrooney, chief of detectives—was ignored by the announcer and passed inconspicuously into the theater.

The announcer craned his neck hopefully toward the curb as a tall young man wearing a negligent top coat over his dinner jacket approached. Several women turned their heads to look at him.

This was Lucky Cavanaugh—gambler—with his athlete's body and step elastic as a cat's. His skin was clear and tanned over high cheekbones, a bold Roman nose, and a solid chin. The eyes were gray, steady, unconsciously arrogant.

No one mistook him for an actor.

The bony structure of his countenance belonged to a generation antedating Hollywood; to the period of frontier and plain and sun-baked cattle towns. This heritage was in his face yet his voice vibrated musically and his manners bore the unmistakable stamp of a cultured superiority.

"And here comes Lucky Cavanaugh!" cried the announcer into his contraption. "There's a rumor around he broke the bank at Caliente last week. Maybe he'll give us his system."

ADMIRES ACTRESS

The young man smiled faintly and addressed the microphone.

"Don't you believe a word of it, citizens," he said easily. "There's only one way to beat roulette—and that is to own the wheel. I didn't."

There was a burst of cheering from the street and Leni Luneska arrived triumphantly on the arm of a middle-aged gentleman in a silk hat.

She was small and slim in an evening wrap of platinum material wrapped tightly across her figure. The searchlights gave her a metallic sheen; around her blonde head there was, almost, an aura.

Her voice when she spoke for the radio audience was slightly agitated and had the quality of golden wine with bubbles rising. The scarcely perceptible accent carried the flavor of Europe.

"This night," she said, "is the climax of all that I have ever dreamed for and hoped for and worked for. If I am happy, I am also a little frightened. Give me, please, your good thoughts."

Lucky Cavanaugh took off his dark felt hat and stood quite near, watching her. As she left the microphone it was necessary for him to stand aside.

She passed so near that he sensed magnetic radiations from her body. Her face had the fresh young vitality of a flower, but the violet-colored eyes were slightly shadowed as from fatigue.

Lucky Cavanaugh's admiration suddenly was completed by a twinge of pity. He had caught, with his gambler's sixth sense, the bewilderment, the lonely and troubled uncertainty of the lovely Leni Luneska as she stood balanced precariously on the very pinnacle of fame.

This knowledge was purely instinctive with him. He was, by profession, a gambler and endowed with some strange quality of human understanding akin to telepathy. Frequently this sense deceived him, but more often it was amazingly accurate.

MAN EVADES POLICE

Up until this moment the matter had been only idle speculation with him when a man's gutteral voice broke out from the crowd held back by the cordon of ropes and policemen.

"Leni! Leni! It is I—Karl! Karl Kruger!"

The voice, apparently, struck the girl like a bullet. She stopped and even before she turned her head, the color began to recede from her face.

Before the nearest policeman could stop him, he had stooped and dashed under the rope like an animal. With rapid steps he crossed the forecourt and was beside her. Lucky Cavanaugh, no more than five feet from Leni Luneska, saw and heard. The man was a foreigner, shabby, emaciated. His eyes protruded and burned with excitement. The lips were thin and slightly twisted.

"I am starving, Leni!" he rattled in his throat. "Do you want me to tell everybody—the whole world—to shout it from the housetops—" He began to fling his hand and change color as policemen came rushing up. "Tell them I'm all right, Leni!"

Leni Luneska's face became smooth white marble. As the police seized the man, she spoke in strained, muffled words.

"Leave him alone, please . . . I will speak with him . . . old acquaintance . . . later—on the inside. . . ."

FOLLOWS STAR

Her escort's face was blank with lack of understanding, but Karl Kruger's step was jaunty as he walked behind the girl. There was no trouble at the door. Luneska's word was sufficient. Directly after Kruger sauntered Lucky Cavanaugh, utterly at ease.

Passing through the first doors of the theater, Leni Luneska and her escort found themselves in a richly-carpeted vastness where golden light shone upon panoramic murals and softly-gleaming statuary.

Karl Kruger, with unshaven face and soiled collar, kept his shapeless felt hat on his head and followed defiantly at Leni's heels. A number of elegant people were looking at him as though he polluted the atmosphere.

"What are you—a panhandler?" he asked. "You're embarrassing Miss Luneska. Take this and get out."

"I want a word with the lady," he said astonishingly. "Do you want to have it in private, Leni, or in public?"

"Will you wait, Karl—please," said Leni tensely. Her throat

Constable's Stolen Automobile Found

The automobile of Constable Paul Broome, of Oakdale, taken from him by two armed men whom he stopped to question in the Steubenville pike early yesterday, was found abandoned early today on the South Side.

WORKMEN'S ACT CHANGE URGED AT PROBE

Alteration Proposed After Compensation Law Attacks

With a series of witnesses attacking the administration of the workmen's compensation act, David Hickey, for the United Mine Workers, today urged that the law be changed to provide:

Compensation for occupational diseases, disfigurement, to permit step-parents and crippled dependents of 16 to be beneficiaries.

That the law give two years to file, instead of the present one-year limit, and that the board seek an actual weekly wage base, rather than one measured by part-time work.

LAW NULLIFIED

Following testimony of Attorney S. V. Albo, who told how Mateo Beshenick, injured on a mine motor car in 1929, had been refused compensation because of a clause in the lw which is interpreted as forbidding him to ride such a car, Roger Deever, member of the commission, commented:

"All you have to do to nullify the protection which should be given the workmen's compensation act is to provide safety laws depriving injured or dependents of such protection."

Francis Feehan, United States mine commissioner, agreed that such a law change should be made to cover cases like Beshenick's.

14 COMPLAIN

Of the 14 witnesses who complained, during the morning session, of the administration of the act, three stated they wrote to the bureau for certificates concerning their injured, but were ignored. One wrote six letters, and received no answer, he said.

Another told of the failure of his employer to report his injury, thus making it impossible for him to apply for compensation.

BOY SWIMMER DROWNED

James Skelly, 14, of 805 Coalmont avenue, North Braddock, was drowned last night in a public swimming pool near Delmont, according to an Associated Press dispatch today from Greensburg.

The lad, with a party of Boy Scouts from North Braddock, had gone to the pool to swim. When they left the pool, young Skelly asked to get a drink of water, and, when he did not return, it was thought he had gone to visit relatives. However, his body was found by a life guard, Joseph Emico, after the Scout troop had departed.

Skelly was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skelly and a sixth grade student at the Shady Park School.

"No! I Just Wanna Go Back Home"

"COME, NOW, BILLY, PLEASE EAT" . . . "I'M NOT HUNGRY. WHAT TIME WILL I GO HOME?"

'NET' CHOICY ABOUT NEIGHBORS

Protests New Filling Station Next to Property

Nettie Gordon is particular about her neighbors. The widely-known North Side woman who last night was held for court under $1,000 bond as the keeper of a disorderly house, went to court today to show just how particular she can be.

Nettie asked for an injunction to restrain the Vacuum Oil Company from building a gasoline station on property in Perrysville avenue near Legion street which has been leased from the Observatory Post, American Legion. She owns property nearby.

Similar suits were filed by two other property owners, Joseph Duty and Joseph Corriols.

NETTIE BEING SOUGHT

Nettie may be called upon to testify if subpena servers for the defense can find her.

A battery of legal talent for the reputed queen of the North Side underworld failed last night to convince Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan that she didn't maintain a disorderly house in Plush way.

For the second time within a week "Net" appeared, heavily veiled and dressed in black, before Squire Morgan in connection with the raid that the squire's roving constables and state police staged more than two weeks ago.

The only time the veil was lifted from "Net's" face was when the squire herself peeked under to be sure the woman arraigned before her really was "Net." It was. A host of friends accompanied her to the hearing.

The hearing a week ago was continued to permit the prosecution to get the testimony of persons to whom the rent for the Plush way house was paid.

RENT NOT PAID

The prosecution's witness was W. W. Warwick, representative of a downtown trust company, whose first bit of testimony brought out that no rent had been paid at all for a year.

Warwick testified "Net" called at his bank to see him shortly after he had left his card at the Plush way address. "Net" holds a second mortgage of $20,000 on the property, he said.

He admitted he had never seen Mrs. Gordon in the house nor had collected any rent from her.

Records at the County Recorder of Deeds office show that Herman J. Seehausen and the William T. Shaffer estate own the property subject to a $45,000 first mortgage held by the trust company and Mrs. Gordon's second mortgage.

It was brought out in Seehausen's testimony that one Anna Hargis was the nominal tenant of the property.

ACT 2: NETTIE'S SECOND HEARING

W. RODY RUTTENBUSCH NETTIE GORDON "NEPHEW" LOUIS LITTLE

Nettie Gordon, reputed queenpin of the North Side underworld, pictured in her second hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan at Sewickley as Attorneys Ruttenbusch and Little failed to convince Mrs. Morgan that their client did not operate a disorderly house in Plush way. It was explained that veiled Nettie this time leaned upon her nephew, not a bodyguard as she did in her first hearing. Act 3: Later, in court. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 13.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I see by the papers where my old Governor friend Bill Murray, of Oklahoma, called out the National Guard to keep the folks from voting for beer. Now he will have to call out the U. S. Army to keep the folks from celebrating the voting of beer.

Will Rogers

The London conference has decided to hold for two more weeks, in order for the hotels to kinder play even on the thing, and give the American delegation a little golf against the Prince of Wales. There is nothing as sad, forlorn, and forgotten, in the world as a delegation returning from a conference. We have forgot now who we sent over.

Yours, WILL.

Democrats as well as Republicans are assured of a bitter factional fight in the September primary with the announcement of Attorney John M. Henry of his candidacy for the mayoralty nomination of the minority party.

Henry and the Democratic organization, led by County Chairman David L. Lawrence, have been bitterly at war, and a series of conferences designed to select a candidate behind whom all factions might unite have failed.

Henry and Attorney E. Lowry Humes refused to accept any of the names suggested by the organization leaders.

With Henry a candidate, the organization now is expected to enter its own favorite. Representative John Kane is growing in favor with Lawrence and his associates, and a mass meeting to stimulate interest in Kane will be held Saturday night. Attorney William N. McNair, a candidate for the United States Senate in 1928, is another being considered by the organization.

HORNBOSTEL OUT

Henry Hornbostel, prominently mentioned at one time, appears to have been discarded as a probability.

Henry, a former member of the Registration Commission, was ousted by Gov. Pinchot last winter at the behest of Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey. No charges were preferred against Henry, and his place on the commission was a part of the patronage given the Democrats by the Governor in return for their assistance to his program in the Legislature.

Henry in his announcement praised the leadership of President Roosevelt, represented by Guffey in Pennsylvania. He pledged war on rackets and an effort toward economy in government and lower taxes. He said:

"Many citizens from all parts of the city of Pittsburgh have urged me to present my name as a candidate for the office of Mayor in the Democratic primaries. They contend that the city should not be governed for the benefit of special groups, clans and factions, but for the good of the whole community. They, like myself, oppose Coyne and all that he represents.

TAX REDUCTION

"These citizens demand a reduction of the tax burden through an honest, efficient expenditure of tax money, a complete clean-up and reorganization of the Department of Public Safety, honest elections and a vigorous stamping out of the rackets that disgrace the name of the city and play such a prominent part in debauching elections.

"Pittsburgh has been crippled for years in her natural development by reason of a form of political control, whereby special groups have worked hand in hand with political racketeers, each seeking some special benefit at public expense. It is time to think of the public interest. Privilege at public expense must end."

Mr. Henry has been a member of the Allegheny County Bar since 1909. In 1917 he was Assistant United States District Attorney for Western Pennsylvania.

Collects Orchestra Publicity as Hobby

Michael began collecting pictures of orchestras, players and hand bills relating to crooners and dance bands when he saw a cartoon drawn by Robert Ripley in "Believe It or Not," famous Sun-Telegraph feature.

Young Vehoskey, who is a clerk in a Duquesne drug store, and goes to many dances, became enthusiastic when he met Bunch that night.

He has been offered large sums for some of the rare pictures of old orchestras and players which his collection now contains. It fills more than 1,000 pages tied into three large albums.

COUNTY LEGION CHIEF OUT FOR SHERIFF

Announces

ROBERT K. COCHRANE, JR.

Mr. Cochrane, county commander of the American Legion, who today announced himself a primary candidate for Sheriff.

Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., county commander of the American Legion, today announced as a candidate for Sheriff in the primary.

Cochrane, a resident of Brentwood, was born on the North Side in 1894. He attended North Side schools and Penn State, leaving college to enter the Army at the beginning of the World War.

He is secretary of the Pittsburgh Builders Exchange, member of the North Side Board of Trade, Rotary Club, Reserve Officers' Association and the board of management of the Allegheny Branch Y. M. C. A.

Cochrane is a past commander of Manchester Post of the legion.

Outlining the policies he would pursue as Sheriff, Cochrane said:

"If elected it will be my aim and purpose to conduct the Sheriff's office in a businesslike manner, performing the duties assigned to the office with promptness and dispatch, insisting that every employe shall render a full measure of service with utmost courtesy to those affected."

Held Without Cause, Prisoner Declares

Asserting he is being held in jail without cause, Andy Lacy is seeking release through habeas corpus proceedings in Common Pleas Court.

Arrested in Munhall, July 4, he declared, he was held at South Side police station for two days, and then taken to jail where he has since been detained on charges of being a suspicious person. He says he does not know why he is being imprisoned.

Jap Planes Bomb Gen. Feng's Army

SHANGHAI, July 13.—(INS.)—The "anti-Japanese" army of Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, China's "Christian general," was bombed by Japanese airplanes today in the third day's fighting for control of Dolonor, in Chahar Province.

Reinforcements were rushed to both sides as the Chinese leader, battling combined Manchukuo and Japanese forces, sought to recapture the stronghold.

Men smile at my simple reasoning

Whenever the subject of cigarettes comes up, I sit back quietly and let the men explain about the "Toasting" process. Then, if they ask my opinion, I'm pretty frank and tell them why "Luckies please"—me, at least. After all, there's an intimate relationship between a cigarette and my lips—and I'm very sensitive about my personal daintiness. Certainly I enjoy Luckies' delicious tobaccos and their mellow-mildness—but the comforting purity of "Toasting" is what I prize almost above everything else. And that is a woman's reason for saying "Luckies Please!"

WORLD'S FAIR

Will Be Given Away as Awards

Everything de luxe—5 full days—Pullmans, first-class hotels, tickets for the Fair and leading attractions. All your meals, sightseeing tours around Chicago, etc., etc.

RIPLEY'S PUZZLERS

HERE ARE THE RULES... CAREFULLY READ THEM!

1—Everyone is eligible to participate in the "Ripley Puzzlers," except employees of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—Every day from July 11th to August 9th, inclusive, 10 Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley Sport page feature. The description to each picture will be published in the Classified Ad columns.

3—The new "Ripley's Puzzlers" contest consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have 30 complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them to the "Ripley's Puzzlers" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Sqare, Pittsburgh, Pa.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than Saturday, August 12th, at midnight. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—Twenty all expenses paid 5-day trips to the Chicago World's Fair will be awarded as the prizes. The 20 entrants sending in the most nearly correct and the most neatly prepared complete set of pictures at the close of the contest will be awarded these trips.

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decision of these judges as final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be given to each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at the office or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

It Isn't Too Late to Start

For readers who failed to get Contest Pictures No. 1 and No. 2, which appeared in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, back copies of this edition are available in the Circulation Department of the Sun-Telegraph. This Tuesday edition, containing the first "Puzzlers," will be mailed to you upon receipt of three cents. Address Circulation Department "B," Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. This will start you in the contest on the same basis with all others.

POLITICIANS GET CITY RELIEF POSTS

Politicians and former payrollers, cut off in last year's budget sessions, have been given good jobs in the new relief work campaign made possible by the $2,000,000 bond issue voted by the people.

Justus Schroedel, chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward and former superintendent of buildings and grounds in the City Bureau of Recreation, is back at work at $10 per day as general construction overseer of labor on the North Side.

DEFENDED BY HERRON

Other appointments to similar jobs include Charles A. Hillegas, former chairman of the Thirteenth Ward, and last year superintendent in the City Bureau of Highways and Sewers, and John J. Ryan, former contractor, who handled a number of city contracts.

Mayor John S. Herron, who runs for re-election next fall, vigorously defended the appointments. He said:

"We feel these men are entitled to the positions because of their ability. Their activity in politics cannot be regarded as a handicap. Many of our appointees are purely technical men who have never had any political connections. With thousands of men out of work, it would be too much to expect that any appointment would meet with the approval of all."

LAUDS HILLEGAS

Mayor Herron then spoke highly of the executive ability of Schroedel and Hillegas. Referring to the fact that relief funds are used in the re-hiring, Herron said:

"You can rest assured we will not attempt to play politics with public funds."

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang cited the earlier slashes in his department in which "the personnel or the political aspects were not considered," and said:

"Now when work is to be had, it is only natural and right that men familiar with the work should be called to serve rather than new men who, while probably more technically trained, are not familiar with it."

Another city employe brought back on a $6-per-day job is Henry E. Jordan, former assistant chief inspector of the Bureau of Weights and Measures. Jordan also was dismissed at budget time.

P. J. Casey, chairman of the Fourteenth Ward, whose daughter was put on the relief payroll at 50 cents an hour as stenographer, has a job as deputy sheriff at $140 a month, it was learned. Genevieve, another Casey daughter, is on the payroll of Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller, at $4 a day as a clerk.

Other $10-a-day overseers appointed were Norman Regelman, of 4020 Mintwood street, and A. A. Izenour, of 3051 Bergmann street.

The overseers are already employed. They are preparing to put to work 345 laborers Monday at improving dirt streets. The work is being paid for out of $300,000 appropriated from the $2,000,000 work relief bond issue.

LYNCH ENTERS COUNCIL RACE

Joseph R. Lynch, a member of the Legislature from the First District, and a resident of the Fifth Ward, today announced as a candidate for a Republican nomination for City Council.

Mr. Lynch

Lynch, who has been a regular orgnization follower, declared he was the candidate of no political faction in the present campaign, but would seek help from all sources. It is improbable he will be slated by the city organization, which has a present intention of backing the five sitting councilmen who will seek nomination.

In announcing Lynch said that his experience in Harrisburg, beginning in 1924, had helped acquaint him with municipal problems, as under the city charter the Legislature must be appealed to for laws dealing with local affairs. He declared he was for a tax rate as low as consistent with the efficient operation of the city, and for the best possible wage to men employed on municipal construction projects.

Rejoices at Return To His Prison 'Home'

KANSAS CITY, Kan., July 13.—(AP.)—Luke Parsons, who has called prison his home for 27 of his 65 years, is glad to go back after three months of wandering.

Parsons announced his pleasure when Judge C. A. Miller sentenced him to four years on an arson charge. He admitted he set fire to a farmer's barn and said he was weary of travel.

Swept Over Dam, Boy Saved by Pal

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., July 13.—Robert Worcester, 13, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday when swift water of the Monongahela River swept him over the dam at Lock No. 5 here. He was rescued by a companion, Dale Swogger, and taken to General Hospital for treatment of severe lacerations.

Shot Wounds Man Standing at Window

Edward Jones, 335, a Negro, of 1917 Irwin avenue, was shot in the left hand while standing at a window in his home last night. He was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

A short time later police reported arresting Harry Evans, 16, of 1911 Brighton road, and confiscating a .22-caliber rifle which he was using in target practice.

The social season will have as its prelude a most notable wedding to take place in the fall—that of Mary Franklin Robinson and William D. George, Jr. Mary has named September 25 as the date for her marriage to take place at Franklin Farms, the Sewickley Heights place of her parents, the William Christopher Robinsons.

Her engagement to Mr. George, son of the William D. Georges, o. Sewickley, was announced in the spring. Of course there are no details completed for the wedding. The bride-to-be plans, by the way, to be in Sewickley for the greater part of the summer.

* * *

Another debutante, and a most charming one, has been added to the list of girls who'll make their bows to the social world in the fall. Just what the total number of bowing debs will be I'm not going to venture to say, because by the time the number would be in print, it might be wrong—so many additions are being made.

The charming addition to the list is young Mary Ormsby Sutton, daughter of the J. Blair Suttons and a niece of Miss Edna Sutton. Mary is a graduate of Permata School and of Sarah Lawrence College. Her father and stepmother will present her at a dinner-dance in the Allegheny Country Club December 22.

December 21 has been taken by the junior C. L. Pierces, when they will present their daughter, Barbara, at a tea in their home.

* * *

Good news of the eventful fall-to-come: the Columbus Day races will be held this year as usual—October 12, of course, on the George R. McNary farm, Greensburg. The Western Pennsylvania Hunts Association always arranges the affair.

* * *

If August is sizzling, as it usually is, members of Longue Vue Country Club who are staying at home this summer—and many folks are—will find the club's new pool a haven from many torrid hours.

The new pool, being erected near the tennis courts of the club, and in sight of the terraces of the clubhouse, will be finished perhaps by July 29. It may be a few days later.

When the pool is ready for swimming, there's to be a grand opening, with swimming, of course, and dancing and dining.

There'll be a large pool for serious swimmers, 45 by 90 feet, and a little wading pool for children—30 by 50 feet. And here's some colorful news. Next spring the club directors will have several hundred cabanas in Palm Beach style erected about the pool.

For the remainder of this season, temporary dressing rooms will be arranged.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Field Club has extended the courtesies of the clubhouse to the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh for Thursday, July 20.

* * *

After a buffet supper at the Wildwood Country Club Saturday there'll be boxing in the natural arena next to the practice tee. As I mentioned before, there'll be a mixed two-ball foursome in the afternoon. And there'll be dancing in the lounge and on the porches of the clubhouse after the boxing is over.

Announcements Made of Two Marriages

Two weddings being announced this week are those of Miss Belle Weiner and Miss Jeanne Olive Scholl.

Miss Scholl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Scholl, of McMunn avenue, Crafton, became the bride of John F. Fitzharris, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Fitzharris, of McMunn avenue, on June 29 in Washington, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Indiana Teachers' College, and the bridegroom attended the University of Pittsburgh.

The marriage of Miss Belle I. Weiner, who is the daughter of Mrs. Sadie B. Weiner, of Chislett street, to Rubin E. Slarkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Slarkin, was solemnized in the Weiner home on Sunday. Officiating was Rabbi Julius Bloom, in the presence of the families.

The bride wore an ensemble of powder blue with a shoulder corsage of gardenias and orchids. She was given in marriage by her brother, Nathan Weiner. Isadore E. Slarkin was his brother's best man. Mrs. Isadore E. Slarkin, sister of the bride, played the wedding music and Mrs. Madelyn E. Weiner sang.

Mr. and Mrs. Slarkin sailed to Bermuda on their honeymoon.

Capt. R. E. Dake Is Married in California

Announcement is made of the marriage on Monday of Mrs. Claris P. Young, of Los Angeles, to Capt. Robert E. Dake, son of Mrs. E. J. Dake, of Cordova road. The marriage was solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Crosby of Los Angeles, with the Rev. Willis K. Crosby, of Oil City, Pa., officiating.

The bride wore blue triple sheer crepe. There was a luncheon after the ceremony, and Capt. and Mrs. Dake left by motor for the mountains. After mid-August they will reside here.

Capt. Dake is a graduate of the department of architecture, Carnegie Tech, 1921, and since the World War has been associated with aviation. In 1929 he participated in the transcontinental air races. He is a member of the University Club and of the Quiet Birdmen. In the recent National Air Races he was chairman of the important rules committee.

Dorothea W. Henderson To Marry on July 20

Miss Dorothea W. Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Henderson, of East Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, has chosen July 20 as the day for her marriage to Thomas H. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Clarke, of Mifflin avenue, Wilkinsburg, which will take place in the Henderson home.

Officiating will be the Rev. R. C. Fullerton, of the Covenanter Church of New Alexandria, who is a brother-in-law of the bride, and he will be assisted by the Rev. T. C. McKnight, of the Convenanter Church of Wilkinsburg.

Mr. Clarke and his bride will leave for the East, and plan to make their home in Murraysville, Pa.

Mary Ward Married To Howard E. Farley

Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Ward, of Iowa street, Schenley Heights, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Ward, to Howard E. Farley, of Washington, which took place Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Farley will be at home here.

Seventh U. P. Church Group to Give Party

The annual garden party given by the Young Women's Missionary Society of the Seventh United Presbyterian Church will be held tonight at the home of Mrs. John Kennedy, McCandless avenue.

Jewish Campaign Workers Meet This Evening

All club women who are workers in the Relief Campaign for Jews in Germany, will meet at 8 o'clock this evening in the Y. M. and W. H. A., Bellefield avenue. Mrs. David A. Mendoza, vice chairman of the women's division, will distribute kites and Leo Lehman, chairman of the campaign, will give final instructions.

The campaign opens with a conference and dinner on Sunday at the Concordia Club, when Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of New York, will tell of his experiences in Germany.

* * *

Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, former president of the Congress of Clubs, and her two daughters, Nancy and Ruth, are leaving by motor tomorrow for Chicago. Mrs. Stahlman will attend the international congress of women which the National Council of Women will conduct from the sixteenth to the twenty-second.

College Club to Sponsor Concert of Symphony Orchestra Tomorrow

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

Tomorrow is to be College Club night at the Schenley lawn concert by the Little Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. George M. Swan, president of the club, and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer are co-chairmen of the general committee.

They have asked Mrs. Norman Ward, Mrs. S. D. Ewart, Miss Louise Borland, Mrs. Joseph N. Bowman, Miss Alice Killeen and Mrs. H. Lloyd Cleland to serve as ushers.

* * *

Mrs. Margaret Stewart Gray, first president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be honor guest on Tuesday when the Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women's Club celebrates its tenth anniversary.

The celebration will be a dinner in the Churchill Golf Club with the customary candle-lighting ceremony, letters from former members and bridge contributing to the evening's interest.

* * *

Something that it has never done before is planned by the Crafton Junior Woman's Club—a party for the children of the members. It will probably be quite a large affair, for the Crafton section numbers about 100 and possibly half of that number have fmilies. These small members are to be entertained outdoors at the home of Mrs. Finley Weisenberger, Noble avenue, on July 26.

* * *

The Junior Bradford Woods Club is conducting a round robin tennis tournament and will mark the conclusion of the tournament with a dinner at which the trophy will be awarded. Entered in the tournament are Margaret Esser, Anna Mary Scott, Eleanor Cochrane, Julia Kehew, Dorothy Marter, Margaretta Marter, Dorothy Morrow, Dorothy Dent, Kathyrn Hannan and Virginia Hannan.

Bruce Hewitt Rodeniser, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Rodeniser, of the East End, has been vacationing for the past eight weeks at his summer home, "Mey-Rod," near Cumberland, Md. He returns there tomorrow to remain until late September and will be accompanied by a house guest, John W. McClung.

* * *

Ingomar Officers Presented at Club Picnic

The Woman's Club of Ingomar is holding its annual midsummer picnic at the home of Mrs. Carl Van Der Voort today. According to custom, no formal program will be offered, but the newly elected officers, who will assume their duties at the September meeting, will be presented.

Mrs. B. Dale Dickson, president-elect, and Mrs. Raymer Mowry, new chairman of the program committee, will outline plans for the ensuing season, the nineteenth of the club's existence. Mrs. A. D. Johnston is the retiring president.

10 Counties Unite For Conference Of W. C. T. U.

Ten counties are combining in the second annual regional conference of the Women's Christian Temperance Union which is holding a two-day session, beginning today in Ridgeview Park. Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gibson, Allegheny County president, is presiding.

At 11 o'clock this morning Mrs. W. M. Mann, of Pittsburgh, is speaking on "A Spirit of Moral Protest" and this afternoon Mrs. H. N. Carnes is talking on "The Political Future of Prohibition." Election takes place this afternoon, also.

The speaker for tonight is W. J. Aiken, of Pittsburgh, Assistant United States Attorney. Also on the program is Miss Alice Leonhard, of Pittsburgh, who will give a reading, and Mrs. Alvin Sherbine, who is to speak on "Youth's Part in the Present Conflict."

A citizenship round table will feature tomorrow's session, the county presidents will discuss "Politics at the Primaries" and Mrs. Rachel Robinson, state recording secretary, will talk. Miss Gertrude Adams, state director of institutes, will address tonight's session.

* * *

Pittsburgh Branch, American Association of University Women, will sponsor as a benefit the Monday night performance of Ivor Novello's play, "A Symphony in Two Flats," by the Stage Guild at the Willows, Oakmont.

* * *

A river picnic aboard the steamer Washington has been planned for tomorrow by the Mothers' Club of Dormont. The boat, leaving at 10 o'clock, will return at 6. Mrs. M. B. Eckles is chairman of tickets.

* * *

Oakland Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a card party tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Serbian Hall, Oakland, with Mrs. Margaret Snowden as chairman.

Gossipy Chat

The open air concerts at the Hotel Schenley Tuesday and Friday evenings attract more of an audience than you see if you are at the concert.

Happened to be going by at the last concert and noticed a few score of folks standing about on the sidewalks listening.

One of the most attractive members of the sub-deb set in Sewickley this summer is Jane Stevenson, of Middleburg, Va., who always arrives here in time for the June horse show.

It seems only a season or so ago she was a child. And now she is a tall, slender girl. She has a penchant, by the way, for very large droopy straw hats.

Most of the Sewickley set if they wear anything at all on their tresses choose little knitted berets.

Lucretia Billings is the girl who's known as Lou in her own set. Lucretia, one of the prettiest and most charming young girls in Pittsburgh, is engaged to Dr. A. Murray Fisher, of Baltimore.

"I USE THIS SOAP AND HAVE FOR YEARS—IT KEEPS MY SKIN RADIANTLY YOUTHFUL. NOW I KNOW WHY IT GETS SUCH MARVELOUS RESULTS*..."

*SCIENTISTS NOW EXPLAIN

ADRIENNE AMES lovely Paramount star

SOFT . . . exquisitely smooth . . . youthful skin! The heart's desire of every woman! For years the lovely screen stars have used this beauty soap because it keeps their skin so lovely . . . so young-looking.

Now scientists explain WHY it is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin youthful.

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Young skin is rich in certain precious elements, put there by Nature herself; but, as years go by, these elements are gradually lost. Then skin ages, grows dull, unattractive.

But scientists now tell you, Lux Toilet Soap checks the loss of these precious elements from the skin. For, they find, it actually contains such elements . . . is completely free from harshness, readily soluble. No wonder this soap is so remarkable an aid in keeping skin soft, young-looking, they declare.

To guard their priceless complexions, 9 out of 10 screen stars depend on this fragrant, white soap. Start today to keep your skin young-looking with this scientific care.

"Now I know why screen stars use this soap!" says Helen Simis, of Phoenix, Arizona. "I took their advice and tried Lux Toilet Soap—it keeps my skin so smooth and youthful-looking that I wouldn't think of using any other."

Women Ought to Forget Unworthy Men

He cheated her—
Two-timed the wife she didn't know he had—
Cheapened her love and broke her heart.
Yet still she moans and moans, and wants him back.
Some folks are gluttons for punishment!

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I am coming to you with my problem although I realize that Fate and myself must solve it. But I would appreciate your helpful and sensible advice. I can't seem to get it straightened out in my mind, by myself.

I am 22 years old, and until a year and a half ago I had never met a man I could give even a second thought. Although I had many men friends, they all thought me cold and distant.

Then, over a year ago, I met a man whom I recognized as the one and only—my ideal. He was everything I had ever dreamed of wanting, and I grew to love him more than anything on this earth. It was not a make-believe love, but something that seemed a part of me, and without it life would be empty and unbearable.

I believed he loved me just the same as I loved him. I agreed to marry him, so we left the city to make our happiness complete. But after four months my dreams were shattered. The man I loved and respected—he who taught me what love really is—had deceived me. He already had a wife and child.

Now I have a darling baby, a boy seven months old—and memories I simply cannot forget. I don't hate this man. I never can, I think: he meant so much to me. My parents tried to make me give up my baby. They don't realize he is the only thing that makes life worth the struggle now.

WANTS TO FORGET

Why can't I hate and despise this man who deceived me? Somehow fond memories blot out everything evil about him. I feel sometimes that I cannot exist without him. He is still my ideal and always will be.

Am I crazy to feel that way? Should I try to be hard and bitter? Should I have him punished, or go on loving his memory? I want to do justice to my baby. Would I profit by bringing him to justice, when his own wife and child would suffer, too?

"What can I do to blot out these memories that haunt me, especially when I hear music and when I am alone? Can you tell me how to forget? I want him to have happiness, even though he has taken my only and innocent true love, and left me weary and despondent. What shall I do?

TRULY UNHAPPY.

What shall you do? How can you forget?

First off, my dear, by sitting down and looking this cheap cheat over, calmly and sensibly. You say he is still your Ideal? What do you mean "Ideal?" How can a man so thoroughly selfish, irresponsible and dishonest be any sensible woman's "Ideal?"

STOP YEARNING

He may have a voice like Russ Columbo, hair like Rudy Vallee and all the "It" of Clark Gable—but it takes a lot more than that to make an "Ideal," sister.

It takes honesty and decency, as well as a trick haircut or a pair of come-hither eyes. And you'd better realize that fact, before you go on and mess up the rest of your life.

That much for the man. Now a little analysis of yourself, sister. You may be excused for your first mistake—and God knows you and your baby will pay dearly enough for it, poor child. But you're not to be excused if you let yourself go on wanting this man.

The feeling you have for him now isn't a "noble love." It's just an addiction, like an addiction to booze or drugs. And you have no more right to indulge in it than you would have to take such poisons.

Does that mean that you should hate him? No; it's as wasteful to hate him as it is to love him. Size him up—and then forget him, and start on a new trail.

Can you still find happiness for yourself and your little boy? Yes, you can—if you're willing to look for it.

Mixed Social Marriages Seldom Happy, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

Although it always works out beautifully in stories and movies and novels and plays, in real life I do not think those who marry into another world are always happy.

Romance often springs from the very fascination and interest that opposite spheres inspire. And each imagines that to live the other's kind of life would be the perfection of happiness. But it is seldom so.

We have seen Park avenue marry into Broadway and there is always a look of wistfulness, even in the happiest expression, as if it missed much of its own world after all.

We like our own best.

Dicky Interrupts Discussion Concerning Message

"Talk of the gentleman with the antlers and cloven hoofs!" Lillian whispered roguishly, as Dicky's knock sounded at the door. "He certainly is making a timely appearance. He won't have even a suspicious think coming about my being present when you give him that message from the 'Floss' cockroach. It will be the most natural thing in the world for me to be here, especially as we've just had the message.

She waved an encouraging hand at me and, hurrying to the door, threw it open.

"As I live! Boadicea, herself, in full battle array, scythes all sharpened! What have I done now? I'm in bad somewhere, I know that by the inflection in your low, sweet voice."

Lillian laughed, a bit sardonically.

"There is such a thing as a guilty conscience giving a subconscious warning," she gibed. "I've always been certain, before, but now I know it."

SEEMS DEPRESSED

He came over obediently, kissed me, with what was either genuine tenderness or a most creditable imitation, and dropped down in the easy chair Lillian had vacated in order to let him in. She lounged across the room in his wake and perched herself upon the head of my couch, swinging one foot in gamin fashion.

"That's what we want to hear," she said provocatively, "how things are going."

Dicky looked from her to me.

"Look here, you two!" he said. "Quit your stalling, and get whatever you have to say off your respective chests."

"After you, darling," Lillian told him. "Ours can wait."

"Don't mind her!" I urged. "Tell us all the news!"

"There isn't any," he said pessimistically. "Ol' Man Depression's seeing to that. But I suppose I can't complain. I've only had my income cut in ribbons till I can hardly find it, while a lot of the men I know are trying to trade their tail coats for a pound of butter and a dozen eggs. But I did get a couple of orders today, so we can have meat three times a week again. But walk softly, Madge; walk softly."

Behind his extravagance of speech, I sensed a distinct let down of his usually buoyant optimism, and I guessed that he had just received some bit of bad news which was depressing him. With the threads of our personal finances firmly in my hands, and knowing his moods and tenses, I was sure that it was no fresh blow to himself that had affected him, except as his generous nature felt obliged to share with friends or relatives less fortunate.

ASKS ABOUT OWEN

I saw Lillian look at him keenly, then, I guessed because of something she saw in his face, she changed the subject. She knew as well as I that he would bother me with no special bad news while I was still confined to my couch with the ankle I had hurt upon the scene of Marion's rescue from Charles Owen. And, warmed by that chivalry, I suddenly wished that I could avoid the necessity of giving Dicky the message from "Floss."

"Have you heard anything of that beast, Owen?" Lillian queried.

Dicky shot a keen look at her.

"Now you're stalling darling," he told her. "You know very well we have daily bulletins on the gentleman from gallant Maj. Grantland and his sapient Chink friend, Lee Chow. They are guarding him as they would the crown jewels, until they can take him out of the country, and he is recovering rapidly. You might as well get whatever's eating you off your chest. Come clean, sister."

I think it was the contemptuous intonation in Dicky's voice as he spoke of Hugh Grantland and his friend that made me suddenly willing for Lillian to repeat to Dicky the message from "Floss," and to invest it with a barb or two of her own.

Household Hints

Hot boiled puddings will turn out easily, and without breaking, if a cloth wrung out in cold water is wrapped round the basin for a few seconds.

Use a French potato-cutter for making butter balls. Dip the cutter in hot water and cut the balls from a hard cake of butter. A few turns of the butter paddle will give a rough surface, if desired.

A Pittsburgh lady has discovered a quick way to remove labels from bottles. Before using the bottles again for jelly the old labels presented a problem until the woman filled the bottles two or three times with hot water. Then they came off easily.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Prepare Children for Healthful School Days

During the school year many children are kept at home because of minor physical ailments. The ailment may be mild and only last a few days, but, as a rule, it recurs. When the number of days absent from school is totaled, it is found to be surprisingly high.

Dr. Copeland

Such defects as decayed teeth, poor vision, enlarged and diseased tonsils, enlarged glands, ear trouble, glandular disorders and other disturbances lead to poor attendance at school. The child's progress in his work is retarded and his health is always below par. The parent hesitates to take time to correct these disorders and too often postpones the needed medical attention until the summer vacation.

If this plan were followed it would be a good one, but I am sorry to say that the good intentions are often forgotten. This is particularly true if the child has no complaint during his summer vacation. You may be assured that most children will ignore minor complaints during the summer months when happy play beckons them.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of taking your child to a physician during the summer months. This is the ideal time for that important and valuable periodic health examination.

Minor defects that has bothered the child during the school year should be attended to now. This will assure your child of a 100 per cent attendance at school next year. His health and school work will be influenced by this care.

It is a mistake not to have diseased tonsils and adenoids removed during the summer months. This is especially important if the child has been backward in his school work and particularly if he has suffered from repeated attacks of tonsilitis. Do not be misled by his apparent good health during the summer months. If the tonsils are diseased the child is very likely to have repeated attacks during the coming winter.

My advise is to consult with your doctor. If the tonsils are diseased and he advises their removal, have this done before school opens.

For younger children, summer is the ideal time for vaccination against smallpox. In many states children who have not been vaccinated cannot enter school. Inoculations against diphtheria should also be given during the summer months before the child enters school and is exposed to the germs of the dreaded disease.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Taxi Fare

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have asked a young man to be my escort at our Prom, and as I know I am to pay for the bids, do I have to pay for the taxicab, too, if he has no car?

I insist that I don't, but some of my friends say it is my duty to do this. I am quite puzzled.

2—If I wear gloves, shall I wear them all evening, or check them with my coat? R.

1—No, it isn't necessary for you to pay for the taxicab. This is usually a trivial amount, and paying it cannot be done without embarrassing the young gallant whom you are inviting.

2—As you wish about wearing gloves. Usually they are worn for a short time, and then either left at the table or checked with your wraps.

Correct Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me what is the proper costume to wear to a church wedding ceremony which takes place at 8 o'clock in the morning? The reception is directly afterward and will extend well into the afternoon (so I am told).

I say that a morning costume is proper, while A says she will wear a formal afternoon dress of organdie or crepe. M.

An afternoon dress of organdie or crepe or chiffon (plain or printed) would be the appropriate costume for this kind of occasion. An ensemble, of dress and jacket, would be a good idea.

GAY PLAID ORGANDIE DRESSES REVIVE FADED SUMMER SPIRITS

IF YOU'RE feeling low in mind, perhaps you need a new dress. If you feel frumpish—and that's a normal sensation this time of the year—the remedy is to buy something new your friends will exclaim over. No tonic will revive the state of your mind with more speed!

* * *

THIS BEING July, you're probably wearing out the summery things you leaped into the stores for on those first warm days in May or June. By now they bore you—but designers have come across, as they always do, with brand new ideas.

* * *

IT'S ALREADY an old story that it makes no difference just how we have grown to associate certain fabrics with occasions. What we used to consider strictly-for-morning materials, now go dining and dancing—and former high-tea fabrics do the marketing! Which explanation paves the way to tell you that the two charming dresses in the accompanying sketch are really plaid argandie and not gingham, as your first glance might lead you to believe. They both illustrate the general topsy-turviness in the fabric world. These are called chemisiere dresses—and the organdy is the sheerest, finest material imaginable. We consider these dresses the sanest summer idea in ages!

* * *

* * *

COME TO town in the other taffeta trimmed black and white organdy. This too, is tailored, relying on wide, wide belt and stiff bow of taffeta for trimming. It calls for a fine white panama hat, banded in matching plaid or black grosgrain ribbon. The new taffeta gloves would be exactly the right thing to wear with it.

"Two-year-old clothes still good and not faded at all,"

says this capable mother

A large family. Hard times. More and more work for mother. "I had to start doing all my washing," Mrs. L. E. Frank of Bellmore, L. I., told us. "Then I took in roomers—seven of them—and you can imagine what the washing became! I do a tubful every day. But not 'rub-a-dub-dub'. I don't have to do hard rubbing, because I use CHIPSO.

"Chipso suds are thick and lasting. You put the clothes to soak for a few minutes, raise the tub cover and the suds are right there, rich and lively. They take the dirt out in no time. Look at these towels!" Mrs. Frank opened up a cupboard stacked full of snowy towels. "We live near the beach. Think what the towels are in summer—grimy, smeared with cold cream and stained with lipstick—but see how soft and white they are, without being rubbed thin. I sometimes put badly soiled clothes through two suds, but I never rub. Rubbing wears clothes out. Our clothes wear two to four years.

"Another reason why I like Chipso better than any other soap is that while it takes dirt out quickly, it doesn't make my hands crack open and it doesn't fade colored clothes, harm silks, or make woolens stiff and harsh."

Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their color. Chipso loosens dirt harmlessly by RICHER SUDS. That is why Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

Don't endanger the clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Get Chipso from your grocer. At its low price, Chipso is the biggest value in rich, safe soap on the market today!

Chipso makes clothes wear longer

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

End of Flippancy

I long to be a serious bard,
I yearn to pen a lyric sonnet
With words like pearls on silver chains,
And no ironic ending on it.
I strive to wield a heavy pen,
Like Edgar Allan Poe's or starker;
But people say: "Oh, you're the girl
Who tries to write like Dorothy Parker!"

No matter what my theme may be,
When I have reached the final line
I find my tongue is in my cheek,
And I am aping Hoffenstein.
But I'll be captain of my soul —
I'm bound, no matter how it hurts,
To write one poem that doesn't end

Ouch!

Take it from Nick Kenny, which is how we got it. It is one of the grander squelches. Nick says that a newcomer to the air waves tried to get gay by belittling Al Jolson before a group of Broadwayites.

"I just thought I ought to tell you, Jolie, ol' boy, that I'm now the number one man on the radio—number one, Jolie, old boy."

Heheheh

Will Rogers discovered that the Fox studios for years have been trying to hang the title, "Life's Worth Living," on various movies, but changed their minds. So they hung it on his flicker now being made, until he squawked and suggested "Old Dr. Bull." It will be "Dr. Bull," however, because the movie heads argue that the word "old" mustn't be used in a title, as people might think the picture is old.

"They sure got great answers out here," says Rogers. "What happened," he adds, "to 'Old Kentucky,' 'Old Homestead,' 'Old Man River' and 'Auld Lang Syne?' It didn't do them much harm!"

It's a Living

Autographed photographs play an important part of the daily routine in Hollywood life. In the elaborate executive offices you are known by whom you are known. Therefore the autographed photo of this or that celebrity makes you all the more important if the names are of electric light caliber.

Harry Brand, the exploiter for United Artists, however, has his own ideas on how to entice respect from smallies as well as biggies who visit his office. As they gaze on the walls they find affectionate likenesses and inscriptions from Otto Kahn, J. P. Morgan, Roosevelt, Woodin, et al. "To Harry," they begin, "with affectionate regards, Franklin D." or "To Harry," a grand person."

The fact is that the autographs of them all were penned to Harry by Harry!

Have Some Mizner

The late Bill Mizner was sitting in one of the Hollywood beaneries, probably thinking up flip remarks when somebody rushed in and cried:

"Cal Coolidge is dead!"

"No kiddin'," said Mizner, "How could they tell?"

Too Wynnsome

Adolph Zukor, top man of the Paramount-Famous Players Lasky group when it was powerful, hasn't a sensayuma, at all. So when he pulled this one he became famous in the movie industry for it.

It was at a preview of Ed Wynn's first movie—a flop.

'Going Hollywood'

This pillar still seeks the real meaning of the expression, "Going Hollywood," which doesn't mean "ritzy" as supposed. The best definition was the one recently:

"Filling the pool with charged water and owing the gardener four months' wages."

Here's another: Going Hollywood—The intellectual whose ruling vanity is his private museum of objects d'art, which cost him a fortune, who withdrew his patronage from a local grocery which asked him a 5c deposit on beer bottles.

Tough to Be Famous

Jules Schirmer, of the Hollywood Reporter, relays this fact. Wally Ford was motoring along the Boulevard and paused to buy a paper. As the newsboy fumbled in his jeans for change, Wally kidded:

"Never mind the change, just remember me, I'm Jack Oakie!"

McAdoo's Partner In Bankrupt Quiz

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 13.—(AP.)—Senator William G. McAdoo announced today William H. Neblett, Los Angeles attorney, has been selected as counsel for the Senate special committee to probe bankruptcy and receivership racketeering in the Federal Courts.

Neblett, a law partner of McAdoo, will give his services without compensation, the Senator stated.

Piccoli Hired For Harvey Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—A producer since the movies were young, Jesse L. Lasky still can teach the young fellows lessons in alertness. His latest scoop is to sign up the Teatro Di Piccoli, famous Italian puppeteers, who have been making a sensational tour of eastern cities.

This amazing troupe of 32 persons stand behind the scenes and manipulate large puppets. It will come to Hollywood to play in "Marionette," a Lilian Harvey starring picture that Lasky will produce for Fox.

Sam Behrman, who wrote the story, and Rowland V. Lee, who will direct it, went to New York just to see the puppeteers in action. The reports they send back are glowing.

According to present plans, the picture will be made early in September. To date, no one has been selected to support the blonde Miss Harvey.

* * *

He never was proud of the picture, Joe Mankiewicz, scenarist, contends, but it was a shock to read upon the marquee of a Hollywood theater:

"Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler in 'The Diplomaniacs;' also a comedy."

* * *

For the next three months, Lupe Velez will not be able to play parent. Her little adopted daughter has gone to Mexico City to visit her real mother.

* * *

All Hollywood will be glad to hear that Anna Q. Nilsson is coming back to the screen at last. Her agent, Lew Cantor, has obtained for her a good part in "The World Changes," Paul Muni's new picture at Warner Brothers. It will be the first time Anna has appeared before a camera, except for a couple of tests, since that unhappy accident which kept her in bed for months, and which left her crippled long after that.

* * *

Ruth Chatterton's appearance at Arrowhead Hot Springs without George Brent was enough to start a separation rumor, but the fact is he was ill. They're together now and he'll play in her next picture.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Fulton Theater is in the last week of its current season, and will close Saturday for the remainder of July and part of August. Manager Cool expects to reopen the house in about five weeks and is looking forward to the coming season with the expectation that an early date will find some of the product of the 1933-34 studio schedules available for the screen. The current attraction in the Fulton, "The World Gone Mad," featuring Pat O'Brien and Evelyn Brent, will have its last showing Saturday.

* * *

"Symphony in Two Flats," will be the third production of the Stage Guild at the Willows, to be shown next Monday and Thursday, July 17 and 20, Monday night's performance to be given under the auspices of the American Association of University Women. It was played in England and New York with Ivor Novello and Benita Hume in the leading roles. The "two flats" of the title refers to separate floors on which dwell two families with which the play is concerned. It will be played at the Willows by Matilda Bodycombe, Elizabeth Drake, Alexander Kann, Lester Meyers, Annette Nosoff, Madeline Skelly Foust, Frank Furlong, Manny Breakstone, Marjorie MacQueen and Mrs. Stewart McFarlane.

* * *

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, together with specialty entertainers, will be at the Willows Wednesday, July 26. Counting Paul himself now as only one man since the big decline, he is the boss of 32 persons in all.

Joan Blondell is one of the delvers for precious metal in "Gold Diggers of 1933," musical comedy that has been booked for a week in the Enright, beginning Saturday.

Lindy Flight On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of the flight of the Lindberghs to the Arctic regions to chart new air routes, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The start is made from North Beach, New York City. A gasp escapes the spectators as two other planes cross Lindy's path. It looks like a collision, but the peerless Lindy quickly banks his machine and passes between them. It's a real thrill, with a graphic description by the Globe Trotter.

President Roosevelt is seen and heard as he presses the button in the White House that starts work on the $70,000,000 bridge, biggest in the world, that is to span the bay between Oakland and San Francisco. He says this great work is one of the sure signs of industrial recovery.

Helen Wills Moody, at Wimbledon, is shown defeating Mary Heeley, ranking English player, in a manner that later gave her a sixth British singles championship.

College oarsmen from Harvard, Cornell, Yale and Washington race over the Olympic course at Long Beach, Cal. Washington wins from Yale by half a length.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

The String of Beads

IN THE modest apartment house where she lived with her husband, Mrs. Cyril Jones was a favorite subject of gossip. There was scarcely a tenant who didn't know what Mrs. Jones was doing with her afternoons and the evenings on which the unsuspecting Cyril was working. This being a family newspaper, you'll have to guess the rest.

As a husband, Cyril Jones was nothing to write to Mr. Roosevelt about. He was dull and decent and decidedly dumb. On the other hand, Annie—his life's partner for worse or for worse—was neither dull nor dumb. And decency was merely a word that she had had difficulty in spelling in the fifth grade.

Late one afternoon Annie dashed into the apartment shortly before Cyril was due to arrive. She had been out a little later than usual, and she was busy preparing supper when her spouse appeared on the scene.

She was still wearing her street clothes, and it wasn't until she felt Cyril's gaze fastened upon her that she realized with horror that she had been guilty of a serious oversight. In her haste, she had neglected to remove the string of pearls she was wearing.

In this case, the wages of sin had been pearls. Annie had always been extremely careful to keep her costly baubles out of Cyril's sight. He couldn't have bought her that string of pearls with the saving of a year's salary, and she grew cold with perspiration as she thought of what would happen now that he had seen them.

She waited, her breath halted, for the blow to fall. But Cyril's expression did not change.

"I see you got on a new string of beads," he offered at last. "They look pretty. Cost much?"

Annie began to breathe again. She laughed easily.

"Nope. I picked 'em up at a bargain counter for 98 cents. Nice, aren't they? I think they look almost like the real thing."

Cyril muttered a vague something and unfolded his newspaper. Annie turned back to the stove to hide a grin. She was lucky, she told herself. Cyril's dumbness had its good points. And he was certainly dumb when he couldn't tell the difference between a 98-cent string of beads and the real article.

Thus she reasoned a few days later when there came an opportunity to spend a week-end out of town. She explained to Cyril that she was going to visit her mother.

As the taxi moved away from the house, Annie smiled contemptuously. That husband of hers certainly wasn't overburdened with brains. She lifted her hand and fingered her throat—and suddenly realized that she hadn't displayed any great degree of intelligence either.

Her pearls were at home. She remembered now that she had taken her pearls from their box with the intention of wearing them, and that something had diverted her attention. She had forgotten them, and they were still on the dresser where she had placed them.

Visions of her valuable pearls did much to ruin her week end. As she rushed home from the train on Monday, she was plenty nervous. Cyril hadn't started for work yet, and she favored him with an absent-minded kiss. That was a big break for Cyril.

She couldn't appear too anxious, and she was obliged to answer banal questions about her mother's health before she could enter her bedroom. When she finally got away, she rushed to her dresser—and almost toppled over. The pearls were nowhere in sight.

"Cyril!" she cried, and it was hard to keep the panic out of her voice. "Cyril!"

Hubby came running.

"Yep, Annie," he returned, "and I'm kinda sorry about what happened. The day after you left, I was changing my collar. When I went to pick up the collar button, the beads caught on it. The string broke and the beads fell all over the floor."

Annie's voice was strained.

"What did you do with them?"

"Do?" repeated Cyril stupidly. "I did nothing. Seeing as how they were only a cheap string, it hardly seemed worth while to have them strung again. So I just swept 'em up and threw them out."

He began to grin in self-satisfied fashion.

"But don't you feel bad, Annie. I know you kinda liked those beads, so I went downtown and bought you another set. And say, I got those ones cheaper! They were on sale for only 89 cents!"

He drew a long box from the bureau drawer with a flourish and handed it to his wife.

Whistling, Cyril went back to finish his shave. As he closed the door behind him, he stepped whistling and began to smile slyly. He drew out his wallet and gazed with satisfaction at the fat heap of bills in it.

Beside them lay a yellow pawn ticket . . .

PREMIERE

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

was throbbing. "There must be some place you can stay till after the performance. You know I cannot talk to you now—"

CAVANAUGH USES FORCE

Kruger thrust his face closer to her own. "So you are ashamed of me, hey?" he demanded "You think because—"

More people were stopping to listen and to look, but Kruger suddenly ceased speaking. From the rear a powerful hand had closed on his arm like a steel trap that pressed paralyzing pain into his flesh.

"He'll wait, Miss Luneska," said Lucky Cavanaugh. "There won't be the slightest annoyance, I assure you."

A dark red flush was spreading on Kruger's forehead. He ground his teeth and was silent, as the strong fingers bored deep into his stringy muscle. Luneska was aware only that a tall and agreeable young man was somehow giving her a respite.

"Thank you so much," she said swiftly to Cavanaugh. "It is better so, Karl. Later—after the theater—"

Cavanaugh bowed slightly and turning away, he moved Karl Kruger around also, compelling him with a grip so punishing that the man began to weave in anguish.

"A poor unfortunate I used to befriend in Europe," she said hurriedly to Gates. "Think no more about it—I'll speak to him later."

A uniformed usher hurried toward Cavanaugh. "Shall I call an officer to take charge of him, sir?"

"Ask the manager to step here," Cavanaugh said.

The usher who knew the gambler by sight and was impressed, sped off like a shot. Cavanaugh led Kruger up against the wall and relaxed the pressure.

"I don't know who you are, and I don't care," he said quietly. "I'm going to fix it so you can wait in a private office and see Miss Luneska after the show, as she suggested. If you try to crab her big night I'm going to knock you as cold as a mackerel. Is that perfectly plain?"

AGREES TO WAIT

Kruger began to rub his arm as the flush faded from his face. Pain had taken some of the brass out of him.

"She'll see me sooner or later," he said sullenly. "I'll wait peaceably."

"That's better," responded Cavanaugh evenly.

The disposition of Kruger was easily arranged when Sol Kaufmann, the manager, arrived rotund and perspiringly eager to suppress any excitement.

Cavanaugh's explanation and desire in the matter was enough for Kaufmann. The simplest way of handling a situation was always the best. They took Kruger to an office back of the balcony and told him to wait there.

"These foreign stars always have one foot in the mud," said Kaufmann as he came downstairs with Cavanaugh. "Only I wish they wouldn't track it into my theater."

"Too bad Luneska's big night had to be spoiled by that mug," Cavanaugh remarked.

Kaufmann shrugged indifferently. "As soon as an actor gets in the money the chiselers begin to show up. That's Hollywood. These stars all got something they're willing to pay to keep quiet. But don't worry about Luneska—she'll make plenty of dough."

Kaufmann already had erased the incident from his busy mind which was a machine geared to quick adjustment of details and emergencies.

But strangely, a handsome young gambler whose professional creed kept him from dipping into other people's affairs, found himself starting down the aisle that led to Luneska's box, although his ticket called for a seat in another direction.

A DANGEROUS PATH

Lucky Cavanaugh, tall and steady-eyed and dressed in a dinner suit, had taken a new and dangerous path. He was dogging the steps of a strange woman. He did not realize it, but he was following the blonde head, the slim beauty and the exciting perfume of Leni Luneska.

He only knew that there was an increased circulation in his blood, and that he was on a quest from which it would not be easy to turn back.

The singers and dancers of the prologue were already on the stage. Light in the aisles was dim. Most of the audience was already settled. There was a buzz of conversation in the air for no one was really interested in the 75 girls with their powdered white bodies who filled the stage with their involved dancing.

An usher, smartly uniformed, pursued Cavanaugh down the aisle and stretched out a hand to examine the ticket stub.

The knowledge that anything can be arranged in Hollywood gave Cavanaugh a sensation of nonchalant assurance. A folded bank note passed from his hand to the usher.

"See if you can find me a seat in Luneska's box—like a good pal," he said in a low voice.

ESCORT PROPOSES

"Wait here," he said quietly. "I'll see what I can do."

Leni Luneska sat next to the rail in the box, her opera cloak draped over the back of a chair. Her arms, shoulders and back were white and alive in the semi-darkness.

Several people of importance sat in the same box, executives from the studio and their wives. To these, the individual Luneska in the flesh was much less interesting than the photographic Luneska who would presently flash upon the screen.

Long familiarity with screen celebrities creates very little awe. Star and studio are natural enemies. Temperaments and contracts are in perpetual conflict and there is equal ego on each side. It is, as everyone agrees, a crazy business.

The one outsider in the box was Douglas Gates and, at the moment, he was asking Leni to marry him.

"Why don't you promise me tonight?" he whispered. "I don't like to keep persuading you, but I don't like to wait."

His insistence was getting to be a bit of an old story. A man in the neighborhood of 50 is always at a disadvantage with a young and beautiful woman.

Leni freely admitted to herself that Douglas Gates was without a flaw. Very wealthy, cultured, a gentleman. A bachelor of inherited background with an authentic standing in the social and business life of the city. Handsome, too, with a mustache after the manner of a European gentleman.

The trouble was that she did not care for him, as women express it, in that way. In all other respects, he was the most satisfying person she had ever known.

A WEAK REPLY

Within the last few minutes Leni had practically decided to marry him. She leaned her head close to his, and there was something like weariness in the movement.

"Douglas, darling—would you understand me always?" she asked softly. "Would you protect me from the whole world—still love me in all circumstances?"

"Naturally," he responded patiently.

At the single word, uttered so tamely, a little smile that was not mirthful formed on Leni's lips.

"Yes, of course you would," she murmured. "Naturally."

Gates did not press his argument. These skirmishes with Luneska always ended against a stone wall of her silence. At his age a man dreams of love but the conquering zeal of Youth was lacking.

Despite his glossed and brushed hair, despite his erect shoulders in their faultless evening coat, Douglas Gates was tired. He had played polo this afternoon. Ten years ago he would have emerged from a cold shower fit to carry on till dawn. Tonight his head felt heavy, his eyes weary.

"Let's look at the record"

After all, you have to know the company back of a product to know the product.

As a famous statesman has said, "Let's look at the record."

The Atlantic Refining Company dates from the very beginnings of the oil industry. It exported the first cargo of petroleum products ever to leave the United States. It pioneered the first service station.

Its fleet of tankers is today one of the largest flying the American flag, and its products are favorably known on five of the earth's continents.

For 68 years, Atlantic has been giving the public the finest products it knew how to make . . . at the lowest prices it could achieve. It has been in the forefront of every important gasoline improvement.

But Atlantic has not, and will not, descend to ballyhoo, or to destructive criticism of other companies, in an effort to merchandise its products. It believes with the Government in Washington that nothing is more harmful to American business than to have the factors within an industry engage in useless internal warfare.

When this happens, workmen are forced out of jobs. Trick products are foisted on the public, often dressed up in fancy colors or packages to make them seem new and better. Extravagant claims are made which cannot be supported. Nobody gains; every one suffers . . . the public most of all.

A few weeks ago Atlantic announced that it had found ways to make a new and improved WHITE FLASH. We sincerely believe you will like this new motor fuel, and that it will save you money. But we are not going to bombard you with meaningless claims and "challenges." All we ask is that you try it . . . and let your own automobile tell you what kind of fuel it is.

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY

VAUGHAN'S HITTING KEEPS PIRATES IN FLAG RACE

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

French Again Saves Day. Outboard Speed Jumps.
Rolling Up Fine Record. Mills Turf's Best Card.
Cubs Threaten Leaders. European Tennis Final.

PIRATE SOUTHPAW BIG MOUND ASSET

TWO OR THREE breaks, aside from Arky Vaughan's great hitting, entered into the success of the Pirates in reclaiming yesterday's game after the Braves had staged one of the most surprising ninth innings in local history to tie the score with an eight-run rally. These breaks began with the departure from the field of such star Boston pitchers as Ben Cantwell and Fred Frankhouse prior to the big uprising, forcing the New Englanders to finish up with Huck Betts, who has not been right all season and has won only three games. And the final smile of fortune was Randy Moore's inability to gauge the rebound of Vaughan's winning hit as it caromed off an unfamiliar wall.

Larry French

But the biggest break of all for the Bucs in the emergency, following the lifting of Heine Meine for the ninth time in his last 10 starts and the failure of Leon Chagnon in a relief role, was in having such a capable, willing and ever-ready workhorse as Larry French on the staff. The star southpaw has been a Pirate lifesaver on many occasions, but he has done no neater job than he did in saving yesterday's game. It takes some pitching to jump in and knock off five batters in a row when an opposing club has the momentum of an eight-run rush.

FRENCH MAY NOT be the whole Pittsburgh hurling staff, but he hasn't fallen very far short of deserving that title of late, not only by reason of the quality of his work, but also on account of the willingness and effectiveness with which he has labored in and out of turn. Yesterday's game was the fifth of the last seven in which Larry worked, and he had pitched a full contest on Monday.

The left-hander already has toiled in 27 games, has won 10, completed 11, and has turned in a total of 145 innings, leading the staff in each respect. He has an ambition to pitch 300 innings in a season, and at his present rate probably will not be far from that mark at the end of the 1933 campaign. French's name cannot be omitted from any list of most valuable pitchers.

WITH THE GIANTS out of their losing streak after seven straight defeats; the Cubs in second place and looming as a big threat after seven consecutive victories despite the absence of Cuyler, Stephenson and English; the Pirates only half a game below the Cards and third place, and only four games from the top; and the Braves only two games behind the Bucs, the National League today presented another of its characteristic dog fights.

The fact that New York's great pitching has held up indicates that it may not be easy to pull the leaders down soon if James plugs the shortstop hole until Ryan recovers. The Giant pitching against the Cardinals has been one of the season's standouts. The Cards have scored in only one inning of the last 46, and in only three of the last 60, for a total of but four runs, against Bill Terry's pitchers.

"I WELL REMEMBER when the Pittsburgh club visited Nick Young, National League president at his home in Washington," writes Red Mason from Chicago. "We all thought, after listening to Nick, that no other league could ever come to life and share honors with the National. But these 40 odd years have changed things, and it looks as though the American has the edge. It was a treat to watch the work of Joe Cronin in the all-star game. He is the greatest shortstop of recent years. I have watched him in the Washington club's games in Chicago for three seasons, and nobody in either league can touch him. Cronin, too, seems to enjoy his job as manager of the club that looks like a sure winner in the American. The Yankees look very slow, as compared with their form of 1932, and Connie Mack's club appears lost without the best outfielder in the game, Al Simmons. I think Simmons is far and away the best all-around outfielder in the game today. He can do everything—hit, field, throw and get around the bases. I still believe the Cardinals will win the National League flag, and that the Cubs will finish two-three. The Giants, as you mentioned in your column recently, are not a good road club. Though the Cards have been in a slump, I look for them to come back and win out."

Alvin Crowder

AN OBSERVER PUTS a question that has been running in the minds of many fans when he asks why it is that when great pitchers are being discussed, the names of Grove, Gomez, Ferrell, Warneke, Hubbell and a few others are heard always and the name of Alvin Crowder very rarely.

Many American League batters agree that if the Washington ace isn't the mound's foremost artist at present he'll do until another is discovered. Crowder is a glutton for work, having pitched 327 innings in winning 26 games last year, is as game as they come, knows what it's all about, has averaged exactly 20 victories a season for the last five years, and has 13 wins to his credit in 1933.

THOUGH HIS FIELDING has helped the Cardinals, the notorious weakness of Leo Durocher as a hitter is sticking out again. In his last 25 games, Durocher has made only eight hits in 66 times at bat, for the anemic average of .121.

There were three different periods during that stretch in which Leo went hitless four times in a row. Adjoining Sportsmans Park in St. Louis is a parking place called "Easy Out," and the fans are beginning to think it was named for Durocher.

A MILE A minute is the goal for which outboard motorboat drivers are striving this season. Five years ago that was a visionary speed, but during the last two seasons outboard marks have skyrocketed. Last year Freddie Nickell attained a speed of 50 miles an hour, and later Art Sauerberg boosted it to 58.9 miles. Only 1.1 miles from the mark, the leading pilots expect soon to make it 60 miles an hour. Both Nickell and Sauerberg are residents of the Middle West, where most of the outboard record-breaking has been done of late. The East has not been very prominent in the setting of new marks, as of the 16 recognized records the Middle West holds 10 and the Pacific Coast five.

THE BIGGEST DRAWING card that horseracing has among the jockeys right now is young Hank Mills. He put a new zip in the races at the recent Aqueduct meeting when he resumed riding last week after his suspension, and he has been a spur on all other tracks.

Hank is a sort of hero among the racegoers, and hundreds wager on his mounts irrespective of their form. Turfmen describe him as a great jockey, for whom horses run their best, a marvel at the gate, and of unquestionable honesty and integrity.

THE DATE FINALLY set for the 10-round bout between Jack Sharkey and King Levinsky at Comiskey Park in Chicago is Thursday, September 7. It will be the first time Sharkey has appeared in a Windy City ring in all his years of fighting. The former heavyweight champion will open a training camp on the World Fair grounds a week or two in advance.

Jack Crawford

Sammy Wolf, the promoter, thinks the show will draw a $200,000 gate at prices ranging from $1 to $5. He is giving Sharkey a guarantee of $25,000, with a privilege of 40 per cent. Sharkey, who also has signed for three bouts in New York, says he intends to fight as often as possible with a view to winning his way back to a return match with Primo Carnera next year.

TODAY WITNESSES THE opening of the first of three stirring tennis struggles that promise to make the Davis Cup competition this year the most sensational in the history of the trophy. Australia and England meet in the European zone final at Auteuil, France, today, tomorrow and Saturday. The winner faces the United States on the same courts on July 21, 22 and 23, and the victor there plays France for the cup. England originally was figured to have an edge in the European zone, but the brilliant performances of Jack Crawford, of Australia, in beating Henri Cochet for the French singles championship and then vanquishing Ellsworth Vines for the Wimbledon title, lead many form students to believe that if the youthful Vivian McGrath, with his unorthodox two-hand style, does his part, the Aussies will win.

Their Last Fling in Junior Competition for W. Pa. Title

BURT PARKER, HIGHLAND GEORGE ORMISTON, W. PA. GOLF ASSN. SECRETARY CLAUDE M'KEE, SOUTH HILLS PARKER AND M'KEE, FRIENDLY ENEMIES, STROLL DOWN FAIRWAY

The age limit for competition in the annual Western Pennsylvania Golf Association junior tournament is 19 years, and Parker and McKee just got under the wire to compete in the qualifying round at Greensburg yesterday. McKee was 19 yesterday, but was born later in the day than the starting time of the tournament, while Parker will be 19 today. McKee is a member of the University of Pittsburgh team and plays from South Hills, while Parker is a Highland Club star. Secretary Ormiston, of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, is seen certifying their ages and eligibility. Both players qualified for match play competition and Parker won his first match play round today, while McKee lost. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

EAGLE SOUGHT BY LOCAL PRO ELEVEN

Christian (Red) Cagle, former West Point football star, may lead the attack of the Pittsburgh team in the National Professional Football League next fall.

Art Rooney, sponsor of the local club, has arranged with the New York Giants for the transfer of Cagle's contract if he can make suitable arrangements with Cagle, and now is dickering with the player.

The local pros also are angling for Purdue's two guards of last year, Jenkinson and Letzinger.

LOUGHRAN TO BOX

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia boxing master, and Johnny Risko, the tough old heavyweight from Cleveland, will meet in a 10-round bout at Mills Stadium July 26.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE 17-YEAR CICADA—The female lays eggs in the branches of trees, the young hatch out in a few weeks, and, dropping to the ground, burrow to a depth of 20 feet, and then begin a long subterranean existence. They require about 17 years of development before they emerge in an adult state. The adult lives only for a few weeks. KNOCKED OUT TWICE BUT WON THE FIGHT—On February 24, 1933, an inexperienced second rost Tracy Cox, Indianapolis lightweight, a victory by the knockout route in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round fight with Eddie Lord, of Cleveland. Cox knocked down Lord, and the second—thinking the fight was over—jumped into the ring before the fatal 10 was tolled. After the second had been sent from the ring, the fight was resumed, and again Lord was knocked out, this time for the full count. Lord's seconds, however, claimed the fight on grounds of disqualification when his second jumped into the ring, and they were upheld by the commissioners, who declared Lord the winner.

TOMORROW: THE REINCARNATION OF THE BASTILE

Andy High Given Release by Reds

CINCINNATI, July 13.—Andy High, who has been with Brooklyn, Boston and St. Louis during his 10 years of service in the National League, was given his unconditional release by the Cincinnati Reds yesterday.

The little utility infielder announced that he would go immediately to his home in St. Louis. He came to the Reds in 1931 from the Cards where he played in the world series that year.

MRS. MOODY SAILS

PLYMOUTH, England, July 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, winner of the women's singles title in the all-England tennis at Wimbledon for the sixth time, sailed for home yesterday aboard the Lafayette with her husband, Frederick S. Moody.

British Heavy Title Bout Called Fiasco

LONDON, July 13.—(AP.)—Boxing critics today labeled as a fiasco the bout for the British heavyweight boxing championship in which Jack Peterson, holder of the Lonsdale Belt, won on a foul from Irish Jack Doyle in the second round before a crowd of 60,000 in the White City Stadium here last night.

Doyle was disqualified after a series of low blows. After two palpably low punches which caused the referee to step in and tell Doyle he was ruled out, the challenger continued to hammer away at Petersen for several minutes. There were some wild scenes before the bout finally came to a halt.

BRAVES' GREAT NINTH-INNING RALLY VAIN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The most talked-about player in the National League, a Dick Merriwell come to life—the heroic figure is our own Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, leading hitter of the Pirate band, both in the point of percentage and in the more important matter of driving in tallies.

Arky Vaughan

Go into the visiting dugout of the Oakland Orchard and spend 10 minutes in conversation with players of any of the seven rival entries and the talk drifts naturally to the 21-year-old boy who has come to be one of the most feared batters in the game. And Arky doesn't pick his spots—the southpaws, too, get the shivers when they see him come to the plate.

DRIVES IN FIVE RUNS

The Pirates are now engaged in one of the toughest series of the season. The Braves were stung with the pennant bee in the past two weeks and they arrived in Pittsburgh with sharpened spikes and a desire to ride high, wide and handsome, in a manner somewhat reminiscent of the antics of the lamented Pep Young, of the New York Giants.

Arky doesn't pop off much, but

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Promoter John L. Hernon today received a telegram from Max Waxman, manager of Dundee, stating that Dundee had injured his right ankle in training and would not be able to engage in the match at Forbes Field one week from next Monday. He also called off a bout for Dundee with Prince Alexander at Paterson, N. J., scheduled tonight.

Yarosz already was in the midst of serious training at a camp near Monaca, and was crestfallen when he heard the news.

PRIMO TO SHOW HERE

Announcement was made today by Art Rooney, North Side sportsman, part-owner of the contract on Primo Carnera, that the new heavyweight champion of the world will stop off in Pittsburgh en route to the World Fair in Chicago within the next month and make a personal appearance at an amateur boxing show in the Allegheny Arena of the St. Peter's A. A., of the North Side.

If the long-standing ban on Carnera in the state, imposed upon him following his bout with George Godfrey in Philadelphia, is removed, the big fellow will box a brief exhibition. He will not charge for his services, all of the receipts, as usual at the St. Peter's shows, going to the needy of the community.

Between Rounds

Gus Camp has under his wing in Dominick Mancini, formerly of Blairsville, now of the North Side, a 19-year-old lightweight with a remarkable record. Dominick had 15 bouts as an amateur and won them all with knockouts in a total of 18 rounds, scoring three knockouts and losing only one, to Sammy Burns, whom he would like to box again. He also wants a crack at the two Zivics, Eddie and Fritzie.

A movement is under foot to match Sunny Jim McVey, local Negro heavyweight puncher, with Lee Ramage, of California, now campaigning in the East. McVey was to box Frankie Simons, of Cleveland, at the North Braddock Bowl tonight, but this match fell through.

John Petro will box Bill Schuster in the heavyweight bout on the amateur boxing card at the Wilkwood Country Club Saturday night. Other bouts are: Lloyd Walcott vs. Henry Kiena, Bill Schwerin vs. Cliff Armstrong, Jimmy Ferry vs. Leo Sweeney, Jimmy O'Brien vs. Freddie Lens and John Burke vs. Matt Ozniak.

Swissvale Finalist In Legion Series

For the fourth successive year Swissvale is a finalist in the American Legion junior baseball series as a result of its clinching of the Section II championship yesterday by defeating the Homewood Post, 11 to 3.

Swissvale earns the right to meet South Hills, champion of Section 1, for the Allegheny County championship. The first battle of the three-game series will be played Saturday at Swissvale. The score of the Swissvale-Homewood game follows:

Manceni Annexes Diamond Belt Title

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 13.—Al Manceni today is the proud holder of the heavyweight title of the diamond studded belt tournament held by the Sands A. C., of this town. He defeated George Makrum, of Uniontown, in the final elimination bout last night. In his semi-final bout, Manceni won over Tubby Mills, of Pittsburgh. The results of other bouts:

American League Schedule Revised

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—Seventeen doubleheaders, spread over three months, were listed today by the American League to absorb lost dates because of rain and the All-Star contest played at Comiskey Park last week. The changes:

July 15—St. Louis at Washington, doubleheader.
August 6—Cleveland at Detroit, doubleheader.
August 23—Boston at Chicago, doubleheader.
August 24—Boston at Chicago, doubleheader.
August 26—New York at Detroit, doubleheader.

Primo Carnera's Life Story

CARNERA KNOCKS DOWN DON M'CORKINGDALE

(This autobiography is a translation from the Italian of Primo Carnera's remarkably clear memories of his career thus far. The new world heavyweight boxing champion can speak English sufficiently to be understood, but, in preparing his life story, he preferred to do so in his native tongue. So far as is possible, the translation preserves the ideas and spirit of the champion.)

CHAPTER EIGHT

By PRIMO CARNERA, Heavyweight Boxing Champion of the World.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

With the second Schmeling-Sharkey title fight scheduled for June, in 1932, in New York City, I did not return to America until early that month. Before leaving Europe I knocked out Bouquillon, Guhring, Cook and Schronrath (as mentioned in the preceding chapter), and also won 10-round decisions from Pierre Charles, Don McCorkingdale and Maurice Griselle. These victories impressed continental fans.

Primo Carnera

Paris, London, Berlin and Milan saw me in action. Yet I think I got more rest then than ever before since becoming a boxer, and most of those pleasant hours were spent in Italy. It was a great meeting with the folks back home, who knew little about the ring and less of racketeers and other strange stuff that had been published about me.

When word came from my American manager, William Duffy, to return to New York, I was in London and all set to go except for a scheduled 10-round match with Larry Gains, a Canadian Negro, who had been whipping the pick of Europe's heavies, I figured him to be a god man, but I felt sure of outpointing him, at least. And to this very day I believe I did so, but the decision went against me. Even the conservative London press seriously questioned the verdict, but, as in my Boston bout with Maloney, both must go into my records in the "Lost" column. Both Maloney and Gaines showed their very best against me, and I do not grudge them their victories.

Of course, many of the American press naturally played up my setback by Gains, and, once more, most boxing experts announced "the end of Carnera as a championship possibility." When I was told of such opinions soon after reaching America, I was more determined than ever to win that title . . . Far back in the Bowl on June 21, a year ago, I watched Sharkey outbox Schmeling. Though quite far from the ring, I did, and do, believe the American clearly outpointed Max. I had the strong hunch then that I would meet the winner next.

OUTLOOK NOT BRIGHT

But that chance seemed far off on sober thought because most of the sports experts kept repeating that I was "a clumsy clown," "a tool of racketeers," "still a circus freak," "a giant fraud," etc., etc. Good friends, Americans as well as Italians, kept telling me of those charges and translating the low opinions held of me by many noted ring critics. Soon it got so that, next to winning the title, I most desired to show those experts how wrong they really were. Never was there a bit of a personal quarrel between the fight critics and me. Those who I know are fine fellows and very clever writers. It is hard to make any authority admit he is wrong, but I set out to do that just as earnestly as I fought on to win the championship. The barks were annoying me, but—the Carnera caravan kept moving on. . .

In June, 1932, my future did not look especially bright. But I scored 13 knockouts and won two decisions in the United States before the end of the year. It is not a very impressive list of victims in some respects, although it does include three or four second-rate or coming heavies.

"SET-UP" HOWL CONTINUES

Since 1932 was such a year of championship preparations, perhaps the men kayoed by me (with the round) may merit some attention. Here they are from my own records: Jack Gross, 7; Jerry Pavelik, 5; Jack Gagnon, 1; Ted Sandwina, 4; Gene Stanton, 6; Jack Taylor, 2; Les Kennedy, 3; Jose Santa, 6; Jack Schwake, 7; Joe Wright, 2; Jimmy Merriott, 1; Big Boy Peterson, 2, and K O Christner, 4. I am sure that in at least half those bouts my opponents tried their best, but the "set-up" howl was as loud as ever.

My tussle with Jose Santa was my most talked-of bout in that K O list. Known as "The Portuguese Giant," he was almost as heavy as I am, not quite as tall, and a mass of muscles. We clashed in Madison Square Garden, on November 17, and I battered him into helplessness in the sixth round. The critics and many fans were disappointed with that contest, and especially with me. It was a slow battle most of the way; the mauling was uninteresting. Seldom can one stop such a strong and tough fellow as Santa with a few punches, especially when he keeps on the defense. He has to be mauled open and tired before he can be hammered down. And that is what I had to do, and did, in my farewell to the Garden in 1932.

Earlier in the year, I outpointed Hans Birkie in 10 rounds at New York City, and repeated in a return match with King Levinsky at Chicago. Birkie is a promising German heavy. He was Sharkey's chief sparing partner when training recently for his second battle with me. The wild-swinging Levinsky convinced Jack Dempsey in four rounds that the ex-champion should give up his comeback plans, but with me—well, some experts think that King is "crazy," but ask him what he thinks of Primo's wallop and all-around fighting form. Levinsky was the first prominent fighter in America, outside of Sharkey, to be quoted as saying that I was any good at all.

'BEATEN' BY POREDA

Jumping about the country once more, by rail and air, I went 10 rounds with the promising Art Lasky at St. Paul. There was no decision, though the newspapers gave me a shade. We tried hard and it was good boxing practice for us both.

That fall I ran into another defeat of the Maloney-Gains decision type—this time, Stanley Poreda, of Jersey City, N. J., being called the winner at nearby Newark. It was so bad a decision that the New Jersey boxing authorities investigated and punishments were dealt out. Why

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Minor changes in the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League standings resulted from preliminary reports filed on last Saturday's postponements at a special session of the P. T. A. sanction and schedule committee yesterday.

In Division I, Bob Lampus and his Shannopin outfit rated a 7-2 victory over the University Club, instead of the 3-2 partial decision turned in following the abbreviated week-end tussle, the additional wins being sufficient to land the North Boroughs aggregation in fourth position in place of Rockwood.

The Division II chase encountered somewhat more extensive revision. The pace-setting Belmonters, though improving their Washington Heights showing from the original 1-4 to a final 4-5, none the less lost considerable ground to S. L. Burgwin's Westinghouse Seconds, whose 7-2 windup against Bureau of Mines advanced the hustling Electrics to within one match of the loop-leading Ingramites. The Mines array, meanwhile, slipped into a fourth notch tie with the Rockwood Seconds as the latter copped two out of three doubles tilts from Emsworth to switch a Saturday, 5-1, singles margin to a 7-2 completed tally.

All July 8 engagements, save the P. A. A.-Rockwood and Edgewood-Westinghouse frays in the upper section and the College Avenue II-Minnetonka affair in the lower circuit, now have been reported in full. The two unfinished jousts in Division I are slated for Tuesday, July 25, though it is probable that half of the six P. A. A.-Rockwood tilts still unaccounted for will be reeled off tomorrow. The College Avenue-Minnetonka number three doubles debate, halted by darkness at 8-8 in the initial stanza Saturday, was rebilled for the Verona lot last evening, but the outcome has yet to be announced.

Entries for the yearly Western Pennsylvania junior and boys' championships are beginning to roll into the hands of Co-chairman Dr. John O'Loughlin. Among early junior aspirants are Jimmy Arensberg, mainstay of the Shady Side Academy racquet squad; Roy Heckler, Belmont luminary, and Harry Zink, Steubenville youngster. Zink is booked for action in both the junior and the boys' classes.

Semi-final skirmishes in the second annual Fox Chapel turf court invitation men's singles tourney will be run off at 5 p. m. tomorrow.

VAUGHAN KEEPS BUCS IN RACE

he is in the battle right up to his neck, and what a tune his bat is playing. He went over the 60-mark yesterday as he drove in five tallies, his second triple of the afternoon giving the Buccos their most dramatic triumph of the season. Perhaps it would have been close to diamond tragedy had they lost the contest. Yes, sir, Vaughan is one real reason that the Pirates still are up there.

PIE SCORES WINNING RUN

Vaughan's two three-sackers of yesterday were struck with two out. The first one, an event of the opening inning scored two runs, and the last one, a momentous tenth-inning wallop, scored Capt. Traynor from first with a run that decided the unusual contest. The score was 9 to 8.

An eight-run rally in the ninth inning was not enough to give the Braves their second straight victory over the Pirates yesterday, the Corsairs winning in the tenth when Vaughan tripled for his fourth hit of the game to score Pie Traynor with the winning run.

Heinie Meine held the Braves to two hits going into the ninth with the Pirates leading, 8 to 0. The Braves shelled Meine and Chagnon from the mound in this frame and before French could retire them, they had scored eight runs to deadlock the contest.

Fight Results

At New York—Billy Petrolle won by technical knockout over Bep Van Klaveran, 4 rounds; Wesley Ramey defeated Jimmy Slavin, 10 rounds; Varias Milling defeated Al Roth, 5 rounds; Herman Perlick defeated Patsy Pasculli, 5 rounds; Billy Hogan defeated Pete Guiotta, 5 rounds.

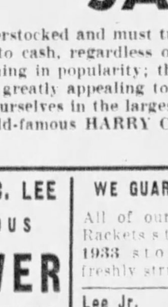
BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—



Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, July 13.—If Uncle Nick could guess as right about the stock market as baseball, I would be richer than J. P. Morgan and have Siamese twins instead of midgets sitting in my lap.

Last spring they laughed when I sat down at the piano and said our Washington team would be right up front. Well, if we ain't in the thick of the pennant race now, I must be dreaming I'm fighting wildcats.

Uncle Nick was also supposed to be slightly balmy two months ago when I put up storm warnings about the Red Sox. The Boston club had been in the cellar so long its stockings were black from coal dust. But the Red Sox must have been swigging Dr. Jekyll's transformation medicine lately, because the last three weeks they've been playing much better than .500 ball. So if I didn't have to put it on my income tax I would claim I was a 100 per cent prophet.

U. S. GOLFERS ADVANCE

VANCOUVER, July 13.—(AP.)—Four United States players and four from Canada lined up today for international duels in the quarter-final round of the Canadian amateur golf championship.

Givan had the easiest victory yesterday, beating Jack Moryson, of Vancouver, 8 and 7, but Campbell had to go to the thirty-seventh hole to defeat Jack Finger, of San Francisco, and Dr. Baker also was carried to an extra hole by John Lewis, of Brantford, Ont. Dolp came from behind to defeat young Alan Taylor, of Victoria, 4 and 3.

Dr. Baker met Ken Black, of Vancouver, who beat his townsman, Dick Moore, 5 and 4, and Campbell faced the Vancouver veteran, Cecil Coville. The latter turned back Fred Hoblitzel, of Toronto, 1 up, yesterday.

Glenville Wins In Matinee Race

M'KEE BEATEN IN JUNIOR GOLF

GAMBLE DOWNS PITT STAR; BALL WINS

By TOM BIRKS,
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 13.—The defeat of Claude McKee, of the South Hills Country Club, who won the district intercollegiate golf championship for Pitt a few weeks ago, was the highlight of first round matches in the annual Western Pennsylvania Junior golf championship tournament at the Greensburg Country Club today.

McKee was eliminated by Paden Gamble, of Youghiogheny, who won, 1 up, in a 19-hole duel.

T. C. Ball, of Churchill Valley, who won medalist honors yesterday, won and qualified for second round battling this afternoon, as did Jim Marks, Jr., of Kiski, and Francis Gould, of Indiana, others whose sterling play has stamped them as title favorites.

The McKee-Gamble match produced little good golf. McKee gained a lead of 2 up in playing the first nine in 40, four over par, and permitted Gamble to square the match by shooting a 42, seven over par, on the in nine.

WINS WITH BIRDIE

Gamble won with a birdie 3 to McKee's 4 in the playing of the first extra hole, a 251-yarder on which Gould came within not more than three inches of registering a hole-in-one in his duel with T. Johnson, of New Castle, which the Indiana star won, 6 and 4. The cards of the McKee-Gamble match:

Gamble out	4	6	5	4	4	5	4	5	5	42
McKee out	5	5	4	4	5	5	4	4	5	46
Gamble in	5	5	4	4	4	4	3	4	4	39	81
McKee in	6	5	5	4	4	5	3	5	4	41	87

Extra hole—Gamble 3, McKee 4.

Young Marks, seeking to annex the title which his brother, Wilson, was not qualified to defend because he no longer is within the age limit, shot the "hottest" golf of the first round in putting out Foster Meyer, of Highland, 5 and 4. Out in 37, one over par, he stuck very close to perfect figures throughout the duel. The cards:

Marks out	5	4	3	4	4	5	3	4	5—37
Meyer out	4	6	4	5	4	5	4	5	5—42
Marks in	5	4	5	3	4
Meyer in	5	4	5	4	4

BALL BEATS FREUND

Ball advanced at the expense of Jack Freund, of Westmoreland, 7 and 5, and W. B. Nicklin, Stanton Heights, put out E. A. McLaughlin, of the Field Club, 1 up, after the latter had won the last qualifying berth in a playoff this morning with Curtin Garner, of Highland. McLaughlin had a 4 to Garner's 5.

In other matches, R. B. Parker, of Highland, defeated Ted Martin, of Beaver Valley, 4 and 3; Herman Green, of New Castle, defeated C. M. Jamieson, Jr., of Greensburg, 1 up, and Joe Totten, of Hannastown, won over W. B. Smith, of Greensburg, 2 and 1.

James Oppenheimer defeated Jack Fitzhugh, 2 up.
Curtis Garner defeated James Jamieson 5 and 4.
Ned Caughey defeated Tom Wentling 2 and 1.
W. M. Jens defeated H. L. Gordon, 10 and 8.
Jack Mahaffey defeated Clinton Childs 2 up.

The tourney will be concluded tomorrow afternoon. Yesterday's qualifying scores:

T. C. Ball, Churchill Valley, 149; Jim Marks, Kiski, 150; Herman Green, New Castle, 155; R. B. Parker, Highland, 157; W. B. Nicklin, Stanton Heights, 157; Charles Johnson, New Castle, 158; Jack Freund, Westmoreland, 159; Claude McKee, South Hills, 159; Foster Meyer, Highland, 159; C. M. Jamison, Greensburg, 160; Joseph Totten, Stanton Heights, 161; Paden Gamble, Youghiogheny, 162; Ted Martin, Beaver Valley, 166; W. B. Smith, Greensburg, 166; Curtis Garner, Jr., 168; R. M. McLaughlin, Field Club, 168; Charles Kay, New Castle, 169; Ned Caughey, Youghiogheny, 170; Jimmy Bennett, Youghiogheny, 170; Jim Jamison, Greensburg, 171; Hen Davison, Stanton Heights, 172; David Jamison, Greensburg, 177; Jack Mahaffey, Aliquippa, 180; William Jens, South Hills, 182; David Rainey, New Castle, 182; Jack Fitzhugh, Youghiogheny, 182; W. Austin Loses To Crawford In Cup Play

BULLETIN.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 13.—Fred Perry gave England an even break in the first two singles matches of the European Zone Davis Cup tennis final with Australia here today, defeating Vivian McGrath, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, after Jack Crawford had won the opening duel from Bunny Austin.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 13.—(AP.)—Jack Crawford sent Australia into the lead in the European Zone Davis Cup final today by beating Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, of England, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, in the first singles match of the opening day.

Starting slowly, the new Wimbledon champion, recognized as the world's top singles star through his recent victory over Ellsworth Vines, fell behind the active Austin, second ranked British player, in the first set, but rallied to run off three straight sets to take the match with little further difficulty.

AUSTIN GAINS LEAD

Despite two foot faults, Austin took a lead of 4 to 2 in games in the first set, broke Crawford's service to win the seventh game, and then ran out the set on his own service.

That, however, was Austin's best stand, as Crawford, Australia's chief hope in the battle with Great Britain for the right to face the United States in the interzone final next week-end, quickly settled down to his normal game.

AMERICANS PRACTICE

PARIS, July 13.—The South Africans, Nat Farquharson and Vernon Kirby, and the Japanese, Jiro Satch and Ryosoke Nunoi, are assisting members of the United States Davis Cup tennis team in preparing for their match against the winner of the England-Australia European zone final which opened today.

The title hopes of the Americans have been lifted by the fine showing of their doubles team of George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn. Ellsworth Vines, ace of the United States forces, has been engaging in only light workouts, but Wilmer Allison, his singles partner, has been practicing steadily.

All will spend next week resting at the Saint Cloud Golf Club.

Van Klaveren Puts On Scene as Loser

NEW YORK, July 13.—Police had to lead Bep Van Klaveren, of Holland, from the ring at the Polo Grounds last night when he put on a stormy scene after his bout with Billy Petrolle, the old Fargo Express, was stopped following the fourth round.

The commission doctor refused to permit Bep to continue because of a re-opened old cut on his right eyebrow. Van Klaveren, who claims he never was defeated until this bout, protested to the referee, cried and even ran across the ring and urged Petrolle to come out again and pushed his glove into the veteran's face when he refused.

The crowd, out of sympathy with Van Klaveren's plight, joined in the din and the police had to break it up. The Dutchman had put up a good fight until he was injured.

Keystone Golfers At Chartiers Heights

Members of the Keystone A. C. and Chartiers Heights Country Club are engaging in club golf championships at the Chartiers Club this afternoon. The affair is a joint get-together for the members of both organizations.

Mrs. J. R. Murphy, of the St. Clair Country Club, won the Chartiers Heights invitation tournament yesterday with an 88-17—81. Mrs. N. L. Neibe, of the Nemacolin Country Club, took home the low net prize with a 71.

Mrs. J. C. Baird won the tourney for home players, with a net 75, while Mrs. A. G. Wallerstedt won the second flight, with a net 73.

Mrs. Eva Blair, former women's city golf champion, scored a hole in one yesterday on the No. 5 green at Schenley. She was playing with Mrs. E. MacLaren.

LEAGUE SHOOT TODAY

The Western Pennsylvania Trapshooters' League holds its third monthly shoot of the season at the Vesta Rod and Gun Club, California, Pa., today.

ST. CLAIR LOSES IN STATE GOLF TOURNAMENT

He made the 11 holes of the lopsided match in even par. Brinke was medalist in yesterday's qualification rounds with a 36-hole score of 147.

One of the runners-up in the medal rounds, Denniston St. Clair, of the Kiskiminetas Club in the Pittsburgh area, was eliminated by Billy Hyndman, 17-year-old Philadelphia interscholastic champion, 4 and 3.

UPPER BRACKET

C. F. Baily, Merion, defeated J. E. Mitchell, second, Merion, 4 and 2.
Jack Benson, Oakmont, defeated H. C. Neff, Old York Road, 2 and 1.
Chris Brinke, Aronomink, defeated Howard Wasserman, Philmont, 8 and 7.

NET STARS WIN AT BROOKLINE

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 13.—(AP.)—It was cleanup day at the Longwood Bowl tennis tournament with officials arranging to have every division reach the semi-final stage by tonight.

The program called for play in the women's singles and doubles, the men's doubles and mixed doubles.

Eighteen-year-old Katherine Winthrop, of Hamilton, stole the show yesterday. Unranked in the seedings, she defeated the fourth seeded Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, and kept pace with the talented Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline.

In the second round of the women's doubles play yesterday, Mrs. Delloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., and Cecilia Reigel, Philadelphia, defeated Marjorie Sachs, of Cambridge, and Dorrence Chase, of Boston, 1-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Pair of City League Games Carded Today

Two games will be played in the City League this evening. The Ottie Cochrans go to Olympia Park to meet the Book nine and the second game finds the Dormont, first-half champion, traveling to Whitaker to play Squire Ackerson's outfit.

even most of the ringside reporters (including some New York experts!) insisted that I deserved the win. And that was a most novel experience for Primo indeed!

Before a return match could be clinched with Poreda, he tackled the late Ernie Schaaf in Madison Square Garden and was knocked out in the sixth round, early in January of this year.

Early in 1933, and even before it, the heavyweight championship situation had taken a strange turn which, luckily, led to my crack at the title in June.

After Schmeling won the title on a foul in June, 1930, a return match with Sharkey was put off until two years later and then the challenger had to take only 10 per cent as his share of the gate. When Sharkey outpointed the German and won the crown in June, 1932, his manager declared that Schmeling could get another fight with Jack provided the German took the small 10 per cent end of the money.

THE SCENE CHANGES

Meanwhile, Max Baer had rushed to the front; Schmeling's manager sought big money and he arranged to get a champion's share in a match with Baer. Thus Champion Sharkey seemed left without a suitable fight in sight until it was decided to hold a series of heavyweight eliminations. This started when Schaaf stopped Poreda, and the boxing authorities decided to give me the next match with Ernie.

Now Schaaf was Sharkey's protege, and some thought he was as good a boxer as, if not better than, Jack. Since Schmeling was tied up with Baer for a late spring or early summer contest, it was announced that the winner of the Schaaf-Carnera match would later battle Sharkey for the title. Maybe that chance didn't put me on edge. Had I known what trouble and tragedy that contest was to cause, I hardly could have trained so eagerly for it as I did.

THE SCHAAF TRAGEDY

Soon after the crack-at-the-title angle of the match was made known, several able writers began to attack it bitterly, alleging that "it must be in the bag for Carnera because Sharkey would not be allowed to defend the title against his stablemate and pupil. This uproar was not confined to New York City, and it revived all of the scandals ever plastered on me, or on boxing for that matter.

In my next chapter, for the first time, I will publish my own impressions of the Schaaf tragedy.

HOW TO AVOID SHAVING IRRITATION REVEALED BY SKIN CLINIC

SHAVE with a sharp blade if you would avoid serious skin trouble. This is the authoritative statement of the Gillette Skin Clinic, headed by an eminent dermatologist. "Based upon a recent widespread survey among physicians and dermatologists, and our own research, we know beyond doubt that many disorders of the skin definitely can be traced to faulty shaving," states the Clinic.

To meet the demands of our Skin Clinic and to satisfy the requirements of other physicians and dermatologists, the "BLUE BLADE" is as sharp as modern engineering skill can make it. In a recent competitive test with other "makes" of blades, the "BLUE BLADE" proved from 23% to 42% sharper.

Equally important is the uniformity of the "BLUE BLADE"—made so by automatic method. Even the steel-treating process is self-controlled, assuring uniformity of temper never before achieved.

You need and want the shaving comfort provided by the "BLUE BLADE". Learn how it protects tender skin. Buy a package of "BLUE BLADES" and see for yourself. Gillette Safety Razor Company, Boston, Mass.

THE COMPOSITION OF ESSOLENE IS PROTECTED BY U.S. PATENT PENDING

AT REGULAR GASOLINE PRICE

Essolene Guarantees SMOOTHER PERFORMANCE

ESSOLENE is a distinct advance over gasoline—an improvement which any driver will easily notice in any car. The composition that has made this new motor fuel possible was developed in the greatest petroleum laboratories in the world. It is protected by U. S. Patent pending. Essolene contains a special solvent oil which cleans, keeps clean and in proper working condition valve stems, piston rings and piston ring grooves. Essolene contains no ordinary lubricating oil • Words won't run cars. But with Essolene words are not necessary. Make one simple, convincing test—try Essolene once in your car, under any condition you choose. Essolene will speak for itself. We ask only one thing. In fairness to Essolene have as little of other fuels in your tank as possible when you make this test • Essolene is sold at all Esso Stations and Dealers from Maine to Louisiana.

"STANDARD" ESSO STATIONS

Essolene, Esso, and Essolube—the 5-Star Motor Oil, are sold at Esso Stations and Dealers owned, operated or supplied by the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania.

COLORED ORANGE TO PREVENT SUBSTITUTION

STOCKS JUMP ON BUYING RUSH

With members of the distilling family spurting 5 to 16 points at one time, all other categories joined with gains of 1 to around 5. The rush of buyers swamped the machinery of the stock exchange and the ticker tape was minutes late throughout the greater part of the session.

Aside from prospects of repeal, there apparently was little fresh news to motivate the resumption of the upswing. Commodities generally relaxed their enthusiastic advance, although most of them were fairly firm. The dollar dropped a couple of cents to the British pound, but steadied in terms of gold currencies. Silver futures edged up to new highs for the year. Bonds improved.

While market followers were watching closely for reports of profiteering in foods and other necessities as a result of the recent upswing in commodity prices, much interest was expressed in a statement issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics at Washington to the effect that the cost of living in June, this year, was actually 2.9 per cent below that in December, 1932, and 24.6 per cent under that of the peak level in 1929.

There was also considerable discussion of the administration's program for the inauguration of minimum wages and maximum hours of labor throughout the United States. Some financial quarters fear that if the various "codes" are made too severe in the matter of pay and working schedules, living costs may jump too quickly for public comfort.

GRAINS REACH NEW TOPS

CHICAGO, July 13.—Grain prices scored early upturns today, with wheat and corn reaching new top records. Fresh advances, however, were relatively smaller than of late. A jump of 11 points in British exchange was the chief incentive for buyers. Opening 1/8-13/8c higher, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn started 1/4 off to 5/8 up, and subsequently underwent a general sag. Rye, which has risen 25 cents in three days, opened 2c higher.

Rye soon receded to about yesterday's finish.

Selling on price advances formed the rule in all grains. Traders in wheat and rye largely acted on opinions of pit notables that the markets were in a rather unhealthy state, prices having had a phenomenal advance.

Strikingly in contrast with recent experience, grain price fluctuations much of the time today kept within a narrow range of about 1 cent. As a rule, transactions were in small lots, with a general disposition shown to accept quick profits on either side of the market. Houses with eastern connections were prominent as buyers of corn on setbacks in quotations, and helped to bring about fractional advances after early downturns.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to hog market declines.

WRITING 'FINIS' TO 'RECAPTURE'

The order was a result of repeal of the recapture provision of the 1920 transportation act.

The commission's order was necessary to close its records in the cases, all small roads still in course of adjudication.

These were the only cases in which final orders had been issued which still were in course of adjudication. About 100 short line railroads had paid into the Treasury more than $10,000,000 in excess income. This money represented half of the earnings of the roads above 6 per cent. Interest on the fund has brought it to $13,000,000.

The largest sum involved in today's order was Illinois Termonal Company, $800,000.

BUSINESS

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Shows Net Profit

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE INCOME ACCOUNT of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation made public yesterday indicates that the company has definitely turned the corner toward better times.

The expansion in sales is being directly reflected in earnings. In June the company showed a net profit of $45,923 after deducting all charges. This compared with losses of $56,839 in May and $79,146 in April.

As a result of the losses in April and May, a net loss of $90,062 was reported for the quarter ended June 30. Even this reflected the improved trend since it compared with a loss of $203,925 in the first quarter of this year and with a loss of $183,785 in the second quarter of 1932.

* * *

Sales Volume Still Gaining

THE FACT THAT sales volume is continuing to increase, together with the showing of a profit for June, indicates that the company will be able to show fairly substantial earnings for the third quarter. It is, of course, too early and there are too many uncertain factors to permit the making of a definite estimate of earnings for the period.

The carryover of orders from June to July was greater than all the business booked during May. Sales in June were 75 per cent in excess of May. May showed a gain of 38 per cent over April.

The improvement has not been confined to any particular lines of the company's business. It has reflected the general expansion in industrial activity.

* * *

Current Position Remains Strong

IN SPITE OF the losses of the depression years, the company remains in a strong current financial position. The balance sheet of June 30 showed current assets of $4,649,670, against current liabilities of $306,794. Cash of $509,433 alone was substantially in excess of all current liabilities.

Included in current assets were marketable securities carried at their cost of $2,418,156. These had a quoted market value of $1,334,327.

Current assets exceeded the funded debt which amounted to $3,848,000 of 5½ per cent sinking fund bonds due in 1947.

There is no preferred stock. The capital stock consists of 1,500,000 shares, of which 66,147 shares are held by the company. These were acquired at an average cost of $12.67 a share. The current market price is close to this amount.

Plate Glass Output Increasing Steadily

Polished plate glass production in June was 9,499,260 square feet, against 7,922,434 in May, and 4,909,988 in June 1932. For the six months to June 30, this year, production was 38,126,348 square feet, as compared with 29,291,919 in the corresponding period last year. The recovery in production is emphasized by a comparison with the low point of the depression when the total for August, 1932, was only 1,773,470 square feet.

OBITUARY

Roby Funeral.

Funeral services for George P. Roby, 64, were to be held this afternoon at his home, 1917 Delaware avenue, Swissvale, followed by services in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Braddock. He died Monday.

For many years Mr. Roby was engaged in the retail and wholesale grocery business in North Braddock. He moved from that town to Swissvale 11 years ago. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church and the Braddock lodge of the Knights of Malta.

Besides his widow he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Petrosky and Miss Phyllis Roby, both of Swissvale, and a sister.

Quay Funeral.

BEAVER, Pa., July 13.—Funeral services for J. Alex Quay were to be held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Annie L. Quay, 190 Beaver street, this afternoon. He died Tuesday at his home in Massillon, Ohio.

He was a member of the Masonic and Elks lodges and the Beaver Presbyterian Church.

Hook Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Louisa Hook, of Lansing, Mich., formerly of the North Side, are being held today in Aeberli's Chapel. Burial will take place in Highwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Hook died Tuesday in Lansing. She was born in Allegheny in 1851 and attended the old Third Ward School. She was a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Crafton. She leaves a son, Frederick L. Hook, of Lansing.

Louis Fishman.

Word was received here from Springfield, Ill., of the death of Louis Fishman, 70, retired merchant of that city. He was the father of Milton A. Fishman, of 829 Jancey street, for many years a local newspaper man and at present an employe of the County Department of Parks. In addition to Milton Fishman, a widow, two daughters and 10 other sons survive.

John W. Matson.

Funeral services for John W. Matson, 63, who died at his home, 120 Linden avenue, Edgewood, Tuesday, were held at his home today.

Mr. Matson was an elder in the Edgewood Presbyterian Church.

SAVAGE PARADISE -:- Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas -:- By MARGARET MATCHES

Rabaul had changed while I was wandering among the lovely little islands and while I fought fever in the hospital above the city. All of a sudden it had begun to grow, not so much in size as in ambition. Plans were under way for two or three new stores, which would mean that luxuries would not be at such a premium as hitherto. Already a radical change for the better in a cheap American automobile had made itself known, even in New Guinea, and the one garage featured a picture of a jolly little sedan and roadster.

Carpenter's trade store, where I had had a job, was perking up. An Australian girl had set up a manicuring and hairdressing booth there, and was at least managing to hold her own despite the devastating effect of Rabaul's humid climate on marcels. Another Australian woman had traveled out on the Marsina from Sydney, and was at the moment holding an exhibit of imported dresses and hats and shoes at the European Hotel, and feminine Rabaul was appearing attired in almost the snappy perfection of a New York stenographer. But, alas, silks do not last long in the tropics, and mildew attacks even the most fashionable of dancing slippers, and the dampness is fatal to flimsy hats. Presently the fancy import shops winked out, and a lady returned to Sydney disappointed and wiser. You can't make a Paris of Rabaul.

A new road-house had opened up out on the splendid north shore; and up at Salamaua, where gradually the airplane is simplifying the soul-searing difficulties of getting to the gold fields, there was beginning a new gold rush. Mushroom companies were floating gold stocks, and their advance agents were trooping to the colorful little capital.

CLERKS IMPORTED

Carpenter's, the Melanesia Company, and Burns-Philp were preparing for reorganizations and a pickup in trade; they were importing clerks from "down South," downy-faced youths who knew nothing of the tropics and who talked a great deal about this "land of opportunity." I wondered whether this gathering-in of the innocents were not merely another form of recruiting, whether the brilliant future in a lotus-eaters' land had not been dangled before them instead of the usual bit of mirror, trade scent, or bright length of calico. For the few strong ones, who would struggle through by hard and intelligent application, and who would stay away from drinking, and would rise to the challenge of the new country, for them no doubt there was a future. But not for the weaklings.

The spirit of Rabaul, that voluptuous, languorous-eyed, heartless Circe, was regarding these invaders with a lazy smile; few of them would escape her spell.

The old timers in the Territory were not taking kindly to the invaders. They knew the stuff that stands the ordeal of Melanesia, and they had little faith in the new product.

SUFFERS FROM MALARIA

What belonged to Rabaul had altered little. The changing guard of police-boys marched sprucely up Casuarina avenue at morning and at sunset, eyes stonily straight ahead, very self-important, their flat sailor hats set absurdly atop kinky wool. On rainy days the natives ambled along roadsides sheltered by a banana leaf, while their masters fared forth beneath gay paper Japanese parasols.

My job was offered to me again, and I took it for a while. Three months had made, as usual, a complete change in the staff. Even Sari had been fired; she had told the manager what she thought of him, probably including his wife. Unless the importations of "clarks" worked out as intended, business in Rabaul would still be in the hands of nomadic drifters.

And now malaria descended upon me. One morning I was well, the next a disconcerting heaviness of head and mind were upon me, rapidly progressing to a wracking headache and then iciness and chattering of teeth, and utter misery.

After a time I found I was becoming the victim of the advanced kind of malaria that returns every other day as regularly as the clock goes round. I was learning to dread my turns as an insomniac dreads nightfall. Rabaul, too, was taking too strong a hold on me. And Paris was singing in my ears. The thought of home tugged at my heart. My adventure as an adventure was pretty well rounded out. Yes, I would pull up the roots—give one mighty tug, and go!

PLEADS WITH MASTER

A week before my scheduled sailing I awoke one morning at sunrise, and, looking down at the harbor, saw lying quietly in the tinted reflection of the volcano across the lagoon A tramp freighter. She was battered and not very clean as to paint, but she was a welcome sight to see.

That day I met the master of the Roseric. The broad veranda of the European Hotel is Rabaul's popular meeting place for the noon cocktail. He was there. My problem was difficult, for sometimes skippers of freighters won't take women aboard. The first setback I encountered was that the Roseric could not carry passengers, either male or female; it was in her charter, or whatever it is that determines what a ship can and can't do. Furthermore, no woman had ever made a voyage aboard her. It looked serious for my plans, but I had the will to sail on the Roseric.

Good master of the Roseric! His was one of the kindest hearts that ever beat beneath a tunic. But he didn't see how he could help me out. There was no place on his ship for a woman to put up, even if a passenger were possible. It took three days to make him see things my way.

At last, probably worn out by pleadings and arguments, my pathetic picture of how I was stranded far from home in the middle of Melanesian seas, he said: "I'll tell you what I'll do, girl. If you'll sign on as a member of the crew I can get you as far as Singapore. I'll give up my cabin to you as far as there."

LEAVES RABAUL

Sign on as crew! It was exactly what I wanted. I was convinced that I'd make a swell stewardess—on a tramp freighter. I gambled on the possibility that he would see me through to Marseilles, if I came up to scratch as far as Singapore. And that is exactly what he did do. The voyage to Marseilles was to take 50 days. We were to stop at Singapore, Port Said and Suez en route. We were to travel a path through fabulous waters—around New Guinea through Dampier Straits, on through the Banda, Flores and Java seas. We were to travel among the East Indies, would skirt the coast of Arabia, and I should travel in the Waters of Africa—the Waters of Africa!

And now that it is all over, my official discharge, tendered by the British consul at Marseilles, bears witness to the best job I ever had! It should be a good passport for another tramp-ship adventure, for under the legend, "Copy of Report of Character," W. Forsyth, master, testified that as a stewardess my "ability" and "general character" were both "very good—A202."

* * *

We sailed away one evening. From behind the volcano, The Mother, the great full moon pushed steadily up, as by a mighty unseen hand. Riding lights burned brightly from the masts of little schooners and from two dilapidated inter-island steamers. A newly arrived copra ship, the old Antonia, loomed a black hulk in midstream.

Leaning out, drinking it all in, as one takes a last look at a beloved thing, I could hardly bear to leave. Between the ships' salutes I could hear the beating of hundus up in the hills; the roll of the hidden drums passed on the word from jungle village to jungle village that the "big fella ship" was departing. Signal fires glowed here and there in the somber mountains behind Rabaul.

Steadily we pulled out to sea. The friendly little schooners and the friendly lights along the shore grew fainter ... we rounded Gazenne Peninsula.

Goodbye, New Guinea! Farewell, Rabaul!

(THE END.)

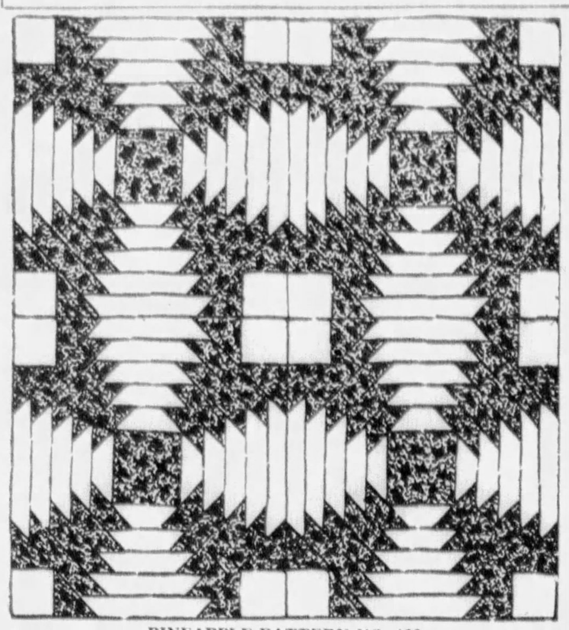
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



PINEAPPLE PATTERN NO. 429
By LAURA WHEELER

There are few quilt designs that have been handed down to us that enjoy the popularity of the Pineapple Pattern. Aside from its beauty as a finished quilt—for it has a beauty of design that would class it with the best examples of early American handicraft—it is one of the simplest to make. The pattern pieces, to the greatest part of one width, permit cutting the material in strips which can then be cut to the size of the patches. It is then but a simple matter to start with the center patch and keep sewing patches round and round till the block is done. Two materials are effective in this quilt, but it can be equally lovely when made of scraps of material.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Have you ever realized that you are a conundrum bore?

It delights you to ask puzzling questions to embarrass other folk.

Those who indulge in this sort of sport are superficial rather than well grounded in general education.

It is not difficult to learn some foreign phrases or even conduct a limited conversation in several different tongues.

It is a simple matter to commit to memory a few mathematical tricks.

But you would better bear in mind that people who are really well educated have no desire to display that knowledge.

They are always too busy pursuing the path of knowledge to advertise what they have in mind.

Only a genuine desire to learn, brought out by a questioner will induce the well-grounded scholar in any line to tell something of what he knows.

If you have a smattering of many things and have been seeking notoriety on it, you have noticed that many avoid you and you can guess why, can't you?

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Greetings, Fellows!

Spike and Snuggins are now sailing the river in the good ship "Junior Patrol," have you noticed? Spike's sailor brother is steering, and it looks as though the fellows are going to have a mighty nice trip down the river.

Those big waves yesterday had Snuggins just a little "river sick" but he'll be all right after he has been rolled around by a few more steamboats. We don't know just yet where the boys are going, but we'll bet they are going to have a lot of fun.

It's a good idea for every fellow to see new sights once in a while. The wise men say that "travel is broadening." By that, they mean that a fellow who travels learns many things that he probably wouldn't learn at home, and, also, he probably understands how people in other places think and do things differently from people in his own neighborhood.

So, travel if you can, fellows, but only if you have an older person to go with to take care of you. One of the best ways a kid can help others is to make it easy for his parents and older friends to take care of him.

Whatever you do, don't get into an automobile with strangers, or walk too far away from home alone. You may fall into an old coal mine and break a leg, and if you are all alone there will be no one to run and get help. You may get hit by an automobile driven by a fellow who is a hit-and-run driver, afraid to stop and take you to a hospital.

Here's a letter from Mary Joris, of 341 Allegheny avenue, West Aliquippa. She says:

"I want to have kindness and gratitude throughout the family."

And we're sure you will, Mary. Always be cheerful and bright, help others cheerfully, especially your mother, and we know that you will.

A letter from Ruth Grimes, of 1110 Penn avenue, Jeannette, had inclosed with it four pledge slips. Ruth says:

"I am a member of the Junior Patrol. I have started a club and am sending the inclosed names for membership."

That means that we can welcome another swell Junior Patrol club today. Let us know all the news about your new club, Ruth, and don't forget that we want pictures and the names of officers.

And here's another nice letter from Billy Clarke, of Allison Park, to Junior. Billy says:

"I am writing you a little note telling you that I read about you in the Sun-Telegraph every evening, and it is very interesting. I'm sorry to hear that you have the measles and cannot go to the circus. I hope Snuggins and Spike will have a happy time at the circus.

"I will forget about the circus now and talk about something else. I am sending in this pledge now because other times I wanted to do this but had something else to be done. I am going to try to make a Junior Patrol Club at my home in Allison Park, and then I will send you the members' names in about seven weeks' time. I am going to try hard. And now I will wish you all a happy-happy-happy time to all."

Looks like we are going to have another Allison Park Junior Patrol pretty soon, fellows, doesn't it? There are lots more letters, and we will try to have some of them in the Mail Box tomorrow.

Add similes——

DON'T BE AN UMPCHAY WHEN YOU KNOCK OPPORTUNITY.

Now that confidence is returning with a hey-nonney-nonney and a how-have-you-been, why not do your bit to start the wheels of industry? In short, why not apply for a job? The more men who apply for jobs, the easier things will be upon the nation's executives, who will be so busy turning down job-hunters they will have no time to think about things. And the less they think about things the better things will be.

Of course, when applying for a position, there are certain rules to be observed. Always knock on an office door before opening it; this attracts attention and awakens the vice presidents. Enter with a pleasant look on your face and remove your hat; but do not toss it lightly on the executive's desk—as this disturbs the dust. Be a good listener and nod understandingly when the great man says: "Well, you know how things have been." Do not look at worn places in the carpet or stare at the charts on the wall with a cynical smile. But, naturally, you should look about sufficiently so when you have been told "We'll keep you in mind," you can get out into the fresh air without picking up the second best stenographer.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Chestnut hair is having a run of popularity. Girls who tried out the platinum idea—found their tresslocks getting jute-like and whispy breaking at a touch—trot-trotted to beauty shops and acquired a new color. Chestnut is a coppery-red very attractive. The professional dyer attains this new tint by using a henna pack to which peroxide is added. No, dear reader we shall not tell you how to do it. Only expert fingers should attempt the job. Too hazardous.

Why will the girls who are built after the plans and specifications of a cream puff wear short coats? They shouldn't do it. Any cross line in the design of frock or coat adds to breadth. Those new ascot ties are not so good either, not below a double chin or swathed around a neck that is far from swanlike. The flat hat is only for girls and women of normal dimensions or of excessive willowness since it detracts from height. And the snug belt at the normal waistline simply won't do a-tall. Drop it slightly.

Walking Is Great Sport

Even though it is a much over-rated industry there seems to be nothing stemming the tide of week-end walkers.

The first real Saturday plodders we ever saw were scramming out of San Francisco. Thousands of them leave the town for the long, dusty toe waltz into the mountains.

We ain't strong for the boulevard glide ourselves. But we were envious of the Californians' health, youth and the lunch basket on their backs. Especially, the lunch baskets.

The Golden Gaters trot up Mt. Tamapias, or some of the other residential bunkers. They walk all Saturday, all Sunday and most of Monday.

It's tough work but invigorating. We helped to carry one weekender back to town on a stretcher. He had finished 70 miles on his curly heels. He was blistered, fatigued, wrecked, fried and shattered. But he raised his weary head from the stretcher and said, "Boy, we know how to play in this state."

That was 15 or 20 years ago. But they tell us the sturdy Californians still ramble on their arched axles through the wooded hills and silent valleys of the coast.

It's catching on in New York, Chicago and St. Louis. Name your home town paper and we have it. Up in Boston town their Miss Sears rattles off a hundred miles between looks into the mirror. This may be a surprise to other young metropolitan misses, but Eleanor Sears starts out on foot.

Her walking is academic without being collegiate. She can hoof faster and longer than the average man and likes to do it. When Eleanor takes you for a walk you be sure and take carfare along.

We give the medal to the California hikers. They have been at it for many years. They have many stringy miles of soft roads and clovered lanes. The scenery is magnificent. Everything is cast perfectly for the walker except the sun which becomes a trifle enthusiastic at high noon and is liable to scramble your intellect. But if you keep on walking nobody will notice that.

And you have the rest of the week to rest up in the office.

The Sweatshop Inquiry

The Gallagher Commission's Investigation Is in the Public Interest.

There is ground for suspicion that some of the witnesses who came before the Gallagher Commission to testify that certain Pittsburgh companies were oppressing their employes by paying them too little and working them too long did not present an entirely accurate picture of conditions.

It may be that some of the discharged and disgruntled employes who accused their employes of operating sweatshops did the latter an injustice.

But the investigation is not to be deprecated on that account. In the long run it will prove to have been in the public interest.

Even though an occasional witness may distort the picture, there is bound to be a large sub-stratum of truth in testimony given by so many persons independently.

It is necessary for the improvement of the condition of the workers that their hours and wages, if unfair, shall be made public.

The Door Not Locked

It Is Still Possible, Despite Judge Marshall's Decision, To Carry Out the Wharf Program.

In his decision that under the law of 1836 the City of Pittsburgh cannot lawfully use the open space between Duquesne way and the Allegheny River for any other purpose than as a wharf, Judge Thomas M. Marshall makes no reference to the law of 1927, which provides that when city water front property has become unnecessary for use as a wharf the city may by ordinance direct that it shall be used for any other public purpose.

Pittsburgh has passed no ordinance in accordance with the requirements of the act of 1927, and it is questionable if allowing the land to be used for the parking of automobiles is a public purpose as contemplated by the statute.

It is reassuring, however, to learn that the door has not been locked by Judge Marshall's decision against the $4,500,000 river front improvement program, which has in mind the use of the wharves not only as boat landing places but also for other public purposes.

The law of 1836, on which Judge Marshall's decision is based, is not suited to present conditions. When it was passed steamboats furnished one of the principal methods of transportation for passengers as well as freight, and it was highly important that the landing places should not be encroached upon. Since then railroads have largely superseded river craft for transportation, and modern methods of operating the steamboats have so changed that the wharves in the Golden Triangle are no longer adequate.

The downtown water front can be used for other public purposes without imposing inconveniences on the river interests.

Workmen's Compensation

The Procedure Should Be Revised in the Interest of Justice and Efficiency.

The committee appointed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot to investigate the administration of the State Workmen's Compensation system began hearings in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Although the investigation is hardly more than started, enough evidence has already been obtained to warrant the statement that the administration of the law requires revision in the interest of justice and efficiency.

A former Workmen's Compensation referee declares the most pressing need is the immediate appointment of a sufficient number of stenographers to permit the referees to clear their calendars of cases without the long delay that now attends the settlement of so many of these cases.

He also calls for the re-writing of the law to make it possible to conform more closely to the principle that workmen's compensation cases should be handled, not as "litigation," but in a humane, commonsense way.

The separation of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau and the Workmen's Compensation Board from the control of the Department of Labor and Industry is another recommendation, but is likely to be challenged.

The law is loosely written. Occupations are lumped into about 300 classifications, as against 10 times that many in the compensation laws of other states. Large industries, whose employes' work and hazards are highly different, are put under a blanket classification and required to pay compensation insurance rates that may not be at all fairly adjusted to the risk.

The investigation now under way should result in revision of the Workmen's Compensation law at the next session of the Legislature.

A Superior Cruiser

It Is Gratifying to Learn That Our Foolish Naval Policy Is to Be Abandoned.

Quite in keeping with the recovered vigor of our naval policy is the news from Washington that the American Navy is prepared to lay down a cruiser which will be superior to any now afloat.

Work on it cannot be commenced until the expiration of the London Naval Treaty, under the terms of which the United States accepted the most ridiculous and irrational restrictions upon the types of vessels making up its tonnage quota.

The cruisers now under construction, pursuant to the permissions of the existing naval treaty, are armed with six-inch guns, instead of the eight inch guns which for years had been customary with American cruisers.

Furthermore, our acquiescence in the reduced cruising radius proposed by the London agreement involved a departure from vessel types which had been worked out as conforming to our needs and to the lesser number of naval bases that we possess.

The neglect of the United States in past years to establish requisite naval bases—suitable in number and geographical position—had left us but one expedient for overcoming the disadvantage in this respect which we suffer in comparison with other naval powers.

With the necessity of relatively longer cruises between bases, it is necessary that our ships should be so constructed and equipped as to have a compensating advantage in cruising radius.

And it is altogether consistent with the new spirit of self-reliance which is to animate and dictate our naval policy, that we should look forward to the near-approaching time when we can work clear of the restrictions which our incompetent diplomacy of recent years has put upon us, and be done with foreign dictation in matters as vital as the theory and organization of our national defense.

It is gratifying for Americans to realize that the scrapping of floating ships for blue prints, as we fatuously agreed to do at the Washington Disarmament Conference of 1921-22, is no longer the American policy.

The recent statement of Secretary of the Navy Swanson sounded the knell of that form of national imbecility.

WOMAN'S GARDEN OF REVERSES

Here's your hat.
Watch out—don't step on the cat!
Yes, I saw your keys, SOMEwhere.
There's your brief-case, on the chair.
What? Your morning papers? Wait!
Here they are. Good-bye, it's late!
Out of cigarets? All right—
Try my brand—and here's a light.
Say—I need another dollar.
What's that spot on your clean collar?
Shut the screen door—hurry fast!
Thank the Lord! He's GONE, at last!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 13. — The clump of clay feet—from Morgan to Walker — still reverberates. Never in a single fiscal year have so many New York idols toppled off pedestals. Because the metropolis is an island of intense hero worship there are many lonely places against the sky. Tick them off!

There is no place in the world where the magic of popularity is so easily seized or hastily snatched. And no human figure is quite so pathetic as the de-popularized celebrity. He finds the people who cheered enjoy a sadistic glee in looking the other way.

Napoleon at St. Helena expressed the New York spirit with: "A hero should die at the peak of his fame." At breakfast we counted 18 New Yorkers who rode the tide full crest a year ago, but today are eddied into a bleak isolation. Many head-line names are now jests.

It's heresy, I suppose, but it often struck me—also Chas. M. Schwab, I hear—the happiest folk are those who clutch at fame and miss. They spend the rest of their lives on the side-line, prattling self-glorification, a continuous vaudeville of evasion. But always happy.

Early today, while shadows were peeling away to dawn, I dressed because of a wakefulness and went for a walk. On a deserted corner was a man who exuded the vatted aroma of cheap rye. He had been "playing a piano at a racket," and as proof tapped a music roll under his arm. He had written many popular songs, he said, but publishers stole them. He would be richer than Irving Berlin today had he not been robbed. He fairly bubbled incriminations. Yet he was happier in martyrdom than most men with success.

My thwarted friend was also a soft shoe dancer in other days—he taught George Primrose and Eddie Leonard many of their tricks. Or so he voiced his jubilant romanza. He was anxious to teach me one step. But the morning was too young for caper. The point is: What successful person has exuberance to teach a total stranger a pas seul at 5 in the morning? Only a failure expresses such joyous abandon.

Trick bicycling is back with a bang. It is in demand on all remaining vaudeville circuits. A trick rider, billed as "the peer of social bicyclists," crashed the newspapers by riding up the steps of Sid Solomon's fashionable Casino and into the ballroom at a social charity. Likewise, Indian club juggling, so highly bespoke in this column recently, was given a try at Music Hall and the performer stopped every show. He was booked for London, pronto.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Don't you," says she, "get bitter at people? You must see so much crookedness and weakness, and probably face vicious attacks."

Yes, lady, I face plenty. Every columnist does. But I don't get bitter. And that's not nobility; it's just horse sense. I know better.

I'm 50 years old. You see plenty of living in 50 years, if you have the spunk to come out of your hole. And, once, I thought that living was all going to be a fairy tale. For many years I believed that Everybody Was Wonderful. All they needed was a chance.

Then I began to change my mind. I saw people lying, cheating, boasting, scheming—doing incredibly cruel things—to satisfy their own conceit and greed. I saw them passing up all the shining adventures, because thep were too lazy and cowardly to take a chance.

And I almost hated people. I almost grew bitter.

Myself!

I was naturally rather fond of myself. I felt, with some reason, that I had a fairly civilized mind, a decent heart. I was reasonably brave and kind. I had very good intentions. I wanted to make a fine record and had, on occasions, performed some rather swell acts. Yes, as humans went, I wasn't a bad sort.

YET, IN SPITE OF ALL THAT, I, TOO, MADE A MESS OF LIFE.

I, too, passed up the shining adventures, because I was too lazy and cowardly to take a chance!

I, too, boasted, fibbed, did cruel things to satisfy my vanity and greed!

In spite of being a fairly decent person, I did all those things. And yet I could believe in myself. I could bank on myself. I could even, at times, be proud of myself.

And, even in my lowest depths of remorse, nothing could make me bitter at myself, or make me believe that I wasn't worth living!

SO, IF, IN THE FACE OF THOSE FACTS, I COULDN'T BE BITTER AT MYSELF, HOW COULD I BE BITTER AT THE OTHER FELLOW?

I couldn't.

No matter how mad he made me, no matter how disgusted I felt, I was forced to remember that I probably made him just as mad and disgusted at me. So if I wanted forbearance from others, I'd have to give it myself. I'd have to be as willing to understand the other fellow as I was to understand myself.

Hadn't someone said, "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us?"

Well, I began to look into this trespassing business; and it wasn't so complicated, once I opened my mind to it. Indeed, it was quite simple—as simple as understanding the flowers I loved; the trees that were my friends.

Why were some of those trees spindly, twisted, sickly-seeming? Sometimes, because they hadn't had a decent start. Oftener, because they weren't yet grown. BUT THEY WERE ON THEIR WAY! AND SOME DAY, IF I GAVE THEM TIME AND LOVING CARE, THEY'D BLOSSOM INTO BEAUTY.

How? When? I didn't know. But I was willing to bet that a God who'd see trees through wasn't going to fail men. And that wasn't just sentimental faith. I had proof. He hadn't failed me, had he? Then why should I think that my neighbor didn't have a chance?

So that's why I'm not bitter at people. I know too much about myself!

People act pretty ornery—and it's your own bad luck if you let them get the bulge on you. But they have grand makings. And they're on their way. GIVE THEM TIME!

The Human Side of the News

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology Produces Lightning—Queer Freaks of Thunderbolts—Safety in a Storm

By EDWIN C. HILL

MAN has learned to forge the thunderbolts of the gods and to hurl them against the secrets of unlimited power locked up since the beginning of time in the invisible atom. That news may prove to be the most tremendous advance that mankind has made toward mastering the hidden forces of nature.

From man-made lightning and the smashing of the atom may spring within the next quarter of a century such comforts and luxuries as even the scientists have scarcely dreamed of. Locked up in the atom is almost unlimited power—the power to run our trains, light our cities, fly our airplanes with engines no bigger than a child's toy, and produce a thousand marvels more incredible than the magic wrought by Aladdin with his wonderful lamp.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has produced lightning bolts of more terrific power than ever flashed across the darkening sky—lightning strokes of 10,000,000 voltage, electric battering rams constructed by science to break down the walls imprisoning the almost unlimited energy contained within the tiny atom.

When that man-made lightning flashes forth with a blinding glare and man-made thunder crashes with the ear-splitting report, the scene within the institute's laboratory is as dramatic and thrilling as the view of an outdoor electrical storm.

Huge wooden frames support great shining spheres 15 feet in diameter. An electrician, seated in a legless chair, high up between the glistening cylinders, makes the final connections. The lights are dimmed. Even though it is a man-made storm which is about to break, one stands tense and a little terrified. Then the warning shout. A blinding flash followed by a terrific crash of thunder. The pungent smell of ozone. Ten million volts have been hurled through that room by puny little man stealing the arrows of the Almighty.

Enormous and thrilling as the demonstration is, science must return thanks to him who stands today as one of the 10 greatest of Americans, Benjamin Franklin.

* * *

Franklin's Test With a Kite

FOR it was wise, inquisitive Ben Franklin who went out into an open field away back in the year 1752 and drew down the lightning to a metal key which he had hung from a kite. Until that time lightning and its power and possibilities for humanity was among the unsolvable mysteries of nature. And now in this remarkable century we have the thrill of living in science that goes forward from Benjamin Franklin's bold experiment to capture power which may change the whole complexion of civilization.

Lightning and its phenomena concern a great many people in these summer days. Nothing is more fascinating than the eccentricities and whimsicalities of the flaming spears which pierce the blackness of a summer storm. There is no predicting what they will do.

Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer, spent years in collecting authenticated stories of the freaks of lightning. In his records is the case of a drinking mug being torn by a flash of lightning out of the hands of a man who was drinking from the mug and without the slightest injury to the man himself. A whip is snatched out of a rider's hand. Two ladies, calmly knitting, have their knitting needles stolen by a lightning bolt.

A girl is sitting at her sewing machine, a pair of scissors in her hand. A flash of lightning, her scissors are gone and she finds herself sitting on the sewing machine. A farmhand is carrying a pitchfork on his shoulders. The lightning seizes it, carries it off 50 yards and twists its prongs into corkscrews. The clothes are stripped from the farmer in the fields, he is left naked and every nail in his boots is plucked out. Hands are burned to the bone with no mark left on the gloves in which the hands were encased.

A man is struck by lightning, his underwear is scorched, but his outer clothes are untouched. Men and women have been struck by lightning and have escaped with their lives, although the hair of their heads was rolled into hard twists and buried in the flesh of their scalps.

* * *

A Damsel Shorn By Lightning

LIGHTNING may kill without leaving the slightest mark. It may cost total or partial paralysis, or the loss of speech or sight. It seems to have a curious antagonism to human hair. A young girl of 20 had her hair shaved off as clean as if done by a razor, yet she felt not the slightest shock and for some minutes was unaware of her loss.

Lightning struck a stable and killed 10 out of 20 cows. Beginning with the cow nearest the door it spared the second, killed the third, and so on. All the uneven numbers were killed. The even numbers were not even scorched.

The safest rule in thunderstorm times, and if one is out in the opening, is to keep away from large trees or from metal. The golfer who clings to his steel-shafted clubs is flirting with death or injury. Out in the open is the safest, when one is outdoors at all.

The safest place of all is in a modern, steel-framed building, or a steel railway car. So said the late Dr. Steinmetz, that marvelous little wizard of electricity, who used to preside over the laboratories of the great General Electric Company at Schenectady, New York.

And it was Dr. Steinmetz who said also that if one enjoys the tremendous majesty of a great electrical storm there is no more danger in standing at a window or a doorway than if one sat back in the interior of the house . . . Man makes his thunderbolts, stealing the secrets of nature and borrowing the weapons of the gods. But there is something so awesome and terrifying about the celestial flames which illuminate the storms of summer that the terror of lightning will dwell in the human mind for thousands of years to come.

THE 'BEST MINDS'

By Winifred Black

The "best minds" of Europe are considering earnestly together on how to get out of paying the United States of America their plain, honest debts.

The "best minds" of America are telegraphing and telephoning and speech making and considering and cogitating about the Einstein theory and what it means to the every day man in the street.

I know a man who has two sons.

One of them is already an expert accountant—he can add and subtract and multiply and divide like a lightning calculator. He's had money in his little iron bank ever since he was 3 years old. He keeps that same little iron bank on the bureau in his bedroom and every time he finds a nickel in his pocket he drops it into the bank. Every time he finds five quarters in his purse or his pocket he takes the fifth quarter and drops it into the bank.

Each month he takes the money to a real bank to deposit, and you should see the grin on his face as he glances at the new figures in his book!

Practical fellow—the "iron bank" young man. But you try to borrow a nickel off him or get a dollar for a friend in distress and you'll be surprised to find how many excuses he can offer.

The twin brother hasn't a nickel to his name—no not even a penny. He spends every cent he can get either on drawing materials or on books and magazines. Always making sketches when he isn't reading books and when he isn't making sketches he is hungrily reading the book review in his favorite magazines to scheme out some way of getting hold of the books.

Not interested in personalities but intensely interested in ideas.

Now if you had to decide between these two brothers which one would you say had the "best mind?"

Best for what—and best for whom?
